'FACING THE FACTS'

Business
Booster
Budget

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—A "face-the-facts" budget, incorporating tax increases totalling $290 million and adopting policies designed to set Canada on the road towards greater prosperity and industrialization, was presented to the Commons Thursday night by Finance Minister Walter Gordon.

The tax increases, he declared repeatedly and with some bitterness in his two-hour speech, were necessary to begin the process of correcting six years of Progressive Conservative mismanagement of the nation's financial affairs.

And the other policies—industrial incentives and measures to encourage greater Canadian control of Canadian industry—he described as the most effective long-term method of dealing with unemployment.

No changes were announced in personal or corporation income tax rates.

In presenting the new Liberal administration's first budget, Mr. Gordon, a chartered accountant from Toronto, declared it was his duty to "present the facts as we have found them on taking office."

"It is also my duty to ask honorable members and the Canadian public to face up to these facts," he said. "Having done this, it is my duty to indicate the kind of measures that are needed to put our national affairs in order once again."

Highlights

The highlights of Mr. Gordon's new taxation and fiscal measures:

● Application of the 11 per cent sales tax to previously exempt building materials, raising an estimated $120 million in extra taxes for the balance of this fiscal year.

● Similar application of the sales tax to machinery used in manufacturing or production, including diesel fuel in logging and lumber-making machinery, to raise an extra $60 million.

(These new taxes would bring in a total of $290,000,000 in a full year.)

● Elimination of a whole sales' sales tax discount on sales of gasoline—boosting revenue by another $5 million—because gasoline wholesaling has become nearly extinct.

● Off-setting the impact of the new taxation on building materials is a reduced down payment on National Housing Act—financed houses, plus a cut from 6½ per cent to 6½ per cent in the NHA lending rate.

● A crackdown on "expense account living" through vigorous enforcement and tighter administration of laws covering allowable business expenses.

● A novel subsidy to firms who hire new workers over 45 years of age and train them, during the period November-January, at a rate of $75 per month per employee.

● A three-year tax holiday for new manufacturing and processing enterprises located in designated areas of slower growth.

● Accelerated depreciation rates for such new firms when tax holiday ends, at rate of 50 per cent a year for machinery and equipment and 20 per cent per year on buildings.

● Higher write-off allowances on machinery and equipment.

U.K. Scandal Blown Open
By New Charge of Spying

LONDON (AP)—A London lawyer has charged that a Soviet naval attaché tried to get party girl Christine Keeler to obtain nuclear secrets from former war minister John Profumo, her secret lover.

This report blew the espionage aspects of the sex scandal wide open today and dealt a serious new blow to Prime Minister Macmillan, already fighting for his political life.

The disclosure came from lawyer Michael H. B. Edgower, who delivered a letter to Macmillan personally Thursday. This morning, Macmillan summoned his two top security aides, Home Secretary Henry Brooke, who is head of all police units in Britain, and Lord Dilhorne, head of the judiciary. There was speculation Macmillan would order a new inquiry into the scandal.

Lord Dilhorne already had conducted a secret inquiry and reported that Profumo never disclosed secrets when he shared the favors of Miss

Metro Force
A Necessity

Only surprise in the Archer Report's recommendation that B.C.'s first metropolitan police force should be formed here is the initial exclusion of the Esquimalt police-fire department.

"There should, however, be no misunderstanding," the report said. "By all standards Esquimalt belongs in the Saanich peninsula for police purposes and should be included immediately the present artificial barrier of dual employment is removed as... it inevitably will be."

OTTAWA—Finance Minister Walter Gordon today came under a barrage of opposition questioning which suggested he had permitted a "leak" of budget secrets.

WIRE BRIEFS

New Zealand Check

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (Reuters)—Two Canadian treasury officials and a detective sergeant arrived here today from Vancouver and were believed to be investigating the theft of a large sum of money from the Canadian government. They spent several hours in interviewing an unidentified man.

Throughout the 20-minute period of cross-examination which erupted at the opening of today's sitting of the Commons, Mr. Gordon refused to give a direct reply to questions about whether he had obtained "outside" help in preparation of the budget.

Traditionally, contents of the budget are kept in tight secrecy. In British parliamentary practice, finance ministers have been forced to resign over any advance leak of budget information or even over any serious suggestion that such a leak had taken place.

Fire in Hospital

EDMONTON (CP)—Seventy-four patients were evacuated as a precautionary measure today when fire broke out in the north wing of the Misericordia Hospital in downtown Edmonton. Firemen took about an hour to bring the fire under control.

K Sympathetic

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Premier Khrushchev received "sympathetically" a proposal by Harold Wilson, British opposition Labor party leader, that there should be an annual big four summit meeting at the United Nations in New York, Wilson said tonight.

B.C. Traffic Death

PENTICTON (CP)—Ian Andrew Mair, 18, of Penticton, was killed and four other persons hurt Thursday night when a small foreign car went out of control and rolled into a ditch from the highway about eight miles south of here.

FISHER QUERY

Today's sensation was touched off by New Democrat Douglas Fisher, MP for Port Arthur.

He said he had information to the effect that Mr. Gordon had outside help—"ghost writers," he called it—in the preparation of the budget, laid before Parliament Thursday night.

He said he wanted assurances from Mr. Gordon that the minister had not called in any "outside consultants."

Speaker, Macnaughton remarked that when Mr. Fisher became minister of finance he could bring about any necessary reforms himself—a remark that Mr. Speaker later withdrew at the insistence of Conservative L. E. Kindt (MacLeod). The speaker admitted the remark had not been as facetious as he thought at the time.

Mr. Gordon declared that "as minister of finance I take full responsibility for the budget" Opposition Leader Diefenbaker then leaped to his feet.

John Blackstock
... "good points, bad points"

Police Chief
Retires Early

APOLOGY
BY NOWLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition financial critic George Nowlan apologized in the Commons today for using the word "crooked" during criticism of the budget speech Thursday night. (See page 18.)

The former Conservative finance minister, noting it was the first time in 14 years in the Commons that he had to do such a thing, said use of the word was entirely inadvertent and had no application to any person, group or party.

He was given a thunderous round of applause from all sides of the House.

Budget Satisfies
Lesage on Taxes

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Jean Lesage told the legislature today he did not expect an affirmative answer to his tax-sharing ultimatum in the federal government's budget speech delivered Thursday night by Finance Minister Gordon.

In his speech, Mr. Gordon said the federal government would not subscribe to all the Quebec government's demands, which included one-quarter of personal and corporation taxes and all succession duties.

"It has its good points and its bad points," he said. He would not say which recommendations he felt were bad.

He said he was "in the dark" about that part of the report dealing with establishment of a metropolitan police force.

MUST COME

But he did say "metro's got to come."

He said that he felt an overall police commission for amalgamated police forces "could be beneficial."

"But I can't see it otherwise," he added, referring to the report's recommendation for a central commission whether or not forces are amalgamated.

"It could too easily cause petty jealousies to creep in," he explained.

The chief said he definitely welcomed the recommendations calling for the addition of eight men to the city force.

10 MORE

"I'd like to see 10 additional men right now," he said.

"I'd like to keep 10 men on the go all the time" in a definite training program, he offered.

"I don't think anyone who has been through our own training program here would criticize it," he said, "but it means we have to take men off duty to act as instructors all the time."

"And it's too expensive to board men over in Vancouver."

Major Shake-Up

By JOHN MIKA
Times City Hall Reporter

A bone-rattling shake-up of the city police department began today with release of the Archer report which gave an appalling picture of a Keystone Cops disorganization.

Chief John Blackstock, who saw the report, tendered his resignation on the eve of its release.

The 88-page report recommended creation of a Saanich Peninsula Metropolitan Police Department and a single police commission—after complete reorganization of the city force under a new chief and a major renovation and expansion of the city police building.

The metro force would include, Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Central Saanich and part of the Colwood area but not Esquimalt.

The three-part report was written in March by George Archer, a top RCMP official who re-organized the Vancouver Police Department after the Mulligan inquiry.

Swiftly-moving events set in motion by the report include:

● Acceptance by city council of Police Chief John Blackstock's resignation;

● Launching of a search by police commission for a top-notch police officer on the mainland to come in as a trouble-shooter to reorganize the force;

● Study of further recommendations which would reshuffle the top echelon of officers—including cutting Deputy Chief Harry Mercer down to superintendent—and possibly bring reprimands or discharges for some sergeants.

Administrative Chaos

Parts one and two dealing exclusively with the city force were released this morning by Mayor R. B. Wilson with Attorney-General Robert Bonner's sanction. Mr. Bonner's department released the third part dealing with outside forces and the metro proposal.

The 22 pages describing the present administrative chaos in the city police department read like an analysis of a nightmare and was followed by no less than 56 recommendations just as a bare framework for a re-organization.

Repeatedly Mr. Archer used terms like "shocking," "ridiculous" and "absurd" in describing the present situation.

"Certainly a very difficult and complex re-organization is needed here."

"With great regret I must advise you that it would be most unfair and unrealistic to require the present chief—stable to carry out this re-organization."

"Further, in my opinion, there is nobody available among the present personnel of the department who could attempt to undertake it."

"This is also the case in so far as the immediately adjacent municipal departments are concerned."

Mr. Archer declared deputy chief Mercer "redundant" in his present post and recommended he should be made a superintendent of the patrol division with specific duties.

He also criticized Detective Inspector Charles Webb and said he should be transferred back to the uniform branch and Inspector Ray Maitland put in charge of the detective branch.

Mr. Archer praised Traffic Inspector Brooke Douglass and said he should be given a proper staff to command. The uniform branch inspector should be given something to do.

The report on several occasions was severely critical of unnamed desk sergeants and suggested the police commission should consider "buying up their time" and retiring them ahead of schedule.

He also suggested various other staff shifts and a host of technical changes—in simple fact establishing rather than changing a police organization.

In one short section Mr. Archer recited the "gist" of the report which in effect said there is absolutely no organization.

MOST POLICE GET APPROVAL FROM ARCHER

The Archer Report condemned many aspects of the city police department but generally speaking said the majority of officers were worthwhile men trying to do a good job in a command vacuum.

"I found in the main, and particularly in the junior group, some very worthwhile men, pathetically anxious to make a success of their career, conscious of their lack of proper training guidance and leadership."

NEW SOVIET SPACE FLIGHT TO BE LONG ONE

'Feeling Perfectly Well' Messages Pilot

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union launched its fifth man into orbit around the earth today and Premier Khrushchev hinted at least one more cosmonaut may join the one already up in what may be another space venture lasting several days.

The United States announced

the end of its Project Mercury one-man space flights two days ago.

The new cosmonaut was identified as Lt.-Col. Valeri Fedorovich Bykovsky, 28, from a small town near Moscow. His craft is named Vostok (east).

The Soviet news agency Tass

said "the pilot himself reports, and the telemetric system confirms, that he satisfactorily withstood the putting into orbit and the transition to a state of weightlessness and that he feels well."

The news agency reported the space craft was orbiting the earth once every 88 minutes from 112 miles to 146 miles from earth.

SPEAKS TO EARTH

The capsule was reported circling at a 65-degree angle from the equator and broadcasting to the earth on 20,000 and 143.625-megacycle frequencies.

In contrast to the austere radio announcements of previous manned space flights, Khrushchev broke the news of this one to Harold Wilson, visiting leader of the British Labor party, at a Kremlin meeting.

Wilson—remembering that the last Soviet manned flights in August, 1962, had two men aloft at once—immediately asked how many were up this time.

"Only one so far," said Khrushchev, spreading his arms wide apart to emphasize his point.

Tass said the purpose of the new launching is to continue studies of the influence of various factors of space flight on the human body and to continue study of conditions of a long flight. This indicated that the flight of Bykovsky will be a long one.

CAIRO—Egypt's belly dancers may never dance again with the old verve if a new reform plan takes effect.

They are worried about a warning issued by the censorship department ordering them to cover up and keep their shakes "respectable."

The chief censor, Abdel Rehim Sourour, opened the campaign with a circular letter sent to each dancer outlining the official reform plan.

Sourour's letter said there is to be no more hipswinging; no more belly or bosom shaking; no more lying down on the floor and executing quivering or shivering motions; no more suggestive movements. And—breast, back and abdomen are to be covered—the lower part of the dance costume is to be a full skirt with no side or front openings.

FT. LEAVENWORTH, Kan.—Capt. Wayne G. Shelton, after competing with fighting members of the army here, held the record today of 498 points out of a possible 500 on physical combat proficiency tests. Shelton, 34, of Mount Airy, N.C., is a chaplain.

WINDSOR, Ont.—Too much water delayed opening of a civic swimming pool here.

Parks commissioner Harry O. Brumpton said the delay was caused when five feet of water from Sunday night's violent thunderstorm poured into the filter room.

He said all the motors and mechanical equipment has been taken out of the room and will have to be dismantled and cleaned before the filter system can function.

PROVIDENCE, R.I.—Six German shepherd dogs today began a six-week course in conversational English.

The dogs arrived this spring to become part of the Boston police force. The main problem was that they responded only to commands given in German.

The Providence police department, which has a nine-dog K-9 corps, was asked to retrain the animals.

WROTHAM, Eng.—The winner of a raffle for a free shampoo and hair curlers made an appointment to collect the prize.

James Cripps, who is bald, refused to turn the prize over to his wife, commenting: "You should see all the pretty girls in the hairdresser's."

DORSET, Ont.—Mr. and Mrs. Stanley James insist they got a helping hand from an obliging trout.

The St. Catharines couple were fishing in Kawagama Lake, about 60 miles northeast of Orillia, when Mrs. James hooked a lake trout.

Her husband tried to fit a small landing net around the fish, but failed. Instead, the fish seized the handle of the net and disappeared under the boat.

When it came up on the other side, Mr. James grabbed the handle and, with the fish still clinging to it, hoisted his prize aboard.

The fish weighed 22 pounds, was 38 inches long and had a 21-inch girth.

BLOCK ISLAND, R.I.—The Block Island high school senior prom was a success.

All three seniors showed up.

WHEELING, W.Va.—Police searched today for two prisoners who took special care to cover their tracks when they made their getaway. They took the prison bloodhound with them.

SANTA ROSA, Calif.—A Santa Rosa man has developed contact lenses for chickens.

He says they eliminate flightiness, feed-wasting and cannibalism.

Inventor A. W. Schriener got the idea in 1958 when he noticed that chickens with cataracts were better behaved than others and their production was good.

Instead of lenses to help chickens see better, Schriener hit upon red plastic to distort their vision. The contacts are fitted to the chicken at six to eight weeks of age and can be left on permanently, Schriener says.

Since everything the chicken sees is red, bleeding injuries do not attract it and cannibalism is prevented, Schriener says.

'DRIVERS SLOW DOWN, WATCH FLOWERS GROW'

CRESTON, B.C. (CP)—"Slow down," says Premier Bennett, "and watch the flowers grow."

"There's too much emphasis on speed these days. Our people have to learn to live, take a moment."

Mr. Bennett's comments came at a cabinet meeting here when the Southern Trans-Canada Highway Association was proposing to speed up highway travel in the area.

The premier said that personally he was not very enthused about going through the countryside at 50 miles an hour when association spokesman J. D. McMynn urged a cut-off between Midway and Grand Forks that would bypass places like Greenwood.

Usually speedy Highways Minister Gagliardi said he agreed with Mr. Bennett, that if Americans read the group's brief they would stop visiting the area.

"They come here to get away from hustle and bustle," he said.

MARKSMAN PAYS FINE FOR PLUNKING SIGNS

The girls may have been impressed but Magistrate William Oster wasn't.

Bretton Alexandre, 2791 Asquith, pleaded guilty in Saanich police court Thursday to shooting at two "for sale" signs at a Goward Road address June 11 with a new .22 rifle.

He had driven to the scene of the offence with two girls. Police testified that three children were playing close to the signs which were the youth's targets.

"Next time you want to impress your young lady, do so in a legal and less dangerous manner," the magistrate admonished, fining him $50.

West Wind Sent Smoke Into Courts

The fresh air intake atop Victoria's Law Courts will be moved to combat complaints of illness from furnace fumes. Metropolitan Health Officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread investigated the complaints and urged the public works department to take action.

Government employees complained of headaches, nausea and vomiting.

"We found nothing wrong at all," insisted an official of the works department. "There is no trace of carbon-monoxide or poisonous fumes."

Nevertheless, he said the department is complying with Dr. Whitbread's request.

He admitted that "there is a condition" at the Law Courts.

He blamed it on the wind. "When there are westerly winds a vortex is created which pulls smoke into the air intake. You can say that on occasion our chimney smokes."

He said the department will build a wall to redirect the air currents and will move the fresh air intake.

HONG KONG WELCOMES HEAVY RAIN

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Heavy rain fell today, breaking Hong Kong's long drought. The observatory recorded 1.34 inches of rain between midnight and 9 a.m. and further isolated showers were predicted.

Peking radio Friday night reported that heavy rains had flooded farmland in many parts of the fertile central Communist China region, including Anhwei, Shantung and Honan provinces.

101-Year-Old Dies

LETHBRIDGE (CP)—Jonas Bull Head, a Peigan Indian believed to have been 101 years old, has died at the Peigan reserve near here.

He was in his late teens when government authorities signed a peace treaty with the Peigans but records of his life remain vague.

HER WILL CHALLENGED

'Feared Indians, Loved Her Cats'

A Victoria woman believed she was "living in an area surrounded by hostile neighbors and hostile Indians" B.C. Supreme Court heard Thursday.

The will of Mrs. Marguerite Crawford Alexander, 72, of 1370 Craigflower, was challenged by her sister, Mrs. Marion Angus Clegg, 1624 Bank Street.

It was alleged Mrs. Alexander was suffering from "paranoid depressive tendencies" at the time it was executed.

Mrs. Alexander left $10,000 to the Cats Protection League of Victoria; $300 to the Salvation Army; $1,000 to the Mission for Lepers and several personal bequests.

Through her lawyer, Ian M. Horne, Mrs. Clegg said Mrs. Alexander was suffering from "confusion, disorientation and forgetfulness as to time, places and people and her own circumstances."

FEARED NATIVE ATTACK

Mrs. Clegg believed her sister had "specific delusions," such as the belief that she had to keep a constant vigil to protect herself from attack by Indians from a nearby Indian reserve.

That she had graduated in nursing from St. Joseph's

Harry K. Burnett, special representative of the Royal Trust Company, testified that Mrs. Alexander consulted him about the drawing up of her will in July 1959.

"From my dealings with her, I was absolutely satisfied it was quite proper for her to make a will," Mr. Burnett said.

HAD SEEN CATS

"Did she give any explanation for the bequest for the Cats Protection League?" asked Mr. McIntyre.

"Yes, she said the Cats Protective League was the only organization which could carry out her wishes," Mr. Burnett replied.

She had told him one of them would put its forepaws round her neck if she cried.

"I think she had seven cats at the time of her death," Mr. Burnett testified.

He said Mrs. Alexander told him she was the widow of William Beveridge Alexander.

She had two sisters—Mrs. Clegg in Victoria and Mrs. Stephen Lutz in Seattle. He (Mr. Burnett) had the impression Mrs. Alexander felt she had been dominated by her sisters.

"Did she show any marked animosity towards her sisters?" asked Mr. McIntyre.

"No, I wouldn't say that," Mr. Burnett said Mrs. Alexander left assets to the total value of about $18,000.

THE ONLY PASSENGER VEHICLE BUILT TO WITHSTAND THE FULL CHARGE OF A BULL RHINOCEROS

(Not that you're going to run into many of those—there aren't too many in Canada, except in a few zoos.)

In the beginning, LAND-ROVERS were used by the world's armies (26 of them), police forces (37 of them), border patrols, big game hunters, archeologists, titled persons (mostly for country use), oil companies, farmers, lumbermen, explorers, foresters, and so on. Now, lots of other people are buying them too: commuters, doctors, skiers, gentlemen farmers and members of hunt clubs, antiquers, rock hounds, dog trainers. Even racing drivers buy them (all aluminum alloy body and eight speeds forward). You can easily see why. The box section frame is a heavy affair—like a cross hatch of railway lines. The body is aluminum alloy—it won't rust or corrode. Besides, the body is light so the center of gravity is low and you can drive Land-Rovers at the most fearful angles. The thing has all the equipment you might need, like three power take-off points to which you can attach just about anything, even a thing to shear sheep. Land-Rovers come in 10 body styles: if you want a truck, we've got it; if you want a pick-up, we've got it; or you can have a 7, 10 or 12 passenger station wagon. For those whose taste runs to campers, we've got one you need not have a road for—think what that will do for a fishing trip!

This is the 88 Station Wagon. It seats 7, has a full length back door, has loads of space and all manner of standard equipment included in the price.

You don't really need to see any more than this to see the space to give you useful information.

Budget Easy to Take Except for Tax Jump

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

The Victoria business community today greeted Finance Minister Walter Gordon's budget speech with moderate enthusiasm.

There seemed to be controversy over only one main item - the extension of the 11 per cent sales tax to all building materials.

Royal Bank manager R. R. Wilde summed up the reaction of many Victorians when he said: "It's about what we expected, considering the short time the government has been in office."

He found it encouraging that the government was budgeting for a smaller deficit and saw no reason why, if the economy keeps expanding, the deficit could not be cut further.

Chamber of Commerce president John Wallace said the budget was a "bold move in two directions." He believed it would step up the pace of the Canadian economy and he praised the move to keep control of Canadian companies in the hands of Canadians.

Resent Sales Tax

Some building materials suppliers were bitterly critical of the extension of the sales tax, and contractors were leery of the move.

But other businessmen believed lowering of NHA interest rates and down payment requirements would offset the tax so far as the pace of residential construction was concerned.

Don Smith, manager of the Evans, Coleman, Evans division in Victoria, said the tax would be an accounting headache but he could see no reason to fear a slowdown in construction because of increased costs.

So far as home building is concerned, he said, the average person is not going to notice the higher cost when it is spread out over 25 years while the lower down payments and lower interest rates will provide a definite incentive.

Sees No Slowdown

Mr. Smith could see no slowdown in commercial or industrial construction either.

"People will build new plants or office buildings if there is a need for them, despite the higher cost of materials. Any decision to delay building would be offset by the fact that labor costs are continually rising," he said. Contractor George Wheaton noted that "anything which might discourage construction is questionable because of the employment situation."

"However," he said, "there have been quite a few building cost increases over the past decade or so and we seem to have absorbed them without the pace of construction being affected. Perhaps we can swallow this one too."

Building supply company director Ernie Hudson said it seemed odd to him that the government would move to encourage house building through lower interest rates and at the same time add to the cost of housing through extension of the sales tax.

Prices Will Rise

"It's caused a lot of turmoil in the industry," he said, "and prices of materials will rise quickly since there is very little stock carried locally."

He believed the tax would add from $300 to $350 to the cost of the average house selling around $12,000, and on larger homes would add around $500.

"Apartment building is bound to get a second look, as well," Mr. Hudson said. "The new tax adds to the fixed assessment value and reduces rental yield unless higher rentals can be obtained."

There was no doubt, he said, that the move will firm up prices of existing buildings.

Mr. Hudson feared that if the extra cost of building caused a slowdown it would materially affect employment in Canada, since the industry was the largest single user of labor in the country.

Contractor Douglas Hunter said the effect of the tax would be most marked on commercial buildings, adding about $100 to the cost of every $1,000 worth of reinforced steel.

Shocked By Move

He was shocked by the move, he said, because it was a reversal of the trend over the past few years to whittle down the number of building supply materials subject to tax.

On the other hand, Gordon Langdon, president of the Victoria Building Industries Exchange, felt house building would be encouraged by lower NHA interest rates.

"I think this is a step in the right direction as it is giving a lead to private financiers," he said.

... SCANDAL

Miss Keeler told Eddowes that Ivanov had asked her to obtain from Profumo the date of delivery of nuclear warheads to West Germany.

Speaking to reporters, Eddowes said he had been a patient of Dr. Stephen Ward, 50-year-old osteopath now awaiting trial on charges of living on the earnings of prostitution. It was Ward who broke the scandal wide open by making public Profumo's illicit relations with Miss Keeler. Eddowes said he met Miss Keeler briefly at Ward's apartment.

Later, he said, she asked him for legal advice after John Edgcombe, her discarded Negro lover, shot at her. She then told him of her affairs with Ivanov and Profumo, Eddowes said.

Eddowes added: "Realizing the possible implication of this, I asked: 'Did Ivanov ever ask you to get information from Mr. Profumo?'"

"She replied: 'He asked me to obtain the date of delivery of nuclear warheads to West Germany.'"

Eddowes said Christine told him she did not in fact get any information from Profumo and he, an experienced lawyer, was sure she was telling the truth.

Political sources said it is now virtually certain that the whole Profumo scandal will go before a public inquiry - either a judicial tribunal or an investigating committee of the House of Commons.

The government already has conceded it will permit such an inquiry if members of the Commons want one. The opposition Labor party is sure to demand the inquiry when the first big parliamentary debate on the scandal opens Monday.

Investment men noted that the budget had had no perceptible effect on Canadian stock markets and they believed that some time would elapse before the markets absorbed all the implications of the budget.

Herb Kennedy, manager of the Richardson and Sons Ltd. office here, said the budget was going to be the topic of a lot of discussion for some time.

Only a Forecast

Mr. Kennedy said that while lowering the deficit was sound business practice, it had to be remembered that few Canadian government had had much success in living up to budget forecasts.

"And while the budget forecasts a lower deficit," he added, "it is not notable that the latest report from the Bank of Canada shows an increase in the money supply to a new all-time high."

"This will provide quite an increase in the availability of credit which will have the effect of offsetting the benefits of a lower deficit so far as outside investment is concerned."

Mr. Kennedy felt that while the budget for the most part seemed to attempt to maintain the status quo in expenditures and revenues, it did signal a trend to development of the Canadian economy by Canadians through the tax on sale of large blocks of shares in Canadian companies to foreigners.

Direct Deals Costly

L. B. Williams, recently elected vice-president of the Canadian Investment Dealers' Association, said the move to discourage foreign control made any further direct deals almost prohibitively costly.

He said the lowering of the withholding tax on dividends and interest paid to non-residents from 15 to 10 per cent should help to ensure a reasonable flow of capital into Canada.

Ald. A. W. Toone, secretary of the Victoria Labor Council, said he was pleased with the proposal to pay incentives for employment of jobless people over 45 years of age.

"Anything done to meet the problems of automation is better than doing nothing but sitting there looking at it," he said.

TALKS between Sir Robert Menzies, above, prime minister of Australia, and British Prime Minister Macmillan, were scheduled to open in London, following arrival of Menzies today. After the London talks Menzies will fly to New York for visits to Washington and Ottawa.

Police Still Lack Lead To Killer

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — An air of foreboding hung over this city today as Negro leaders signalled for a "march, march, march" strategy and prepared a dramatic funeral Saturday for a slain civil rights champion.

FBI and police pursued clues into several states in their hunt for the sniper who ambushed Medgar Evers, a field secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, early Wednesday.

Evidence found near the scene of the murder had been sent to the FBI laboratories in Washington, but there was no solution of the crime. It included one fingerprint found on a rifle evidently used to kill Evers as he prepared to enter his home.

Civil rights leaders from many states are expected to attend the funeral of Evers at the Negro Masonic Temple at 11 a.m. Saturday. It was announced that Evers, a veteran of the Second World War, would be buried in Arlington National Cemetery next week.

Mass March By Negroes In Washington

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. capital became a rallying point for civil rights demonstrators today with a Negro singing and praying march "for freedom now."

Organizers of the march said they expected at least 2,000 persons to take part. A leader of the demonstration in Washington and Acting Police Chief Howard V. Covell said no trouble was expected.

In Jackson, Miss., scene of the assassination of a Negro civil rights leader, Negro leaders planned a dramatic funeral for the slain Medgar Evers Saturday.

The Washington demonstration by the city's major Negro groups comes a day after President Kennedy asked labor union officials to join the federal government in a "massive attack on job discrimination."

Street marches by Negroes in Jackson led to 90 arrests Thursday. Negro leaders rallied their followers to continue. Mayor Julian R. Stinson, finding 100 chanting civil rights demonstrators on the municipal building steps, told Negro leaders he would meet with them today.

At Cambridge, Md., a group of 500 white persons demonstrated at the Dorchester County Jail Thursday night and won the release of a white man who had been arrested in connection with a racial disturbance. Hours earlier authorities had released a dozen Negroes arrested Monday.

In Newark, Del., five white men and two Negroes were arrested following a fist fight at a hotel, the target of recent sit-in demonstrations. No one was injured.

New York City's acting mayor, Paul R. Screvane, halted construction of an annex to city-owned Harlem Hospital—scene of minor violence in clashes between police and civil rights demonstrators. The demonstrators have been protesting against alleged discrimination in hiring of workmen in the building construction trades.

In Alabama, thousands of national guardsmen go out of uniform today after a third Negro entered the University of Alabama system without incident. The U.S. Army authorized possibly 13,000 federalized national guardsmen to return to civilian life. About 17,000 national guardsmen were called into federal service Tuesday after Governor George C. Wallace attempted to prevent Negro enrollments in the university.

At Greensboro, N.C., approximately 50 of the city's restaurants, hotels, motels and theatres agreed to desegregate their facilities.

STIFF EDICT TO END SWAZILAND DISORDERS

MBABANE, Swaziland (Reuters)—The government today announced far-reaching measures to maintain public order in this British protectorate following widespread disorder since a general strike started Monday.

Under terms of a public proclamation order, public gatherings and processions will be controlled by a system of special licensing with three-year jail terms for breaking the edict.

What Makes a Canadian?

ONE of my friends, born in a foreign country, is going through the formal court processes of becoming a Canadian.

He is a man of lively intelligence, substantial talent, bright wit and a wonderful capacity for standing back, sizing things up with his own mind and finding the cheerfully ridiculous in the common round. The fact that he can tell a story of which he is the butt and enjoy it as much as his listeners makes him particularly good company.

He has lived here some years, intends to live and work here for some years to come and he thinks that acquiring Canadian citizenship is the right and the proper thing to do.

"Mind you," he says, "I'll never be a Canadian in the way that you who were born here are Canadians. I'll always think of myself as a Canadian, if that's what you call it, as I think of a made-in-Japan totem pole. But my son is a Canadian. He was born here."

He appreciates certain practical benefits of being a Canadian when in Canada, but he points out that a lot of the benefits are enjoyed merely by being a resident, without the formal procedures.

His observations—and some of them were shrewd enough to merit study in our Canadianization program—set me thinking of my own status.

I'm a Canadian, by the accident of birth and the beneficiary of sheer good luck which encouraged my parents to emigrate from a not very lovely north country English city before I arrived.

Because they came here I've probably had a better living than their circumstances would have permitted in their own birthplace. By accident I inherited lots of open ground, woods, a beach to play on, a school system that has seemed reasonably satisfactory to me, a softer delineation of social strata than might have been the case in England, and the opportunities for a good life which I've enjoyed not very wisely but well.

These have all suited my taste, perhaps because I've not been exposed to something that might have appealed to a person growing up from babyhood to adulthood in some other part of the world.

And while I've drawn great pleasure from visiting other places some distance from Canada—and would like to go back to them—it has still been an enduring satisfaction to come home, where I'm accustomed to the feel of things.

I don't know whether I'm a good Canadian or not, because I've never checked the yardsticks by which you measure such things. But I can't imagine being anywhere else where I'd be happier—except for a short stay.

I have a native pride in those things that Canadians do well, which, I suppose, is a form of ego flattery. And I'm prepared to let people of other nations feel exactly the same way in respect to their national accomplishments.

Beyond that, I've been eternally grateful for the favorable impressions made by other Canadians in foreign countries for the generous reception I've received in them.

And once I walked with a national group before a gallery of several thousand people and felt deeply emotional as the great crowd cheered and the band played "The Maple Leaf." They liked us, probably because we wore white shoes, white flannels, sort of salmon red blazers and modish straw hats. It was an occasion to send shivers running up and down your spine in spite of the broiling sunshine. If you thought about it at all, I guess you'd say you felt extremely Canadian at the time.

This is an experience I do not expect my friend now going through the citizenship procedures to enjoy. Yet he is a Canadian by choice, I by happenstance.

Some day I hope to know more fully what makes a person a good Canadian—not a great Canadian or a distinguished Canadian, just a good one.

I expect I'll find that what makes some Canadians good Canadians is exactly the same as what makes some Englishmen good Englishmen, some Chinese good Chinese, some Africans good Africans, and so on. Eventually I may discover that people are good, bad or indifferent no matter what nationality, though each may feel toward his native land what Rupert Brooke felt for England or Rob Roy McGregor felt for his hunk of Scotland.

I have the feeling that these are sentiments neither improved nor injured by whatever a man says in a citizenship courtroom.

'Canada Could Learn Much From Australia'

CANBERRA (AP) — Canada could learn much from Australia in organizing redistribution of electoral boundaries, Canada's chief electoral officer, Nelson Castonguay, said in a statement today.

Castonguay has been visiting Australia for the Canadian government to study electoral procedures. He said the Canadian government was considering changes in the present system for redistribution of electoral boundaries which is now undertaken by a parliamentary committee.

Under this system large disparities had arisen in the number of electors in various electorates.

Under the Australian system non-parliamentary electoral commissioners are appointed in each state to carry out redistribution and recommendations made are submitted to Parliament.

Castonguay said from his observations it appeared the Australian system could well meet Canadian requirements. He will leave June 16 to return to Canada via New Zealand.

JFK 'Moratorium' Scored

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican congressional leaders have bitterly assailed President Kennedy's "strategy of peace," charging him with an unrealistic view of the Communists.

Kennedy's declaration that the United States will not be the first to test nuclear weapons again in the atmosphere was especially scored Thursday by Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, leader in the House of Representatives.

"We are deeply troubled," Dirksen said. At the same press conference, Halleck declared: "The president's latest course—the adoption of a self-imposed moratorium—is the most doubtful act of all."

The target of the Republicans' fire was the major foreign policy address Kennedy delivered Monday at American University commencement exercises.

The theme of the address was that the time has come for a break in the cold war and that both the United States and the Soviet Union should re-examine their basic attitudes toward each other.

Time to Order Bulbs Again

It is unfortunate that deadlines should have to rear their jagged, ruffled heads in the quiet precincts of the garden, yet when other people are involved I suppose it is sometimes inevitable.

While it seems only yesterday we were gazing over the emerging spring bulbs, six months have passed since we saw the first daffodils pushing through the wet soil. It was two weeks before Christmas.

Now as the bulb leaves wither is the time to make out the list of what you want for planting this coming fall. Local bulb growers can give you much better service if you let them know your requirements at the time they are digging the bulbs around mid-June.

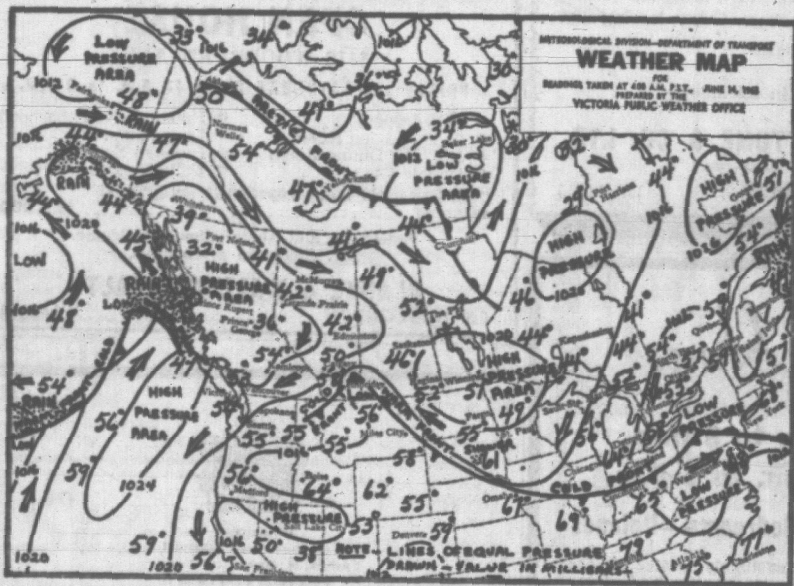

You will then be able to have them as early in the fall as you wish for planting. This is often a great advantage when the weather is cool and suitable for planting just before heavy rains begin.

Each year there are folks who flee westward from harsh climates and in our early spring days they are hopefully looking for daffodil and tulip bulbs to plant. They haven't had the opportunity of knowing from experience that these bulbs need a long, cool season in the ground for rooting before they will bloom to perfection.

Crocuses, snowdrops, hyacinths and all the other smaller but wholly delightful spring flowering bulbs are also planted in the fall.

So with the fall as planting time, the middle of June is ordering time if the bulbs are being bought from local growers. By doing this you are more likely to get the bulbs you want at the time you can put them in with pleasure, and have the assurance that they will have the optimum growing time to produce the results you desire.

Columbia Plan Okayed by B.C.

CRESTON, B.C. (CP)—Premier W. A. C. Bennett announced Thursday that the British Columbia cabinet has agreed to changes Prime Minister Pearson wants in the Columbia River treaty with the United States.

Mr. Bennett said the cabinet has endorsed a draft treaty hammered out by provincial and federal negotiators in Ottawa last week.

Kamloops Mills Impress British Timber Group

KAMLOOPS (CP)—A five-member timber trade group from the United Kingdom left here Thursday afternoon impressed with the speed of operations and handling methods used in district lumber mills.

Bruce Kennedy, president of the British Timber Trade Federation, said his chief regret was that the tour itinerary allowed only brief glimpses of the industry in the B.C. interior.

Mr. Kennedy noted that a mill the group visited here handles 500 tons of lumber a day, compared with the 150 tons a week produced by the Scottish firm he represents. Much more mechanical equipment was being used in the Canadian mills.

He said information gained on the visit could be put to good use in Britain.

The five points the new Liberal government wants changed in the treaty have not been made public. Mr. Bennett declined today to give any hint as to what they are but said a simultaneous announcement will be made in Ottawa and Victoria.

He said the next step will be for the federal government to send the draft treaty to Victoria for signature. Another trip to Ottawa by B.C. officials would not be needed.

The premier said he hopes the agreement will be received in Victoria in time to allow a construction start in the current fiscal year.

When the agreement is signed by both sides the federal government will then approach the U.S.

Mr. Pearson and President Kennedy discussed the Columbia issue at Hyannis Port, Mass., last month. The prime minister has said the changes Canada wants could be done through protocol notes and that the treaty would not require renegotiation.

Land Control By Province 'Hopeless'

Government attempts to control erratic development in unorganized territory are "a case of a man trying to do an army's job," a professional planner said Thursday night.

William Kerr, town planner for the township of Richmond, near Vancouver, was addressing the annual meeting of the Capital Region branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada.

He said that government has a small staff, a limited budget, and the idea that a man can spend three weeks in a town and come up with a regional plan.

It is making only a token attempt to control helter-skelter development in unorganized territory, he said.

Twelve members of the executive of the branch were named at the Thursday night meeting.

New officers of the branch are to be chosen from among the twelve.

Named executives were: George Barr, Frank Crocker, Alan Edwards, Dr. Peter Forward, Stan Hiscock, Mrs. B. Levitz Packford, Leslie Pope, Ian Sherwin, Mrs. Marney Stevenson, Foster Isherwood, Mark Trueman and Peter Morgan.

Murder Probe Held Back, Hearing Told

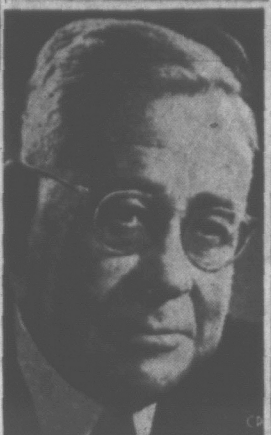

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—A convict charged Wednesday that New Westminster penitentiary officials are "blocking a murder investigation about a guard killing a convict."

Nelson Bernard Wood, charging brutality in the penitentiary, also said a prisoner was kept in solitary confinement for 18 months.

Wood is one of three men charged with confining, assault and robbing a guard and attempting to escape the penitentiary April 19 and 20.

He was spokesman for co-defendants Gerard Caissey and Wayne Carlson during preliminary hearing. The hearing was adjourned until June 20.

H. G. NORMAN ... sound basis

Rexspar Set To Produce At B.C. Pit

VANCOUVER (CP)—Rexspar Minerals and Chemicals Ltd. has announced it is ready to go into production at its fluorspar property north of Kamloops.

Chairman H. G. Norman and president Philip Joseph said in the firm's annual report that the company has a sound basis for successful economic production.

They said 1,000,000 tons of fluorspar have been proven in the area and can be mined by open-pit methods.

At Dec. 31, 1962, the company had current assets of $9,983 and current liabilities of $19,366. Its property is at Birch Island, a small community about 100 miles north of Kamloops.

MacDonald Heads C of C Retail Group

Rod MacDonald was elected chairman of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce retail merchants' group Thursday, succeeding Lloyd Davies.

Hugh Francis was named vice-chairman, succeeding Al Neuart.

The group decided to call a conference of merchants, store detectives and police officers to discuss methods of curbing shoplifting.

The conference will be held Monday, at 3 p.m., in the chamber board room and a list of suggestions will be drawn up for distribution to city stores.

It was also recommended that the standard exchange on United States dollars in Victoria stores, restaurants and motels should be at the rate of $1.07 Canadian. At the present time some establishments are giving $1.07 and others $1.08.

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—Gerard D. Levesque, acting minister of lands and forests, today ordered several forests closed to the public because of fire danger.

LIBERAL LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM BEFORE HOUSE

Commons Work to Be Done Before Recess

OTTAWA (CP)—The commons will have to deal with the Liberal government's initial legislative program before taking a summer recess.

Prime Minister Pearson told members Thursday he hopes the summer break will come by the end of July, provided the House moves expeditiously.

He said the initial program consists of nine measures now on the Commons order paper and several more to be introduced early next week.

Thursday's normal House business—curtailed by the evening sitting's budget presentation—was confined to a long question period, a private members' hour and continuing debate on a measure to set up a new industry department.

Today the House again will take up the industry department measure, still in the resolution stage prior to introduction of the actual bill.

Mr. Sharp spoke on a bill introduced by Reynold Rapp (PC—Humbolt - Melfort - Tisdale) calling for construction of a federal grain terminal at Tisdale, Sask.

MOVE CRITICIZED

The new department will embrace the existing defence production department and its first minister will be Defence Production Minister Drury. A new area development agency is to come under its wing.

On Thursday, three Progressive Conservative members and one Social Credit MP criticized establishment of the department, saying it would only add further to an already overblown bureaucracy and accomplish little except spend more public funds.

"Nothing but a puny and undemocratised scarecrow of an economic measure," said Gerald W. Baldwin (PC—Peace River).

Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) said the government is showing signs of too much haste and not enough thought in preparing its legislative program.

Eldon Woolfham (PC—Bow River) and Gilbert Rondeau (SC—Shefford) suggested that industrialists and other taxpayers need tax cuts much more than they require interference of civil servants in their operations.

minister—the first since 1960.

The minister said he doubted whether the government is going to be able to overcome the downward trend of grain sales by the end of the current crop year, July 31.

However, he said the Canadian wheat board was going to be just as aggressive in selling as it had been under the Conservatives and he hoped the downward trend would be reversed.

In an unusual procedure, Mr. Rapp's bill was withdrawn at the end of the hour's debate. It had initially been declared out of order by Speaker Alan Macnaughton but by unanimous agreement was debated anyway.

Mr. Sharp spoke on a bill introduced by Reynold Rapp (PC—Humbolt - Melfort - Tisdale) calling for construction of a federal grain terminal at Tisdale, Sask.

JFK: 'TCO MANY WHITE FACES HERE' Labor Asked to Aid Negro

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has asked labor union officials to join the federal government in a "massive attack on job discrimination."

He got a pledge from AFL-CIO President George Meany that the unions will support him.

The president made his appeal Thursday as he conferred at length with more than 280 union representatives at the White House. After the session, one labor leader said Kennedy made five major requests of the AFL-CIO:

1. Asked the AFL-CIO to set up a top-level committee to work with the administration in a concerted drive on job discrimination.
2. Asked for all-out support for his legislative package of social and economic measures.
3. Urged an all-out campaign to build up voter registrations, particularly among minority groups.
4. Called on international unions to put more Negroes in position of responsibility. Kennedy was quoted as saying: "As I look around this room, there are too many white faces, both down there and up here."
5. Proposed that the union take the initiative in forming biracial councils across the United States.

Kennedy met with businessmen last week. He plans to meet with religious leaders Monday. Tuesday, he will hold a luncheon meeting with a group of governors to discuss civil rights and other federal-state problems.

The unionists heard Thursday from Meany via a message from Geneva where he is attending the International Labor Organization conference.

"This is not a time for half-measures," Meany said in the statement. "We can no longer expect Negro Americans to be content with a little liberty. They are entitled to full liberty, full citizenship, full standing in the community, not next year but now."

Charitable Donations Likely To Escape Succession Duties

A provincial government spokesman Thursday said it is likely that donations to religious, charitable and educational organizations will be deductible for tax purposes under new B.C. death tax regulations.

C. A. Perry, provincial director of income taxation told the Institute of Chartered Accountants of B.C. that a list of qualifying national organizations should be available soon.

Mr. Perry made the announcement during a discussion of the new succession duty act at a technical session of the 58th annual meeting of the institute at Tally Ho Travelodge.

Technical aspects of other provincial acts, particularly as they relate to chartered accountants were also explained by other government administrators.

E. T. Cantell, superintendent of insurance, spoke on auditing and accounting aspects of the insurance and real estate acts.

W. S. Irwin, superintendent of brokers, outlined recent amendments to the securities act; and G. T. McCullough, inspector of credit unions, spoke on the credit union act.

Provincial archivist Willard Ireland entertained institute members with a breezy account of B.C. as "The Emerging Province" at a luncheon meeting.

He noted that as "inheritors of tradition and vast volumes of experience, it behooves us to look at the past" of the province.

The past may be dead but it shouldn't be buried he asserted. People should be able to refer to it in settling future problems.

Bears Tattooed

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — They are tattooing bears in New York state forests. The state conservation department, in its survey of the bear population, found that ear tags on those captured became lost too easily. The department turned to tattooing serial numbers on the thighs and sometimes the upper lips of the bears.

YOUR MERC DEALER WILL HELP YOU ANGLE FOR A NEW FISHING MOTOR

Your Mercury outboard dealer will arm you with facts about the new Merc fishing motors ... information that you may need to convince your wife (or yourself) that you've just got to have one. Maybe your old banger is shearing pins. Mercs have no shear pins. They have a live-rubber safety clutch instead. Maybe you can't troll with your old motor because it idles badly and fouls plugs. Fishing Mercs have tilted powerheads that eliminate fuel "pudding" and fixed-jet carburetors that keep the mixture right. There are lots of good reasons why you should have a new Merc. They start easy. They go through weeds and shallows without heating up. They have full gearshift.

If you don't have an outboard ... all the more reason to buy a new Merc. It will take you off the dock and back where the fish are hiding.

VISIT YOUR MERCURY DEALER. There's a good chance that you'll get a new Merc 60 ... 6 hp, Merc 110 ... 9.8 hp, or a new Merc 200 ... 20 hp. MERCs are very light and easy to carry home. Now made in Canada at new low prices.

BEFORE NATIONAL CONVENTION?

City Jaycee Continues A-Arms Fight

An anti-nuclear arms resolution may be introduced at the national convention of the Canadian Junior Chamber of Commerce by a Victoria Jaycee who has seen it ignored or voted down on the local and provincial levels.

Al Wilson, a former president of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce, has seen his resolution tabled indefinitely by the local group and rejected by the recent convention of the B.C. Junior Chamber.

The resolution calls for Canada to "renounce completely as soon as possible, all nuclear weapons."

It was first introduced to the local chamber Feb. 27, was postponed until after the general election, was postponed again when brought up at the Jaycees' international night, and then tabled indefinitely.

Mr. Wilson tried to have the resolution introduced at the recent provincial convention at Prince George, and was voted down.

Mr. Wilson, Victoria Jaycee president Brian Holaday, and B.C. president Eric Charman will attend the national convention in Halifax starting June 30. He will attempt to have the matter brought up there.

Presbyterians Turn Down Merger Talks With United

TORONTO (CP) — The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada began and ended on the topic of unity, and indications both times were that the church is moving slowly on the subject.

As the 89th assembly ended Thursday night, delegates rejected a suggestion that talks concerning unity with the United Church of Canada be started.

"It would be unwise, dangerous and futile," said Rev. J. L. MacLean of Victoria, a former moderator, who said the church should instead make a study of its own beliefs at the presbytery level.

As the conference opened June 5, Rev. Harry Lennox of Vancouver said after being elected moderator:

NOT NECESSARY

"I'm one of those who does not feel one big monolithic organization is necessary in the church. Human nature being what it is, a large church would more easily fall prey to a form of dictatorship.

Retiring moderator Rev. Ross K. Cameron of Toronto said: "If there is to be a unity of churches, whether organic or not, I believe it must come in communities where the people themselves agree to work it out together."

The resolution on unity that was rejected Thursday night called for churches to institute informal talks with neighboring United Churches and for an intensive program of study on unity within the Presbyterian Church.

There have been no talks between the two churches since 1925 when the United Church of Canada was created by a merger of Methodist, Congregational and Presbyterian congregations which voted to join.

Cigarettes were also discussed Thursday as Rev. Lloyd Henderson, mayor of Portage la Prairie, Man., suggested a nation-wide campaign against smoking.

CMA CRITICAL

"Supporting the Canadian Medical Association is the least we can do," he said. The CMA, also meeting here this week, has been criticizing cigarette smoking as a cause of lung cancer.

The approval was added to a motion by Prof. W. W. Stanford Reid of McGill University, which stated that, pending the total abolition of them, nuclear arms should be confined to as few nations as possible.

The motion passed without debate.

On the question of divorce, the assembly decided that wilful desertion as well as adultery should be considered grounds for divorce. It would be recommended to the federal government that a royal commission consider such additional grounds for dissolving marriage.

New System To Detect A-Blasts

OTTAWA (CP) — Experiments on a new system of detecting and locating underground nuclear explosions are being carried out near Yellowknife in the Northwest Territories.

Nine seismometers located at set distances from each other are being employed to measure shock waves from nuclear explosions.

The test site, constructed by the public works department, consists of two 15-mile strips of land each six feet wide and cut through the bush in the form of a wedge.

Four concrete vaults housing the detecting instruments were sunk into the ground at intervals along each strip with an additional unit at the apex.

Almost 60 miles of cable link these vaults to a control building.

If tests prove successful it is expected additional sites will be built in the same area later this year.

Fishermen Organize Co-ordinating Group

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three main groups representing fishermen in B.C. have agreed to form a committee to exchange ideas and co-ordinate action in what they say is a fight to safeguard the Pacific Coast fishing industry for local fishermen.

The Independent United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, Fishing Vessel Owners Association of B.C., and the Native Brotherhood of B.C. have agreed to elect three members each to the committee.

Other fishery organizations, including the Prince Rupert Fishermen's Co-Op, the B.C. Fishermen's Independent Co-Op Association and the Pacific

Trollers' Association have also been invited to join the committee.

The delegates of the three unions now participating agreed on the need for action to protect salmon, halibut and herring threatened by foreign fishing fleets.

Thomas English, a former Victoria High School and Victoria College student, has been awarded a Vancouver Bar Society scholarship of $2,000 to help with his studies at Harvard.

Mr. English, who graduated in law this spring from the University of British Columbia, was earlier awarded a $2,000 Mackenzie King scholarship to study at the famous university.

SPEAKING Tuesday noon at a meeting of Victoria Kiwanis Club will be former Saanich councillor J. Ronald Grant, now director of aircraft sales, Canadian Pacific Airlines, Vancouver. His topic will be the state of Canada's airline industry.

Boy Drowns

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Brian Schultz, 11, was drowned Thursday while swimming in a municipal pool here. About 150 other children were in the pool when Brian apparently suffered stomach cramps and went under the surface before anyone noticed him.

First of Its Kind in City

Co-Ordinated But Individual Designs
Feature of Jasper Place Subdivision

Victoria's first parade of homes opens Saturday at 10 a.m. in the new subdivision of Jasper Place, which lies about midway between Hillside and Cedar Hill Cross Road, and is bordered by Doncaster elementary school and the Shelbourne shopping plaza.

In this compact, crescent-shaped location, nine model homes built by members of Victoria Home Builders Association will be on view to the public. All are in the $18,000 class but they vary considerably in concept and design.

This first display of Victoria home-building is sponsored by the builders' association in conjunction with and designed by Fred H. Rowe. It has a cathedral-type entrance, decorative garden wall across the front and a matching sun screen over the window. The textured cork facing on the fireplace wall accents the texture and color of any furniture style; and the basement may be expanded to include a den and family room.

3. A four-bedroom house built by Bruce A. Cooke Building Construction Ltd. and designed by Bruce A. Cooke. In the 1,170 square foot main floor are three bedrooms and a spacious family dining area. The lower floor allows plenty of room for the growing family and dining areas impart dignity and homeliness. The reason Mr. Rowe has designed most of these homes is that he is official designer to Victoria Home Builders Association.

"We picked one designer with the idea of co-ordinating roof lines and exterior styling," said Ken Price, president of the association and proprietor of Stock Construction Ltd.

"We wanted to avoid any risk of disjointed, unrelated houses in a planned subdivision. We picked Mr. Rowe because of his understanding of the importance of combining the practical and aesthetic aspects of small house design."

"The rugged and varied nature of the site presented a real challenge and we believe Mr. Rowe has met this challenge."

Five Furnished

"We wanted to avoid stereotyped exteriors while at the same time offering a controlled individuality from one house to the next."

Mr. Rowe is also responsible for the choice of interior and exterior colors and materials and for setting up the basic landscaping for the overall grand finale.

Five of the homes on display are fully furnished.

Founded in 1939, Victoria Home Builders' Association is an organization of approved building contractors, sub-contractors and suppliers which meets at regular intervals to discuss matters relative to the industry.

"Our dedicated purpose is to create and maintain the highest standard of service and quality for the home-building people of our city," Mr. Price said.

"Cost, mortgage financing and availability of new materials are special problems in home-owner planning today. And there is need for reliable and authentic guidance as well as ethical standards."

Other officers of the association are Robert Ford, vice-president; Kenneth Brown, secretary-treasurer; David Stubbs, Michael Litwin and Frank Thorne, directors.

"This home show is the first of its kind in Victoria," Mr. Price said, "but similar shows have been held across Canada and in many parts of the United States."

"They give builders, decorators and designers a chance to show the public what they can do in actual form rather than on paper."

"This should be an advantage to all concerned."

Vic-Van Isle Kingsmen's Club. Adults will be charged 50 cents at the entrance to Jasper Place, and prizes consisting of major household appliances will be offered.

The parade of homes will be officially opened Saturday at 2 p.m. by Reeve Stanley Murphy of Saanich. It will run for nine days—from 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays and from 2 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. on weekdays.

Many Styles

On display are no-basement homes, basement homes, split-level homes and two-storey homes, ranging in style from the so-called cottage type to the long rambling modern dwelling.

They may be summarized as follows:

1. A split-level home built by Kasapi Construction Co. Ltd., designed by Fred H. Rowe. The contemporary interior styling of its 1,213 square feet has an element of surprise at every corner, with high-ceilinged kitchen, tall windows and planter over the cabinets. From the upper level you look over the kitchen work centre to the trees in the rear yard. The rear living room has a modern fireplace of brick and tile.

2. A 1,200 square foot home built by Robert Ford to expand its living quarters. A fifth bedroom is roughed in for the "do-it-yourself" resident to complete. The ranch style interior is complemented by the treed lot on which it is located.

4. A 1,204 square foot home built by Robert Quigg and designed by Fred H. Rowe. The split entrance eliminates exterior concrete steps. The exterior is rendered in a modern post and beam design, complemented by the oriental garden across the front. Entertainment can be extended outdoors to the sun-deck off the dining room. The kitchen has a built-in range top and oven.

Southerly Aspect

5. A home built on a solid rock bed by Litwin Construction Co. Ltd. and designed by Fred H. Rowe. The main floor covers an area of 1,183 square feet and the finished entry and utility and bath bring the living room area to 1,280 square feet. The sun-deck off the front of the living room is intended to capture the southerly sunshine, yet its elevation above the road creates a sense of privacy. Plenty of storage and work room is offered by the ample garage.

6. A 1,350 square foot home built by Alf Newton

chen wall partitions contribute to a sense of spaciousness. The garden entrance is enhanced with a large sun-port in the roof to capture the sun reflected from the concrete block column supporting the roof beams.

8. A cottage-type home built by Earle Cross and designed by Fred H. Rowe. Warm antique brick combined with rough cedar siding and shake roofing lend the house an air of rustic charm. There is a U-shaped kitchen with breakfast area; and, just prior to construction, the builder enlarged the floor area sufficiently to include a two-piece powder room off the master bedroom.

Official Designer

9. A new-type Victoria home, with bridge entry, built by Stockton Construction Ltd. and designed by Fred H. Rowe. Elimination of excess backfill allows for windows across the front basement wall which would otherwise be under grade level. Open design creates a sense of space and the wood-paneled walls in the en-

HOME-SEEKER'S QUIZ

Q — Does the average purchaser shop around more these days before buying a house?
 A — He certainly does and he should, but it's possible to shop around too much. The ladies know how difficult it is to make a decision on a dress when the racks are full of bargains. Well, seeing too many houses can make the purchaser's decision just as difficult.
 Your realtor can save you time by eliminating aimless searching for a home. Tell him the type of house you want, the neighborhood you want to live in and the financial outlay you're prepared to make. He may have just the house you are looking for in his listings.
 Remember, not all good house buys are advertised.

Garage Door Care

Like most things mechanical, a garage door's operation depends on the amount of care given it.

Lubrication will prevent most problems. Occasional inspection and adjustment will take care of the remainder.

TWO OF A KIND

Overhead doors are of two general types: sectional doors that roll up and one piece doors that tilt up.

In roll up doors, springs are used to counterbalance the door. When the door is closed the spring is either twisted or stretched, storing energy which helps you open the door.

Over the years adjustment of spring tension must be made. Springs lose tension as they age, doors get slightly heavier with additional coats of paint.

PERIOD OF ADJUSTMENT

Adjustment and maintenance vary with different brands of doors. Save manufacturer's instructions. In some cases, torsion springs must be wound with a metal bar after first loosening the collar that holds the spring in place. Sometimes simply shortening the cable or resetting clamps at the end of the cables will do the trick.

Remember that too much tension will make the door difficult to lower, even though it may be easier to raise.

Lubrication is important. Use oil on hinges that hold the door sections together, on ball bearing rollers and on roller stems, on pulleys and on lock rods at points of friction.

CAUTION!

NEW YORK (UPI)—Safety experts recommend caution when using insecticide sprays.

Keep spray away from food or food utensils and from open flames or electric sparks. Always wash the equipment with hot suds before storing it.

When burning leaves or trash, heed these rules from the National Board of Fire Underwriters:

—Never burn leaves or trash on a windy day; have the garden hose connected to a water line and ready to use if your fire should get out of hand; Be sure your fire is completely out before you leave it.

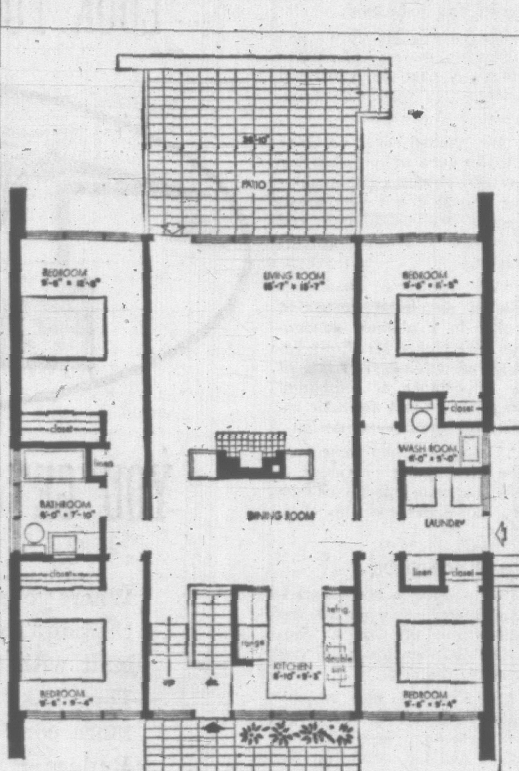

With careful planning it can be made to return big dividends in added property value, not to mention providing new scope for family convenience and entertainment.

Perfume Shrubbery

Scatter some beads of sweet alyssum on the soil around and between the evergreens or shrubs in your house planting.

They will grow with no care at all and the resulting flowers will scent the air all summer and until late fall.

Design Provides Space For Big Family Living

Here's a big-family house of unusual design that offers maximum living-space on two floors through use of the split-level entrance.

The unconventional in exterior design and the unusual in interior layout are distinct features of this four-bedroom house by architects Denis and Freda O'Connor of Edmonton. The uncommon layout results in a bedroom in each corner of the house with a bathroom separating the two bedrooms on one side and a washroom, laundry and side entrance between the bedrooms on the other side.

A fireplace separates the dining and kitchen areas from the living room which overlooks a raised terrace at the rear of the house. Large window areas at both the front and rear of the house provide a well-lighted interior. The lower floor provides space for a playroom, sewing room, den, hobby room and storage.

The floor area is 1,326 square feet and the exterior dimensions are 36 feet 10 inches by 42 feet. Working drawings for this house, known as Design 811, are available from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.

A Tangible Asset

Modern Basement Concept Provides Functional Area

The concept of the basement as additional living space is becoming almost universal in new homes being built today. If not an accomplished fact in the original house, there is at least provision made for a finished basement in the future.

This trend, says the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating, is becoming widespread among older homes, many of them built when the basement or "cellar" was regarded as only useful for placing bulky, cumbersome heating plant and as a catch-all or family junkshop.

Many owners of fine old homes are realizing that what was once almost a wasteland can now be turned into an asset—a tangible asset in added value and a new concept in convenience.

The new habitable area thus made available allows space for a family room, recreation room, hobby room or modern laundry room.

Such a project of modernization of what was once little more than an unsightly trash room is usually less costly than might be supposed.

With careful planning it can be made to return big dividends in added property value, not to mention providing new scope for family convenience and entertainment.

With any house over 10 years old, the first step is to decide about the heating plant or furnace. If it is still efficient as when new and providing ample comfort it may still serve.

However, if practical, a change in its location may be necessary to accommodate the new room you are about to create.

If an entire new heating plant is indicated, you will find heating units, as designed and manufactured today, are surprisingly compact, smart looking and unobtrusive.

It is strongly urged that as the first step in modernizing a basement a qualified heating man be consulted. This should be done whether a re-location of the furnace is involved or the consideration of a new one.

Once you have settled the matter of your heating equipment, the conversion of your basement to additional living space can be proceeded with according to your own desires. It can be as elaborate as you may wish to make it or strictly functional.

Extra conveniences such as a washroom, cabinet shower and so forth may be added at a later date.

If yours is a home where more space for the enjoyment of life—for entertaining or the indulgence in hobbies—is becoming desirable, an investigation of the possibilities may give you a pleasant surprise.

And the outlay of dollars may be much less than you thought.

TIP FOR BUILDING WITH CONCRETE BLOCKS

LAY SOLID FOOTING OF CONCRETE

Blocks Favored Material

By MR. FIX

There was a time when folks in the building trade looked with scorn on concrete blocks. But recent years have changed that.

They are available in a variety of surfaces, shapes and sizes, and they are less expensive than brick.

While it isn't likely that you are going to go right out and build yourself a house or even a garage, you should know what blocks are and how to work with them.

Any construction possible with brick is possible with block. A garage, a retaining wall, a decorative half wall around a patio or an outdoor fireplace are items that can be built of these blocks.

The popular lightweight block is made of Portland cement, water and an aggregate of cinders instead of sand or gravel—hence the name, cinder block.

Most blocks are partially hollow, are nominally 8 inches high, 16 inches long and 8, 10 or 12 inches wide. Actual measurements are 1/8-inch less to allow for mortar joint of that thickness.

Stretcher blocks will make up the largest part of any wall, with corner, lintel and other special blocks making up the difference. Most building yards carry an assortment that will take care of most building problems: Header blocks tie in floor joists; lintel blocks have recesses for door sash or window frames; sill blocks are for use below windows.

BUILDING BLOCKS

Before building with block, make certain you have a solid footing of concrete. For a wall, dig below the frost line and make the footing twice the width of the wall, centering the wall on it. For an outdoor fireplace, pour a concrete slab. Use a mortar mix that will cling to the blocks without oozing when you lay the blocks. One part masonry cement to three parts sand is a good mortar mix. Cut down on the sand if the structure requires greater strength.

Cover the footing with plenty of mortar, apply mortar on succeeding rows of block in a double row along both edges, butter mortar onto the end of the block you are putting in place. Use a line level and tap each block until it is level, scraping away the excess mortar while it is still fresh.

OLD STORY

Don't use old mortar. When it doesn't seem to stick anymore, make up a fresh batch. Use dry, not wet blocks. Blocks expand when they get wet, shrink when drying, which could open up joints.

Fresh mortar is easier to clean than old so clean up as you go along.

You don't want hollow blocks for the top row as they might fill with water.

Protect Mortgage Loans

Object of Inspections Not Always Understood

The role of the building inspectors of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and the reasons for National Housing Act inspections are often widely misunderstood by home-owners.

The most important thing to remember about CMHC inspections is that they are not intended to provide full architectural or engineering supervision for house buyers. The inspections by CMHC are made to ensure that the completed house will offer good mortgage security.

CMHC must make sure that the insured loans made by NHA approved lenders are adequately secured. At the same time, you can protect your own interests by arranging for your own inspections.

CMHC inspections only indirectly benefit the home owner. The inspections spot defects as construction progresses. The builder can then make corrections to comply with the conditions of the loan. Those conditions are merely to build in accordance with the Housing Standards, which are the minimum building standards prescribed by CMHC for houses financed under the National Housing Act, and in reasonable conformity with the plans and specifications the builder submitted with his loan application.

The five inspections are made at the following stages of construction:

1. When excavation is complete. The inspector checks such things as location of the excavation on the lot, soil conditions, and required drainage.

2. When footings and foundation walls are finished. Such points as the size and location of footings and foundations, quality of workmanship and materials, damp-proofing and foundation drainage, are checked before earth is back filled.

3. When structure is enclosed and roofed. Attention is paid to the construction of the framing, supports, arrangement of partitions, exterior wall sheathing, roof sheathing and roof.

4. When the roughing-in for heating, plumbing and electrical work is in place and insulation installed. The inspector checks arrangements for future installation of fixtures, insulation, basement floor, door and window framing, louvers, fireplace if any, and an excessive strength reduction by cutting to allow passage of plumbing, electrical wiring and heating ducts.

5. When the house is complete. This is foundation-to-roof check and includes painting, flashing, heating, plumbing, wiring, cabinet work, hardware, glass, flooring and such items as grading, walks, garage and site improvements if these are part of the original specifications.

CMHC cannot act on behalf of a home purchaser against a builder or act as mediator in any dispute which might arise between builder and purchaser. Arrangements with the builder and the fulfilment of the contract are the buyer's sole responsibility.

This means, while the house may not be acceptable to you in that the builder is not fulfilling his contract, it may be satisfactory for mortgage insurance purposes. The contract with the builder is your responsibility, and not that of the lender or CMHC.

Read carefully all the documents you are called upon to sign. For instance, when you make an application for an NHA loan you sign the following statement: "I understand that I must make my own arrangement with the contractor and see that the house is built according to the plans and specifications which have been agreed upon between myself and the contractor and approved by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation."

A purchaser of a builder's house signs a similar statement. When you buy a house you must either inspect the house yourself or arrange for a suitable agent to inspect it on your behalf. Buying a house is a great responsibility. Make sure the arrangements you have made fully safeguard your interests.

It is your responsibility to make sure you get what you are paying for.

Common Accident

By MARGERY McELHENY

CHICAGO (UPI)—Falling is the most common accident during cleaning, reports Philip Dykstra, director of home safety for the National Safety Council. He has some suggestions to make cleaning, accident-free:

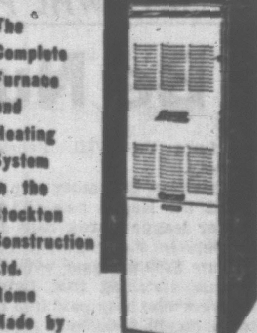

—Make sure your ladder is in good condition. Don't try to build a substitute from furniture or boxes. The ladder is long enough if you don't have to use the top rungs or step. Move the ladder rather than try to reach far to one side.

—Rinse floors clean of soap or detergent before applying wax. A thin, even coat of wax buffed to a high polish is harder and safer than a heavy coat. —Paint only in well ventilated rooms. Use paint containing less than 1 per cent lead for all indoor use. Keep oily or paint-soaked rags in tightly-closed metal cans in a cool place.

—Do not use carbon tetrachloride or inflammable liquids for cleaning.

—Avoid touching electric appliances when your hands or floors are wet.

Deadly-Accurate Rounds Boost Lawson, Hitchens Into B.C. Final

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Vanity has nothing to do with it. When Gayle Hitchens wants to see, she takes her glasses off. O-F-F. Off!

It doesn't do much for an optometrist's bill of goods, but the pretty UBC co-ed discovered Thursday afternoon it does wonders for her putting.

If she had to rely strictly on her putting, Gayle admits she might not have been around for today's wrap-up rounds in the B.C. women's close golf championships.

When she stepped to the first tee this morning for the 36-hole final against Uplands' Joan Lawson, Gayle planned to hide her glasses in her golf bag.

A case of astigmatism prompted Miss Hitchens to invest in the spectacles. Thursday, en route to a 4 and 3 semi-final victory over Gorge Vale's Shirley Naysmith, Gayle's reigning queen of the fairways began doubting their effectiveness.

Especially on the putting greens. Revelation came on the 13th green. Miss Hitchens had been putting with mediocre success until then. As a matter of fact, earlier she had missed one small putt of just under two feet.

Three up on Mrs. Naysmith, Gayle was faced with an 15-foot putt for a par. For the first time in the weeklong tournament, Gayle removed her glasses. She promptly rammed home the lengthy putt for a win that put her four up.

"That's the first putt I made today," she said. "When I missed the short putt earlier, the rim of the glasses seemed to interfere with my line."

She went on to explain that the glasses have hampered her putting. "I don't know if the glasses are entirely to blame but I haven't been striking the ball like I should. I've been hacking at it."

With or without her glasses, the petite 19-year-old has been impressive with all other facets of her game, particularly her driving.

Straight and long off the tee, she never gave Mrs. Naysmith a chance to forge an upset. Miss Hitchens made the turn in 38, one over ladies' par, for a three up advantage.

She lost only two holes, the per-three fourth and the par-five 12th. Mrs. Naysmith won the fourth with a birdie two. On the 12th, Miss Hitchens called a penalty on herself when her ball moved while she was addressing it for her second shot.

When it came to accuracy Thursday, you also have to bring Mrs. Lawson's name up in a hurry. The Uplands ace was precision personified as she defeated Point Grey's Colleen Smith 3 and 2.

Deadly accurate with all aspects of her game, Mrs. Lawson never lost a hole until she three-putted the 13th green. By then, she had built up a six-hole advantage over the long-hitting Vancouver lass who was having difficulty with her short game.

Miss Smith, six down with six to play, made a gallant bid to pull the match out of the fire by winning three straight holes. The match ended when both parred the 16th.

Mrs. Lawson, who was five up after nine holes, made the turn in 39.

Tardy Start Hurts Rocks

Victoria Shamrocks, hoping to double their slim, two-point lead, over trailing Nanaimo in the Inter-City Lacrosse League race, are assembling an all-junior forward line for tonight's tussle at the Memorial Arena against New Westminster.

Junior aces Bill Munroe, Rod Kilduff and Glen Vickers should help, but what might be even more beneficial would be curing an Irish tendency to give away goals on their own odd-man play.

Four times at New Westminster Thursday night the Rocks gave up goals while trying to exploit a manpower edge with a Royal City rival in the penalty box.

Those four goals didn't make all the difference as the Rocks went down to a 19-6 defeat, but they upset the Victorians and made it easier for Westminster to climb within four points of leading Vancouver.

BONDA BUSY Also damaging was a slow start that just about settled the issue in the opening period. The Royals rammed in five unanswered goals in the opening period and outscored the Rocks 2-1 in the second session to take a 7-1 halftime lead.

Shamrocks played their best lacrosse in the third quarter to trim the deficit to 10-5 but couldn't keep up the pace in the final period.

Busiest bomber for Royals was veteran Jack Blondia, who rapped in three goals and earned three assists for a six-point effort, climbing into a fourth-place tie in the league scoring race.

DOUBTFUL STARTER Blondia has 36 points, six behind teammate Cliff Sepka, who collected a goal and assist to step back into the scoring lead, one point in front of Nanaimo's John Ferguson.

Billy Jobb added three tallies and Paul Parnell and Ken Oddy chipped in with a pair apiece for Westminster.

Tied with Palmer going into today's second round was an awed, 24-year-old rookie pro from Waterloo, Iowa, Jack Rule, but Arnold had a two-stroke cushion over his principal rivals, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player.

Nicklaus and Player were tied with 69s with a dozen other players including two Canadians, Al Balding of Toronto and Stan Leonard of Vancouver.

Balding put together rounds of 34 and 35 and Leonard was 35-34-69.

Two other Canadian entries were within reach — George Knudson of Toronto came back with a 24 after taking 38 on the first nine to finish with 72.

Al Johnston of Montreal had a 74. Ben Hogan, making a tournament comeback at the age of 50, was also close with 71.

Victoria were Barry Ashbee, Billy Gray, Bill Bradley, Whitey Severson, Ron Jay, Don Sepka, Tom Collett, Jack Showers and captain Ed Kowalyk, who was used sparingly because of a sore foot and is a doubtful starter tonight.

BABY SHAMROCKS HOST WESTMINSTER SUNDAY

New Westminster will take on Junior Shamrocks in a Junior Inter-City Lacrosse League game at Memorial Arena Sunday. The game was originally scheduled to be played in the Royal City.

New Westminster is the only team to beat Junior Shamrocks so far this year, handing them a 16-14 overtime setback.

This game will be played at 3 p.m. in place of a Senior "B" League tussle between Jokors and Tugmen.

As a preliminary, New Westminster Juvenile "A" team will play an exhibition against Victoria, starting at 1 p.m.

It's Fun Again Reports Arnie

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP)—Arnold Palmer has it going again, and that is unsettling news for the men who scramble for purses on professional golf's golden highway.

"It wasn't work like it has been recently—it was fun again for a change," the perfectly relaxed three-time Masters champion beamed. Palmer posted three-under-par 67 Thursday for a share of the first-round lead in the $100,000 Thunderbird classic.

Tied with Palmer going into today's second round was an awed, 24-year-old rookie pro from Waterloo, Iowa, Jack Rule, but Arnold had a two-stroke cushion over his principal rivals, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player.

Al Johnston of Montreal had a 74. Ben Hogan, making a tournament comeback at the age of 50, was also close with 71.

FIRST BID for annual All-Sooke Day marathon honors is being made this year by stary Alan Valiant. Young runner's name was among first entries received for July 12 race from Victoria to Sooke River Flats. Entry may be made by writing to Box 231, Sooke.

Whoosh...Pop! Koufax Hums Another Shutout

Times News Services

Whoosh...Pop! That's the sound the umpire hears when music man Sandy Koufax is humming in a fastball or twisting in a curve.

The ump got a tuneless earful Thursday night as the consistent Koufax piped in his pitches and posted his fifth shutout with a three-hit 3-0 victory over Houston Colts that kept Los Angeles Dodgers out front in the National League pennant scramble.

Koufax struck out 10 Colts—the 45th time in his career he has fanned 10 or more batters in a game—and brought his record to 9-3. At the same time, he continued an amazing string of pitching successes at Dodger Stadium that's carrying him toward his first 20-victory season.

The 27-year-old lefthander, reducing his earned run average to a glittering 1.77, has recorded four of his shutouts and compiled a 5-0 record at home. And he has allowed only two runs at Dodger Stadium in 54½ innings.

Koufax's latest shutout left Dodgers .002 points ahead of runner-up San Francisco Giants and St. Louis Cardinals at the top of the standings.

Giants edged Chicago Cubs 2-1 on Willie Mays' 10th inning homer while Cardinals thumped Philadelphia Phillies 7-3 in a game held to 5½ innings by rain.

Fourth-place Cincinnati Reds used homers by Leo Cardenas and Gordy Coleman to whip Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 behind the five-hit pitching of John Tsitouris.

OLD ORIOLE MOXEY The old Orioles would be proud of Brooks Robinson.

The Orioles, circa 1890-1899, wrote the test book on baseball behavior: when the catcher suffers a broken knuckle he rubs it in the dirt and goes on catching; when a pitcher has a sore arm he asks to pitch a doubleheader; when a batter is knocked down by a pitch he gets up and puts the slug on the pitcher.

Robinson, 26, is a new Oriole but under Wilbert Robinson himself would be leading the cheers today for the "old Oriole" way in which Brooks picked himself out of the dirt Thursday night and delivered a two-run single that gave Baltimore a 5-4 victory over New York Yankees.

The bases were filled with Orioles and the Yankees held a 4-3 lead when Robinson batted against reliever Bill Kunkel in the seventh inning.

Kunkel promptly sent Robinson sprawling in the dust of Yankee Stadium with a brush-back pitch.

Robinson's answer was to dig in for the next pitch and deliver the two-run blow that snapped the Orioles' five-game losing streak and knocked the Yankees out of first place in the American League.

Front Line of Wolves Something to Behold

By BRIAN CASTNELL
Special to the Times
LANCASHIRE, Eng.—When Victoria's All-Stars line up against England's fighting Wolves, the Molyneux, Wanders, at Royal Athletic Park on June 17, they better have a plan to stop Wolverhampton's front line.

The young Wolves who finished in the top 10 of the English First Division last season are a combination that doesn't pull any punches even in so-called friendly tour games.

And when the star-studded Wolves' attack is on-form there are few sides in Britain that can hold it.

Ask Manchester City and West Bromwich Albion supporters over here and they'll give you the same answer: they watched the Wolves slaughter their favorites 8-1 and 7-0.

Four years ago Wolves were in the dumps. The players that had taken them to the top of the soccer ladder had grown old and retired. The reserves weren't ready for the big time.

Manager Stan Cullis who believes in developing his own players started writing cheques for stars, unusual for him, but every buy was an astute one, none more so than winger Crowe's.

New Wolves are almost back at the top and Victoria fans should have a preview of what the young Wolves will be doing on the English soccer scene next year.

If Wolves click the fans are in for a feast and the All-Stars a hammering. Putting the spotlight on the players, take a look first at regular first team goalkeeper Fred Davis.

He's acrobatic, a great showman, and at 5 ft. 11 in. and 166 pounds a man who will take some beating by the All-Stars sharpshooters.

Davis joined Wolves from a small Welsh club and turned pro in 1957. He's regarded as one of the safest 'keepers in British soccer.

Malcolm Finlayson is the reserve 'keeper. He's 6 feet 1½ inches and was born in Dumbarton, Scotland. He joined Wolves in 1956 from Millwall, the British Fourth Division club.

The two fullbacks are Gerry Harris and George Showell. Harris turned pro in 1954 and is in English international.

Left back Showell joined the club as an amateur before graduating to the pro ranks. He's fast, a deadly tackler and a cool cookie who never panics when the pressure is on.

At halfback Wolves have a wealth of talent. At right half is the dynamic youngster Fred Goodwin. In his early 20s, this boy is heading for the top of the soccer tree. He's fast in attack and a hard man on defence. He's only 5 feet 9 inches tall and 140 pounds but he's all strength.

At centre-half another youngster, 22-year-old David Woodfield holds down the No. 5 spot vacated by Britain's all-time great player Billy Wright, now manager of Arsenal.

Woodfield made the position his own after climbing out of the reserves. At left half Ken Knighton, a 19-year-old, is fast maturing as the sort of player Wolves will be relying on 10 years from now. He's a quick mover with the knack of feeding his forwards like a veteran.

At outside-right is the golden-haired glamour boy, Chris Crowe, who cost the club $37,000 when he signed for Wolves after a spell with Blackburn Rovers. Last season he slammed home 11 goals from the No. 7 spot. He's fast, tricky and an English international.

A danger man in the high-powered front is inside-right Peter Broadbent. A clever ball player he creates the openings which lead to the goals. Also an English international.

Leader of the attack is Jimmy Murray. He was off form last season and only hit eight goals but is back to form after a spell in the reserves. He was capped for the England international "B" (Reserve) side three years ago.

The man who kept Murray on the side-lines for a spell was Ted Farmer a 25-year-old sharpshooter who snatched nine goals last season.

A roving type centre-forward, he's got one of the hardest shots in the game.

A wizard with the ball when on form, he makes up a highly dangerous left wing team with Terry Wharton.

Wharton at number 11 has a wonderful understanding with Stobart. Last season he scored 16 goals and is another of the club's former amateurs who didn't cost a big fee.

Other players expected to line up on the tour are John Kirkham a wing-half, Peter Knowles inside-forward and John Galley an inside-forward.

Behind the success of the club is the astute soccer brain of Stanley Cullis, one of the world's most famous soccer managers.

Cullis is a tough disciplinarian but he's guided Wolves to two FA Cup final wins in 1949 and 1959 and League championship wins in 1953, 1957-58. A born tactician he knows soccer from A to Z.

Three players who Wolves left behind are Ron Flowers, Alan Hinton and Bobby Thomson. They are all on international tours which shows the amazing strength of the Wolves reserves in sending such a powerful team to North America where Wolves don't plan to under estimate the opposition.

New Clubs in IHL
CHICAGO (AP)—The International Hockey League dropped St. Paul and Minneapolis as members Thursday and formally approved Windsor and Chatham, Ont., and Des Moines Iowa, as new members for the 1963-64 season.

SELLOUT CERTAIN

Cassius Stirs British Fans

LONDON (AP)—A British bookie has analyzed the training form of Cassius Clay and British heavyweight champion Henry Cooper and Thursday made the brash American a 5-1 favorite to win their fight at outdoor Wembley Stadium next Tuesday. Charles James Woolgar said:

"Boxing is unpredictable and Cooper could get in that left hook of his to shake Clay. He could knock out Clay with that one punch. But I must make Clay the favorite."

Clay, unbeaten 21-year-old fighter known as the Louisville Lip, has called just about everybody in the heavyweight bracket from world champion Sonny Liston to Cooper a "bum," "a no good," "a tramp," etc., etc.

The result has been a certain freezing toward Clay from British sports writers and hundreds of insulting letters—many of them anonymous—from fans to Clay.

But one thing is certain—Clay has fired the imagination of the British boxing public like no other man in years. Promoter Jack Solomons predicts the fight will be a 55,000 sellout.

NEW YORK (CP)—Matchmaker Teddy Brenner of Madison Square Garden said Thursday he hopes to sign the winners of the Sonny Liston-Floyd Patterson and Cassius Clay-Henry Cooper bouts for a heavyweight title fight in New York for either September or December.

Do Sports Enhance Physical Fitness?

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP)—Are sports good for you? Do they help an athlete maintain good physical condition into middle and old age? Can they help in the fight against the weaknesses of old age, or even aid people to live longer?

These are some of the questions that scientists hope to find answers for through a study of Olympic athletes.

The project will be launched at the 1964 Tokyo Olympics. It is expected to play an important role in improving world health.

Outside Post Is Rough In Scramble for Plate

TORONTO (CP)—They didn't do Warrior's Day any favors Thursday when post positions were drawn for the 104th running of the Queen's Plate Saturday at suburban Woodbine track.

Expected to be a contender in the annual $50,000 - added classic for Canadian-bred three-year-olds, Warrior's Day drew the outside starting berth.

This, say the experts, virtually eliminates Conn Smythe's colt, paving the way for Canebora, Son Blue and Royal Maple.

However, a whopping field of 19 starters were nominated and in a field this size, anything can happen. The purse, a record $54,850 to the winning owner, is the richest in Canadian racing history.

For Smythe — former president of the National Hockey League's Toronto Maple Leafs — to get into the money, jockey Keith Robinson of Minnesota, Man, will have to be both good and lucky.

With the rush-hour traffic jam scene at the starting gate, it will be tough for Warrior's Day to reach a contending spot in the early running.

FEW IN NUMBERS, REPRESENT COMMUNIST INFLUENCE

Russian Troops in Cuba Prove Alliance

By JACK BEST

HAVANA (CP)—The presence of Soviet troops in Cuba has taken on a significance all out of proportion to their purported numbers.

The fact that their continued presence is to some extent symbolic only adds to its importance, in the opinion of qualified observers. They say the Russians:

1. Represent living, day-to-day evidence of world communism's penetration of the Western Hemisphere through the instrument of the Cuban revolution.

2. Bear eloquent testimony that the events of last October have not shaken the fundamental friendship of Cuba and the Soviet Union.

In the aftermath of the October missile crisis, Premier Fidel Castro was widely represented as being angry over Premier Khrushchev's abrupt decision to withdraw Soviet missiles from the island without consulting the Cuban government.

No Differences
If the two leaders did have a falling out, their differences have since been composed, diplomatic informants say. A demonstration of this was the tumultuous reception given Premier Castro by the Soviet people, led by Khrushchev, on the Cuban leader's recent triumphal tour of Russia.

While consolidating his friendship with the Soviet bloc, however, Castro has been making every effort to assert the essential differences between the two.

B.C. Rest Homes Seek Recognition Of Care Provided

Representatives of B.C. rest home operators met with senior civil servants of the department of social welfare Wednesday in a bid for recognition.

Existing regulations fail to distinguish between rest homes for the aged with care provided, and ordinary boarding houses, said Mrs. E. S. Glenn, secretary of the Victoria branch of B.C. Rest Home Association.

The association wants clarification of rating to assist in the classification, regulation, inspection and rate-setting of rest homes throughout the province.

The delegation was led by Mrs. Marga Feka, president of the Victoria group, and Mrs. Glenn, president of the B.C. Rest Home Association.

They met R. E. Rickinson, deputy minister of social welfare, and social welfare director James Sadler.

Vancouver Grad Forest Assistant

OTTAWA (CP)—Forestry Minister Nicholson has announced the appointment of D. Ross Fitzpatrick of Vancouver as his executive assistant.

After graduating from the University of British Columbia in 1958, Mr. Fitzpatrick served as assistant to Dean E. D. MacPhee, commissioner of the royal commission inquiry into the B.C. tree fruit industry.

When the inquiry was completed, he carried out marketing and economic research studies for the B.C. tree fruit industry.

ally home-grown character of the Cuban revolution.

Old-line Cuban Communists were conspicuously absent from the entourage that accompanied him to Moscow. Western diplomats here interpreted this as a calculated reminder to the Kremlin that he and his supporters are determined to follow their own path to Marxism-Leninism, free from the dictates of doctrinaire communism.

Instead, Fidel took along young revolutionaries known for their loyalty to him personally or to his close associates in the Cuban leadership.

A wave of speculation swept Havana earlier this year that the U.S. and Cuba might be moving toward some kind of modus vivendi, with Moscow doing what it could to facilitate the process.

Having looked down the nuclear barrel once, so the story went, both sides were tacitly agreed that the present explosive situation should not be allowed to continue.

"I've been wondering for two or three months whether there's some arrangement between Kennedy and Khrushchev," remarked a diplomat last month.

On Russia's part, an accommodation would have the attraction of liquidating the danger of further clashes in an area where the U.S. holds the trump cards.

Relations With U.S.
For Castro, it would hold the prospect of a resumption of economic relations with the U.S., something the Cubans are believed to want acutely.

So went the speculation.

In view of Castro's reception in Russia and the bold reaffirmation of Soviet pledges to help defend Cuba against attack, the diplomats now aren't so sure.

Presumably, the U.S. would insist on withdrawal of Soviet troops as part of any arrangement to take the heat out of the Caribbean situation.

But this may be precisely what Castro cannot afford to agree to under present circumstances, observers say.

West diplomats are inclined to go along with the official U.S. estimate of about 17,000 Russian troops here late last year, of whom some probably have since left.

Confined to Bases
Parts of a 3,000- to 5,000-man combat team, previously reported to have pulled out, may still be in the island, some responsible informants say.

The Russians are reliably reported to be confined to their bases, even during off-hours, to avoid possible incidents with the Cuban public. For the sake of morale, therefore, frequent rotations are necessary. Thus the problem of trying to keep track of actual numbers is compounded—apart from the tight security screen maintained.

It is possible to view the Russian soldiers as a stabilizing factor in the tense Caribbean situation. Foreign diplomats often express anxiety about what might happen if Cuban crews were in control of the sophisticated anti-aircraft rockets the Russians are said to have introduced into the island.

At present, a tacit understanding exists between the two sides that the Russian-controlled launchers will not open fire on high-flying U.S. reconnaissance aircraft that keep Cuba under constant surveillance.

Castro's renewed assertion of the nationalist complexion of the Cuban revolution is easily detected in Havana. Huge portraits of him have blossomed, with the words, "Commander-in-chief, order."

They depict Castro, in full battle regalia, heroically surveying a mountain scene from a crag in the Sierra Maestra, where he made his headquarters in the days when the revolution was struggling to achieve power.

Castro Entrenched
Further nationalist flavor is conveyed by the numerous statues and busts of Jose Marti, Cuban national hero and leader in the war of independence, which have made their appearance in the last year or so.

Diplomatic informants say Castro appears more firmly in the saddle than ever. Any threat to his leadership was removed when he sent old-line Communist Anibal Escalante packing more than a year ago.

Escalante, accused of surreptitiously trying to wangle personal control over the monolithic United Party of the Socialist Revolution now being constructed, was forced into exile in Eastern Europe.

'An Exercise in Political Partisanship'

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition party critics offered some acid descriptions of the new federal budget Thursday night.

Progressive Conservative spokesmen, obviously burning over the political remarks Finance Minister Gordon included in his budget address, centred their fire on that aspect of the 10,000-word document.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said it was "simply an exercise in political partisanship."

George Nowlan, finance minister in the former Conservative government, called it "the most miserable, petty, picaresque, party address ever given in Parliament."

Mr. Gordon had stirred their ire with references to six years of Conservative mismanagement, the possibility of undiscovered "skeletons" in our national financial closet," and what he termed the "fiasco" of the Dawson City gold rush festival.

T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party, said it was "an appalling budget" with concessions to the large corporations and measures which would reduce the purchasing power of the people.

Social Credit Leader Thompson said the budget gives away with one hand and takes it back with the other. He predicted it would draw severe attack for its "political overtones and side remarks."

Mr. Nowlan was the only opposition spokesman to speak in the Commons after Mr. Gordon. The others talked to reporters after the House adjourned. They will have more to say during the six-day budget debate.

Liberal backbenchers kept up a steady flow of interjections during Mr. Nowlan's 20-minute speech.

At one point, he said the former government had more administrative ability than the present one but was "politically inept" compared with the Liberals.

"We are not as good politicians as you," he shot at the Liberal benches. "We are not as crooked."

Mr. Nowlan, MP for Digby-Annapolis - Kings, said the finance minister had referred to the former government's huge deficits.

"It is true that we had deficits. We had substantial deficits. We took over the country (in 1957) from a government which was allowing our econfrom the people ... by hiding the record."

Outside the chamber, Mr. Diefenbaker said the Liberal party promises of the election campaign have been dissipated by subsequent experience.

He called withdrawal of the sales tax exemption on building materials a "retrograde step" which would increase the cost of new homes.

The forecast of a five-per-cent increase in the gross national product for 1963 compared with an eight-per-cent boost last year. Thus, instead of getting the economy rolling as the Liberals had promised, "we're going to recede in growth by three per cent."

Mr. Thompson said he was disappointed over the absence of tax relief for the individual but was satisfied with the emphasis on Canadian production and freer trade. He supported the tax concessions to industry and more efficient tax administration policies.

... "miserable, picaresque"

Gilles Giguere, Social Credit financial critic and MP for La-pointe, said the budget was "a flat no to the demands by the province of Quebec" for a larger share of the tax pie.

Mr. Douglas said the budget "can't do anything else but raise the cost of living and thus reduce the average pay envelope."

"This is carrying out the biblical injunction: 'To him that hath, shall be given; from him that hath little, shall be taken,'" said the former Baptist minister.

Colin Cameron, NDP financial critic, labelled the budget "a shocking document." Its specific measures "were so meagre and pointless as to be a mockery," Mr. Cameron is MP for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands.

ON WITHHOLDING TAX

Reciprocal Pact to Get Close Study

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—The United States plans to explore the possibility of an agreement with Canada whereby the withholding tax on repatriated dividends could be cut to five per cent on a reciprocal basis, a high U.S. tax authority said Thursday night in expressing mixed reaction to Finance Minister Walter Gordon's first budget.

He said certain features of the Gordon budget, such as the cut in the withholding tax to 10 per cent from 15 on certain types of investments, would be welcomed. Other features, such as the 15-per-cent withholding tax on management fees, would cause deep concern among many Canadian companies.

In general, the U.S. welcomed moves which tended to ease Canada-U.S. tax problems and at the same time restrained the flow of capital to Canada at a time when American gold reserves are being drained by a continuing balance-of-payments deficit.

To this extent, the official who deals with international taxation said he is worried by the Canadian withdrawal of the withholding tax on interest payments to non-taxable foreign banks, companies or trusts.

New Taxes to Curb Foreign Ownership

OTTAWA (CP)—Stiff taxes to discourage the sale of Canadian corporations to foreign interests, were contained in Finance Minister Gordon's budget along with measures to encourage more Canadian ownership of companies now controlled abroad.

Effective immediately, Canadian individuals or companies that sell large blocks of shares in Canadian companies to foreign interests will pay a 30-per-cent tax on each sale valued at more than $50,000 in a day.

Mr. Gordon said this new tax will apply immediately on the shares of all corporations listed on Canadian stock exchanges, and the government is working out means to apply the penalty tax to unlisted and privately-owned corporations.

"It is our view that non-resident take-overs of established Canadian companies rarely confer any benefit on the Canadian economy."

On the other hand, the government wanted to encourage foreign investment in Canadian corporations, so long as a substantial amount of control was retained in Canada. Since 1960, the federal government had charged a withholding tax of 15 per cent on dividends paid to non-residents.

Effective immediately, the withholding tax would be reduced to 10 per cent from 15 per cent for companies owned by Canadian residents to the extent of 25 per cent or more.

Starting Jan. 1, 1965, the 15-per-cent rate on dividends paid out by corporations with less than 25-per-cent Canadian ownership would be raised to 20 per cent. This increase would apply to companies which are fully foreign-owned.

During the interval between now and Jan. 1, 1965, the 15-per-cent tax would be raised to 20 per cent on the amount of any increase in dividends paid by the companies with less than 25-per-cent Canadian ownership. This tax would be paid by the company, and not by the recipient of the dividend.

To encourage a company with less than 25-per-cent Canadian ownership to come up to that level or surpass it by Jan. 1, 1967, Mr. Gordon said some refunds of the withholding tax will be made.

SPACE

monauts Andrian Nikolayev and Pavel Popovich come close to one another while in orbit. They were christened "the heavenly twins." Nikolayev, the first off the launching pad, was aloft just short of four days.

Moscow Radio said Vostok V was functioning normally.

The size and weight of Vostok V were not announced.

Blast-off of the fifth Soviet cosmonaut, a married man with a three-month-old son, came after a flurry of speculation in the West that the fifth would be a woman.

This possibility still remained since there has been no announced Soviet intention to end its first series of manned space flights as the U.S. did.

CROWDS GATHER

Small crowds of Muscovites gathered around cars and radios and street loudspeakers to hear the announcement of the new spaceman.

Moscow television showed his picture — young-looking, dark-haired and handsome. He was in military uniform with a peaked cap.

The Tass announcement added that the cosmonaut would be making a "prolonged flight."

Vostok V was blasted off from a Soviet cosmodrome, probably the one at Baikonour, where the previous flights were launched. Baikonour is in arid Kazakhstan, the Soviet Far East republic.

SENDS MESSAGE

Tass reported that Kykovsky, on his second orbit of the earth, sent this message to the Kremlin:

"Moscow, the Kremlin: I hereby report to the central committee of the Communist party of the Soviet Union, the Soviet government and Nikita Sergeyevich Khrushchev personally that I am feeling perfectly well. The systems of the ship are functioning normally and the flight continues successfully. I thank the Soviet people, our own party and the government for the trust they have shown in me."

Tass said the message was received at 4:36 p.m. (6:36 a.m. PDT)—one hour and 36 minutes after blastoff.

The news agency said Bykovsky also sent greetings to the people of Africa as he flew over that continent on his first orbit.

Flying over the Soviet Union he sent "enthusiastic greetings to the heroic Soviet people, the builder of communism, the pioneer in space exploration."

RESERVE COMMENT

In Washington, the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration said its officials were reserving comment about the Soviet launching until more was learned about the flight.

NASA Administrator James E. Webb and his associates conceded, when they declared Project Mercury a completed Soviet achievement in manned space flight were likely during the approximately 18 months before another U.S. astronaut is sent into orbit.

Big Impact Seen By Bennett On Power Plans

CRESTON, B.C. (CP)—Two federal budget measures may have a major impact on British Columbia's power plans, Premier Bennett said Thursday.

They are the abolition of duty on export power and the end of withholding tax on bond interest.

The export duty change would have no immediate effect on power development plans in the province. It wouldn't mean anything until either Peace or Columbia River power is exported to the United States—at least 10 years from now.

Water Resources Minister Ray Williston said that then the new measure would have "a very important effect on power prices." Some small benefits would be immediate, he said, from regional interchanges of power between B.C. and Washington State.

Mr. Bennett said the end of the withholding tax could mean a long-term difference of 10 to 15 per cent in financing costs when Columbia and Peace money is raised in the U.S.

Mr. Williston said he would study in detail the new sales tax of 11 per cent on building materials that potentially could add millions of dollars to costs of building the Peace and Columbia River dams.

Mr. Bennett said an end of the power export tax was asked by B.C. in recent Columbia River talk in Ottawa. He said it was nonsense to retain it when export duty had been removed on natural gas and oil exports which the U.S. used to make electricity.

'EQUALS OUT'—GORDON

Sugar Added To Tart Housing Brew

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—The government giveth and the government taketh away—at least in Thursday night's budget treatment of the housing industry.

The 11-per-cent sales tax was slapped back on building materials raising prices for houses in the $13,000-$19,000 range by perhaps four per cent, sources forecast.

But Finance Minister Walter Gordon also announced other measures, designed to take at least some of the sting from the tax re-application.

On balance, they would equal out, he suggested to reporters after his budget address.

The government proposal, is that Canadians buying new houses will have to pay a substantially smaller downpayment.

MONTHLY PAYMENTS UP

But their monthly mortgage payments under the National Housing Act would be slightly larger.

Mr. Gordon's three sweeteners:

1. The National Housing Act lending rate is being reduced immediately to 6½ per cent from the rate of 6½ maintained since late 1961. Before then, it had been 6½ per cent, a record.

2. Downpayments for low-cost housing will be smaller. Housing Act loans are to be extended to cover 95 per cent of the first $13,000—as compared with the first $12,000 previously. Further, the maximum loan is being raised to $15,600 from $14,900.

3. A program announced last Monday provides a direct payment of $500 to the first owner of houses built in winter months.

The re-application of sales tax to building materials—and to non-farming or non-fishing machinery and equipment—will provide perhaps $170,000,000 in additional government revenue during the current fiscal year, Mr. Gordon said, and about $360,000,000 in the next fiscal year starting April 1, 1964.

DIEF OPPOSED

Commons opposition seemed assured. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker told reporters that it adds up to $600-$700 more on a $15,000 house. He said it was a retrograde step which would lead to reduced home building.

There have been complaints that lower-cost homes built under Housing Act financing in larger urban centres exceeded effective demand.

Former works minister Davies Fulton mentioned this in a speech late last year. He announced then that the Crown agency, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, had been authorized to consider applications for direct loans on privately-sponsored rental housing projects.

Mr. Gordon said there is "widespread dissatisfaction" about the exemption of certain industries from the 11-per-cent sales tax. So, Parliament will be asked to reimpose the tax on building materials and others while leaving untouched the exemptions on staple food products — preventing imposition of "an unfair tax burden on lower income groups."

'GHOST WRITER'

to insist that that was no answer to the secrecy question, a question which touched on the privileges of all members of the House.

"We should have an unequivocal 'no,'" Mr. Diefenbaker said, "in an answer to this very serious question."

Mr. Fisher arose again to say he was raising the question because in British parliamentary practice it was essential that budget secrecy be preserved due to the consequences resulting from taxation.

"When there are reports that he has brought down people from Toronto to assist him, people outside the government service, we should have a denial or an explanation," Mr. Fisher said.

DESKS POUNDED

There was no reply from the government benches. Conservative MPs went into an extended pounding of their desks.

Gordon Churchill, Conservative House leader and MP for Winnipeg South Centre, asked if all engaged in preparation of the budget had taken an oath of secrecy.

Mr. Gordon said everyone associated with budget preparation had taken the oath of secrecy.

The NDP Leader T. C. Douglas asked if persons other than officials of the finance department had helped prepare the budget.

The finance minister replied that he had help from "various officials of other departments" and that he had received "advice, assistance and representations from people all over the country."

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) asked for the names of such people. Liberals MPs sounded "ohs" and "ahs," and Mr. Knowles said they shouldn't because "this is a very serious matter."

Mr. Douglas asked again if anyone other than government officials had participated in preparing the budget, other than delegations which usually make representations on the budget yearly.

'MANY PEOPLE'

"Certainly, Mr. Speaker," said Mr. Gordon. "I got advice from a great many people."

Mr. Douglas said the minister shouldn't answer if he was going to evade the question; he said he didn't mean "advice," but actual help in budget preparation.

Speaker Macnaughton said it was not proper for a member to insist on an answer from a minister. Mr. Douglas said he was simply taking note that Mr. Gordon wouldn't answer, except irrelevantly.

State Secretary J. W. Pickersill argued that "authorities" on the British parliamentary system were agreed that a minister was entitled to seek advice from any source he chose, so long as he took full responsibility for action taken.

MOSTLY OUT OF SIGHT

'Iceberg Budget'—Tax Man

By The Canadian Press

General approval of Finance Minister Gordon's intentions mixed with some doubt as to how effective they will be, featured initial reaction to Thursday night's budget.

Most observers felt they will have to wait a while before the results of the proposals become apparent—and here and there were sharp criticisms of some of the measures.

Ronald Robertson, director of the Canadian Tax Foundation, described the budget as like an iceberg—most of it still out of sight; and he was only one of the phrase-makers, as commentators tried for words that would describe the complex document.

H. Roy Crabtree, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, used the words "sweet and sour."

Manufacturers, he said, would be pleased with the faster and more generous depreciation on new assets, but the application of a sales tax to machinery used in production and on building materials "is both regressive and regrettable."

The budget contains several novel features, Mr. Crabtree commented, "but it does appear to rest on the basic premise that manufacturing industry is the key to Canada's economic growth and prosperity."

T. A. Somerville, president of the Canadian Construction Association, also approved the depreciation allowance but regretted the sales tax on building materials.

The 11-per-cent tax, he said, will likely increase building construction expenses by four to five per cent. He noted the proposals to counter the increased production expenses in the housing field, and commented: "More people will be able to take advantage of the National Housing Act, but they will pay more for the privilege in the long run."

BUDGET 'NON-VIOLENT'

Much of the comment centred around proposals to encourage Canadian ownership of Canadian companies and to discourage their sale to foreign interests.

In this regard D. S. Beatty, president of the Investment Dealers' Association of Canada, termed the budget "non-violent—one that won't cause any disruption." It mixed a "carrot" approach with deterrents and avoided any sudden reversals.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association expressed some apprehension. It said it is in Canada's interests to be hospitable to foreign investment, and added:

"It must be hoped that Mr. Gordon's up-and-down change in the withholding tax levels will not jeopardize this principle."

Howard D. Graham, president of the Toronto Stock Exchange, said the government should be given credit for trying to find a solution to the problem of keeping Canadian industries in Canadian hands.

George Keeping, chairman of the executive council of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said the measures to discourage take-overs of Canadian firms by foreign capital are "imaginative."

P. B. Reid, chairman of the board of the Montreal Stock Exchange, commented, however, that "the real problem has not yet been faced—that of balancing the budget."

ACCOUNTANT CRITICAL

He said the bonus to employers hiring persons 45 years or over would complicate hiring in the construction industry "and is not really constructive."

J. W. Abbott of Winnipeg, president of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants, was generally critical.

He described the budget as "one step, two steps," with Canadian industries granted a few concessions and non-Canadian business interests faced with new restrictions. He was disappointed that there were no concessions to wage earners, even to the extent of elimination of the three-per-cent base for medical deductions.

Donald MacDonald, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Labor Congress, said:

"This is a hodge-podge of proposals, not one of which is likely to be effective in increasing consumer demand and this is what we need." He said consumer demand could have been easily boosted by income tax relief in the lower brackets.

GRITS FIND 'TROUBLESOME BABIES'

More Tory Skeletons in Closet?

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Attacks on unemployment and foreign ownership of Canadian industry formed twin keynotes of Liberal Finance Minister Walter Gordon's first budget.

As a result, there was little immediate benefit for the individual taxpayer. But the budget offered prospects of increased employment opportunity and more chance to participate in investment in the long-term growth of Canada.

The theme was to expand Canadian industry, particularly Canada, and to enlarge the opportunities for Canadians to invest in the share capital of Canadian industry.

Mr. Gordon called it a "face the facts" budget and many of the facts, as he saw them, were political. He said the new Liberal government found many troublesome babies left on its doorstep by the former Conservative administration, and might yet find more "skeletons" in the closet.

Some observers characterized it as an accountant's budget, since it was so largely concerned with company share capital and capital investment write-offs.

READS SPOKE SLOWLY

Compared with former finance minister Donald Fleming's rapid-fire delivery of budget speeches running as much as 28,000 words, Mr. Gordon's more reflective pronouncement of the 10,000-word budget at a leisurely pace seemed to exemplify a careful analysis of the basic economic problems facing the country. Mr. Fleming spoke at about 150 words a minute, Mr. Gordon at 107.

Speaking in measured phrases, Mr. Gordon in his early remarks seemed to set the stage for possible increases in personal income or higher indirect taxes.

There seemed, however, to be a sign of relief in the Commons towards the end of his speech when all the tax changes were announced. Most MPs, reflecting the feelings of their constituents, found the tax changes were more technical than personally painful.

The budget, Mr. Gordon said, is designed to attack unemployment as the principal problem facing Canada today, by encouraging industrial expansion.

The Liberals propose to spark industrial development in areas of slow growth by granting new industry three years of tax exemption and permission to write off their capital investment in machinery and equipment in two years.

NEW PROGRAM IN HAND

The Conservatives had incentives for industry to increase sales, to introduce new products, and to modernize existing plants. These plans are being replaced by the new government's program.

Mr. Gordon also proposed tax devices to discourage sale of Canadian enterprises to foreigners and to encourage Canadian investors in the Canadian stock market.

A 30-per-cent tax will be applied to anyone in Canada who sells large blocks of voting shares in Canadian companies to foreign buyers.

At the same time, notice was served that in 1965 foreign owners of Canadian businesses will run into a 20-per-cent withholding tax on their earnings in Canada.

An incentive for foreign owners of Canadian enterprises to sell enough of their shares that the companies can become at least 25-per-cent Canadian-owned is proposed. This will encourage them to make available more shares for Canadian investors without losing control.

Mr. Gordon has adopted a two-level definition of Canadian control. Full Canadian control of a business enterprise has 51 per cent of its voting stock held by Canadians.

A junior level of Canadian interest in an essentially foreign business enterprise operating in Canada, looked upon with favor by the government, is one in which at least 25 per cent of the stock is Canadian-owned and one-quarter of the directors are Canadians not otherwise employed by the firm.

Modernized Tariff Schedule To Assist Textile Producers

OTTAWA (CP)—Amount of duty-free goods that Canadians can bring back from abroad—restricted since the austerity measures a year ago—are maintained unchanged in Thursday night's budget.

Finance Minister Gordon also announced that textile tariffs have been jugged in line with Tariff Board recommendations—leading to some increases, some decreases and a "modernized and simplified tariff schedule" of assistance to Canadian textile producers.

Mr. Gordon also carried out the government's previously-stated intention of federal legislation to prevent any attempt to use the Crown for recovery of import surcharges, imposed by the previous Progressive Conservative government as an other austerity measure.

Some court actions had been started on grounds the surcharges of five, 10 and 15 per cent were illegal. They were all removed last March 31.

While the Liberals in opposition claimed the surcharges were illegally imposed, they decided to stop court applications to test that theory.

Extension of austerity meaures for travellers returning from abroad is looked on as a continued curb on spending abroad.

Canadians returning from the United States will still be able to bring back up to $25 worth of goods duty free every four months—if they have stayed out of Canada 48 hours or more. Before the austerity, the limit was $100.

Canadians returning from non-U.S. points after at least 14 days abroad can bring back duty-free goods valued at $75 or less once a year. This doesn't include alcohol or tobacco. The pre-austerity limit was $300 once a year.

The large number of tariff revisions also include "certain compensatory concessions" on non-textiles, made as a result of the Geneva negotiations under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Others in a broad range covered lower tariffs or technical alterations in classifications.

Thin Time Dead Ahead For Fat Expense Tabs

By DAVE McINTOSH
OTTAWA (CP)—The tax collector apparently hasn't been eagle-eyeing as he should have been those tax deduction, by businessmen for winning and dining prospective customers.

He—that is, the revenue department—got another prod Thursday night to crack down on excessive tax-deductible "expense account living."

In his June 20, 1961, budget speech, the former Conservative finance minister, Donald Fleming, said:

"The government has no intention of allowing so-called expense account living to thrive and I am consequently serving notice that in future the allowance of expenses of this nature will be subject to more intensive scrutiny."

UNFAIR
Liberal Finance Minister Gordon said in his June 13, 1963, budget speech:

"I am sure that honorable members will agree that any excesses of expense account living are unfair to those who do not indulge in such practices. They should be stopped."

Mr. Fleming said: "The government has become increasingly concerned over the evidence of abuse by some taxpayers of the provisions for the deduction of amounts expended for the purpose of gaining income from a business."

Mr. Gordon: "We are particularly concerned about the way in which certain taxpayers seem to be able to eat, drink and entertain on a lavish scale on the basis of what is called a business expense but which is actually financed in large part at the expense of the public revenue."

Mr. Fleming tossed in a veiled threat that the government might introduce more stringent legislation to restrict further tax deductions allowed businessmen, for plying hoped-for customers with liquors, filet mignons and "companionship."

Mr. Gordon went a step further.
BIG CARS OUT
He said businessmen—this also applies to doctors, lawyers and travelling salesmen—won't be allowed to deduct the price of high-priced cars as a legitimate business expense.

Specifically, cars costing more than $5,000 can't qualify as of today as a capital cost allowance.

Target: Cutback In Interest Rates

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the chief aims of the new budget is to "encourage lower interest rates," Finance Minister Gordon told a press conference after his House of Commons presentation.

He said lower interest rates should be encouraged by both the $400,000,000 municipal development and loan fund and the removal of impediments to borrowing imposed by the former Conservative government.

5% CUT
In the new budget, Mr. Gordon reduced to 10 per cent from 15 the withholding tax on Canadian dividends paid abroad and made it possible for banks and trusts enjoying tax-free provisions abroad to avoid taxes on Canadian interest payments.

The finance minister also told reporters he does not regard his budget speech references to the limited tax dollar available to the federal government as a rejection of an ultimatum from Premier Lesage of Quebec, seeking a larger slice of tax revenues.

Mr. Gordon said he had received no ultimatum from Mr. Lesage, but had only read Mr. Lesage's statements in the press. The finance minister said that in his budget speech he made a moderate and friendly approach to the problem, hoping it could be discussed in that atmosphere.

Mr. Gordon denied reporters' suggestions that the accelerated payment of corporation taxes in the next two years amounts to an increase in taxes. It was simply a case of the corporations having to meet their debts sooner. Its only effect on the corporations would be to reduce the liquidity of their capital.

SEES NO PRICE RISE
He said the tax increases in his budget should have only a minor effect on price levels.

Mr. Gordon said he was confident the new 30-per-cent tax on the sale of large blocks of voting shares in Canadian corporations to foreign interests would have a decisive effect on future corporation take-overs.

"This kind of tax would have stopped in its tracks most of the take-overs of recent years," he said.

New Device To Goad Opposition

By JAMES NELSON
OTTAWA (CP)—The government is employing a rarely-used device in its new budget to encourage the Commons and Senate to adopt it quickly.

Normally, most budget proposals become effective automatically on the date the budget is presented to the Commons, or on some specific date in the future.

In Finance Minister Gordon's first budget, however, important proposals are to become effective only when Parliament passes them.

There are two reasons for adopting this rarely-used device, according to well-informed government sources. One is parliamentary, the other administrative.

Some details of the budget proposals have not been fully explored by the officials advising Mr. Gordon, and he was not able at the moment of giving the budget speech to present the Commons with detailed resolutions.

The parliamentary reason is, quite frankly in the view of the government, a goad to the opposition in the Commons.

If the opposition shows signs of wanting to prolong debate on the budget bills, the government can throw the blame on it for delaying the tax relief new industries in such areas as the Atlantic provinces will enjoy.

BIG YACHT OWNERS MUST PAY
OTTAWA (CP)—Materials used in the equipment and repair of pleasure boats of more than 10 tons no longer will be exempt from the 11-per-cent sales tax.

Finance Minister Gordon announced that the exemption will be restricted to materials used in equipment and repair of ships used exclusively for commercial purposes.

Bonus for Older Workers 'Risky'

By ROBERT RICE
OTTAWA (CP)—As an experiment, the government will subsidize employers who hire older workers from the ranks of the chronically unemployed this winter.

Finance Minister Gordon outlined the plan in his budget speech Thursday night as a move to reduce the hard core of the unemployed.

He said the federal treasury will pay half the wages of a jobless worker 45 years or older who is hired between next Nov. 1 and Jan. 31 and given substantial retraining on the job. The limit of the government contribution will be $75 a month for each such worker.

The subsidy could last as long as a year.
But not all older workers will qualify. To be eligible for federal help, the employer must hire a worker who has been out of a job for six of the previous nine months. In addition, the worker must not be collecting unemployment insurance or a pension.

The plan will not apply to workers hired by governments or municipalities.
LABOR RESERVED
Organized labor had some reservations about the novel bonus.

Donald MacDonald, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Labor Congress, warned that safeguards will be needed to make sure employers don't fire young workers just to hire older workers and qualify for the subsidy.

"Without safeguards there is a danger the plan might be used to shift the burden of unemployment from one group to another," he said.

In his speech, Mr. Gordon admitted the bonus idea is risky. But he promised careful administration and said adequate safeguards against abuses will be provided.

He set no over-all price tag on the older-worker bonuses, but indicated the subsidy would offset the high costs of welfare payments to chronically unemployed workers. The payments also could be balanced against the costs of lost production and the blight of misery and frustration felt by jobless workers.

Cuban Rebels Make Escape From Gunboat

MARATHON, Fla. (AP)—Ten Cubans, one wounded, limped ashore Wednesday from a boat they said they commandeered and told a story of a battle with one of Cuba's gunboats.

The wounded Cuban, with a bullet in his back, was taken to hospital.

The others—plus three men they said they took as hostages—were questioned by sheriff's officers at Marathon in the Florida Keys south of Miami.

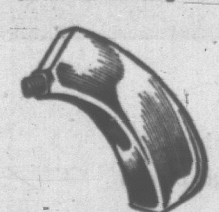

In Washington, the state department announced that the Cubans were being held for questioning by the United States customs bureau and the immigration service. This indicated a Washington suspicion that the anti-Castro Cubans were involved in a raid on Cuba.

The 10 set out in two boats with a machine-gun, shotgun and other small arms and ran afoul of a Cuban gunboat near Cayo Blanco, an island.

A fire-fight ensued. Two gunboat crew members were reported killed. Both the anti-Castro craft were sunk. Their crews scrambled ashore on Cayo Blanco and made their way across the island. There they found a fishing boat and prevailed on its crew of three to bring them to Florida.

Gambling, Bootlegging Protected by Police?

Victoria is a happy hunting ground for criminals the Archer Report shows and it implies the reason is lax and inefficient law enforcement—particularly in the gambling and bootlegging fields.

The city is way out in front of six other Canadian cities of comparable size in the amount of crime it "enjoys."

George Archer cites numerous allegations by reputable private citizens that gambling and bootlegging are rife in the city.

"The suggestion was put forward very strongly that neither illegal activity could continue unless tolerated, nay protected, by the police," he reported.

Mr. Archer makes no judgment on allegations, pointing out he was not commissioned to investigate corruption.

"I do assure you, however, that I am profoundly convinced that neither gambling or bootlegging—but particularly gambling—can continue in any city without the approval of the police."

"I wish to record that I accept no personal responsibility whatever in respect to these possibilities here. It would have been ridiculous to have attempted to embark on a so-called 'investigation' across an office desk."

He pointed out that any attempt to launch a half-baked investigation of the past could only result in another fiasco like the Mulligan inquiry in Vancouver.

"It was subsequent reorganization of the police force which killed organized vice in Vancouver and it may be well to consider that necessity here."

The startling statistics showed Victoria had far more serious crime than Brantford, Sherbrooke, Trois-Rivieres, Saint John, Oshawa and St. Johns—all of roughly comparable size and police strengths.

Mr. Archer said such statistics were the only clinical method of attempting to measure the efficiency of a police force.

Overall, Sherbrooke was the second worst city for crime and here are the Victoria figures, with Sherbrooke figures in brackets, for the latest available year, 1960:

Murder nil (1), attempted murder 1 (0), robbery 11 (1), burglary 516 (172), thefts 1,033 (809), assaults 78 (38). Saint John, N.B., the best overall city, had one murder, five robberies, 41 burglaries, 152 thefts and 30 assaults.

Last year's figures, available only for Victoria, show the city's crime boom is still continuing with one murder, nine robberies, 604 burglaries, 961 thefts and 149 assaults recorded.

He reported the "frightening" situation that the uniformed branch, directly under the police chief and deputy, were apparently responsible for gambling and bootlegging investigations and not the plainclothes branch.

"I was shocked in interviewing Detective Inspector Webb to learn that the detective division does not accept either bootlegging at all, or gambling in full, as their direct responsibility . . .

"I believe that if this extraordinary arrangement only is changed, my time has not been wasted."

"I must record that since my enquiry got under way at least one alleged hot spot of bootlegging was raided, a considerable quantity of liquors seized and a fine of $400 awarded against a Chinese employee!"

"This may or may not have some significance."

Mr. Archer said he devoted an entire week to interviewing private citizens "and the same places and people were named consistently and almost monotonously as the hot spots of gambling and bootlegging."

"My position in the matter was usually misunderstood in as much as it was expected that I would investigate . . . all of the allegations brought before me and in which it was alleged the police were involved, if not by acts of commission then certainly by omission."

"It will, I trust, be appreciated that if vice has indeed flourished within the jurisdiction of the Victoria city police, then the present survey could not possibly be hoped to produce the proof either of the offences nor of police collusion."

Province Preparing Hard Sell

By FRANK BUTTER

Fast action by the provincial government is expected to implement recommendations of the Archer Report on a metropolitan police force.

If necessary, legislation setting up a metro force will be ready for the next session of the House, in January, 1964.

But the first task facing the government and officials of the attorney-general's department is a hard selling job to convince the local municipalities that Mr. Archer is right.

It may mean a more gradual approach to amalgamation, and it could delay the legislation.

The first step will be formation of a special advisory committee by the attorney-general's department in co-operation with municipalities to chart the course.

This move is expected almost immediately, probably next week when Attorney-General Robert Bonner returns from a cabinet tour of the Kootenays.

The official word from Mr. Bonner's department today was only this:

"We are studying the recommendations in detail and have been doing so intensively since delivery of the report."

A spokesman for the department said he could make no other comment on the government's policy.

However, it was learned the department for some time has been concerned about local policing, particularly the high incidence of juvenile crime, and unofficially appears to endorse the Archer recommendations.

PREPARING LEGISLATION

It was also learned that unofficial work has already begun on the legislation necessary to create a full metro force.

The major obstacle is securing full municipal agreement without pushing too hard.

The government is not anxious to be put in the position of forcing amalgamation with an iron fist, although the Municipal Act does give it the power.

Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black has made no secret in the past of his approval of amalgamation of municipal services in general, but has preferred to try and let it come naturally.

A much more acceptable method of implementing Mr. Archer's ideas would be voluntary action on the part of at least the two largest municipalities—Victoria and Saanich—to start the ball rolling.

The first stage would be a mutual agreement to merge their police forces.

This would not necessitate legislation, although it would be available "on request," and might be introduced anyway to lay the ground rules for the future.

GRADUAL INTEGRATION

Other municipalities would then be drawn into the force gradually as they saw its advantages.

While Saanich initially let it be known it wanted no part of the Archer inquiry, the report makes it obvious that there was co-operation, because it goes into some detail and gives Saanich a key role in the proposed metro system.

The type of opposition expected is a "what will Saanich gain" attitude.

Government officials privately think it will gain a lot, pointing to the threat of increasing crime due to easy accessibility to the mainland through ferries, and Mr. Archer's conclusion that the Saanich force will have to be drastically increased in numbers.

If the Archer recommendations are accepted as government policy, a single police commission would be set up, with appointments by cabinet order upon the attorney-general's recommendations, as is now done in Vancouver.

At present, however, local commissioners are appointed upon the recommendation of the municipal affairs minister, and often the attorney-general's department is never consulted.

This has resulted in many appointments of people without adequate qualifications, a situation roundly condemned by Mr. Archer.

Sooner or later and for better or worse, British Columbia will follow the example of her neighbors south in banning the general sale of fireworks. When that happens, a handful of lively lads who ply between this province and the Pacific states will be deprived of a fast-buck gimmick.

In the pre-Hallowe'en period when fireworks may be bought legally here and in Vancouver, these operators stock up. Later, they transfer their combustibles over the border and unload them on the Fourth of July grey market.

Profits are high. By way of example, I'm told that a four-inch bomb which sells for a dime retail in Victoria fetches six bits in Portland.

This is small potatoes, though . . . a far cry from the years when sacked hooch and a fast hull powered with a brace of geared-down Liberties was more than one coast rat's passport to fortune.

It was one of those Brethren of the Coast who, on a sunhot wharf long ago, told me the wonderful legend of Drake's treasure.

Gale-buffed off Cape Flattery, the tale ran, Captain Frank sailed his Golden Hind in through Juan de Fuca mouth and around the south corner of Vancouver Island to the narrow waters.

On Gabriola Island—reputedly near the sea-carved Malaspina galleries—the lightened ship for the long haul to England by burying a trove of bar silver looted from a Spanish treasure galleon.

Later, a spoilsport historian insisted to me that Drake never got this far north.

But the legend has set a boy or two from each new Nanaimo generation digging harder than he ever did in his father's potato patch; and who, after all, can say for sure?

Recorded history is fallible. Perhaps the Master Thief of the Ocean Sea did

NEIL KIRBY
... dies instantly

Crash Kills Youth

A 20-year-old youth has been charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident in which a passenger in his car was killed and three other persons were injured early today.

Killed in the crash at Tolmie and Maple, two blocks east of Douglas Street, was Neil Kirby, 19, of 110 Medina, James Bay, an Empress Hotel gardener.

Larry E. Neil, 20, of 242 Glenairlie Drive, driver of the car in which Kirby was travelling, was remanded to Thursday when he appeared in Saanich court this morning.

Saanich Prosecutor Ken Murphy said another charge in all probability will be laid against Neil.

INJURED

Injured in the accident are Mrs. Ruth Kirkpatrick, 21, of 615 Kent, the driver of the other car involved, and two other passengers in Neil's car, Alan Robinson, 19, of 2843 Blackwood, and Allyn De Wolfe, 19, of 1018 Balmoral.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick and Robinson are reported to be in good condition, and De Wolfe is in fairly good condition today. All three are at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Saanich police said Neil was driving north on Maple Street and Mrs. Kirkpatrick was travelling west on Tolmie when the accident happened. The woman's car ended up in the northwest corner of the intersection facing back diagonally across the intersection.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick was lying on the boulevard beside her car when police arrived. She suffered pelvic injuries.

UP THE STREET

Police found the dead youth and the two injured ones lying about 100 feet farther up the street. There was no sign of the other car involved in the accident.

A man later came to the scene and identified himself as the driver.

The dead youth graduated from Esquimalt High School and had been employed at the Empress Hotel as a gardener. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. May Sauter, 110 Medina, his father, David Kirby, 808 Colville, a sister, Mrs. Patricia Doran, and a brother, Roy, both of Victoria.

Sands Mortuary Ltd. is in charge of funeral arrangements. It is not yet known if an inquest will be held.

Road Closure in Esquimalt

Esquimalt Road between Admirals and Canteen Road will be closed to traffic for repaving, commencing at 9 a.m. Monday. The work will take several days. Naval authorities have requested service and civilian personnel of HMC Dockyard to leave cars at home and use public transportation during this period, or to form car pools to ease traffic congestion.

Access to Dockyard will be via Lyall Street.

Protests Won't Bring Supps Back

Supplemental Grade 12 examinations in B.C. schools are out and the hue and cry raised by teachers, trustees and parent organizations isn't likely to bring them back, says deputy education minister Dr. J. F. K. English.

He told an interviewer today that as chairman of the provincial board of examiners, responsible for setting departmental examinations:

"I can say the protests will be considered but I don't hold out much hope that the board will change its mind."

The supplementals were designed to give students who fail Grade 12 university entrance exams in June a second try at passing them in August. They were eliminated after the University of B.C. announced it would not accept students who had to write supplementals.

PROTESTS HEARD

Various groups, including the B.C. Teachers' Federation and the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation have protested the elimination, saying students who do not intend going to university but need university entrance standing are being discriminated against.

Dr. English said the supps were dropped mainly because the university did not recognize them.

WITH DUE POMP AND DIGNITY

Impressive Ceremony Planned for University Day

Victoria becomes a university town July 1.

The following day, citizens of Greater Victoria and government officials will take part in an historic ceremony founding the University of Victoria which they built.

With due pomp and dignity—the dedication of the university and laying of the cornerstone of the library will take place on the new campus at Gordon Head. And college officials have urged all citizens to take part in the occasion.

The ceremony itself will start at 3 p.m., July 2, with an academic procession from the Student Union Building to the library, the hub of the new university.

Here Rev. William Hills will perform the dedication, and Lt. Gov. George Pearkes will lay the library cornerstone.

Congratulatory messages from universities and other interested organizations all over the world will be passed on to the newest independent academic institution at this time.

Chairman of the occasion will be the first chancellor of the university, until July 1 chairman of the Victoria College Council, Judge J. B. Clearihue.

After the ceremony, a reception and tea will be held back at the Student Union building.

Faculty and council members suddenly are realizing the significance of the university's foundation.

It will mean that the completely independent institution hereafter will grant its own degrees. Graduates of Victoria University will be recognized as such and accepted in academic institutions all over the world.

The local university will have its own president, yet to be selected.

The Victoria College Council will become overnight

the Board of Governors of the University of Victoria.

The university will have its own senate. At the moment the registrar's office is at work compiling the role of convocation comprising the electors of the remaining members of the senate.

Hugh Farquhar, executive assistant to the college principal, said today the ceremony marks the realization of what citizens, council and faculty members have been working for since college classes first were held near the present site of Central Junior High School.

University Development manager Floyd Fairclough said the provincial government which established the institution and the public who provided the funds for acquisition of the new site and the buildings, were responsible for the founding.

"But this is just the beginning. The door has been opened for a very great future," he said.

"We are at the starting gate, not the finish flag."

DEAR ABBY . . .

It's Your Move, Lady!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am at my wits' end and don't know which way to turn. My 34-year-old sister has never been married and is pregnant. She lives next door to us and has no intention of leaving town. My husband says he'll divorce me and clear out rather than be classed with her and her kind, or have our children related to her illegitimate one. He says if she were a teen-ager she could be excused, but not a 34-year-old woman with a good education and a good paying position. She's been around plenty and should have known better. I don't know why she doesn't just go away some place, put the child in an orphanage and hush the whole thing up. We'd be willing to help her if she'd just leave town. She says she'll have a better chance to marry with a child to offer—that all men love children. I say she's crazy. What can we do?

WITS' END

DEAR WITS: You can't order a 34-year-old woman to leave town, put her child in an orphanage and hush the whole thing up. If she doesn't care what people think about HER, she certainly won't care what they think of YOU! If there is any "moving" in such a sad case, I'm afraid the move must be yours.

DEAR ABBY: Is it old-fashioned for parents to expect their daughter's fiancé to ask them if it's all right with them if he marries their daughter? Our daughter has had a ring since last January. The young man has visited in our home since that time (he lives out of the city) and so far, he has not asked US if he could marry our daughter. Our daughter says that he has asked HER, and she said yes, and we shouldn't be so formal. Do you think we are expecting too much of a fellow who thinks he is old enough to get married?

ONLY HER PARENTS

DEAR ONLY: Even though your daughter has already tipped her mitt, and there is no hand to ask for—she should tell the young man to ask you anyway.

DEAR ABBY: My boss is the pawing and pinching kind. At lunch time he races to get a seat next to me at the counter and then he starts in. He is forever putting his hands on my arm, my shoulder, and even on my face! He sometimes presses his cheek against mine. I am afraid someone will see us and get the wrong impression. When some innocent remark is made, he always manages to turn it into something suggestive about sex. He never offers to pay for my lunch—he just wants a free "thrill." How can I get rid of him and keep my job? A good job is hard to find.

OFFICE WORKER

DEAR WORKER: You will never convince me that a job is THAT hard to get. Give the octopus your notice and vamoose.

Test Tube Mink Will Arrive Soon

NEW YORK (AP) — Counterfeit mink, the beleaguered husband's dream, will be a reality this fall.

In the garment district here Lou Nierenberg is currently preparing thousands for ultimate circulation across the U.S.

The forged minks, faithfully duplicating the rippling, narrow striplings of the let-out female pelts, are calculated to fool at least a myopic wife, and neighbors at 20 paces.

In the past man has attempted to satiate the mink tastes of women with less than mink pocketbooks by dyeing the pelts of squirrels and muskrats. Although these coats were cheaper, the prices were still fur coat-type.

This time the mink coats come from test tubes, and the tariff is no more than a good cloth coat (which these are).

They are lightweight, won't change color by oxidation, and do not require winter storage. No moths, not even the female moths, like non-mink mink.

Ribout-Briggs Vows Heard

Rev. H. Turpin heard marriage vows recently when they were exchanged by Margaret Roxie (Bonnie) Briggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Briggs, 1154 Esquimalt Road, and Noel Floyd Ribout, son of Mrs. H. MacDonald, 1533 Gladstone Avenue.

Bride entered Esquimalt United Church on the arm of her father. She wore a floor-length gown of white lace over taffeta.

Her veil was held by a sparkling coronet of rhinestones and pearls. Red roses and white carnations were in her cascade bouquet.

Bride's sisters, the Misses Judy and Bari Briggs, were bridesmaids. They wore pale pink nylon over taffeta gowns with matching accessories and carried bouquets of yellow rosebuds and white carnations.

Flower girls, Miss Stephanie

Briggs and Miss Vicki Watson carried baskets of the same flowers and wore short frocks of pale blue with white accessories.

Best man was David Snape. Ushers were James Goguen and Robert Moore.

Pink and white streamers decorated the church hall for the reception following the wedding. Bride's table was centred by a three-tier cake, flanked by red rosebuds.

Proposing the toast to the bride was Tom Flannigan. Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. D. Watson and John Rutan of Nanaimo and Mr. and Mrs. E. Thompson of Duncan.

Bride donned a beige suit with brown accessories and corsage of red rosebuds for the honeymoon trip to Yellow Point Lodge and Vancouver. Couple will make their home in Nanaimo.

Grocery Shower

Gifts of grocery items were in a decorated grocery cart when Mrs. A. Bennett entertained in her Carey Road home in honor of Saturday bride-elect, Miss Judith Ann Platt. Red roses and lily of the valley were in corsage presented to the honor guest, while her mother, Mrs. Hugh E. Platt and groom-elect's mother, Mrs. Earl Hensworth received pink roses and lily of the valley. Also present were Mrs. M. Dickinson, Mrs. J. Pette, Mrs. B. Giles, Mrs. G. Johnson, Mrs. M. Nicholls, Mrs. O. Anderson, Mrs. L. Wells, Mrs. George Gorton, Mrs. E. McCaghey, Mrs. L. Seibel, Mrs. Gordon Gorton and the Misses Diane Daly, Susan Platt and Elizabeth Anderson. Large baskets of white gladioli, pink carnations and white stocks decorated St. Mark's Church for the afternoon ceremony in which Susan Ann Elizabeth Lomas and Cpl. Charles Alexander Gibson, Work Point Barracks, were united in marriage. Canon R. Willis heard the vows. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Victor Lomas of Victoria and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Gibson of Agassiz, B.C.

Pink roses and white carnations were in the cascade bouquet which the bride carried. Her gown was fashioned with a dainty skirt of organza posed over a slim sheath in ballerina length. Swiss rose appliques highlighted the bodice, sleeve points and skirt. She was given in marriage by her father.

Margarine Tax 'Discriminatory'

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Consumers' Association of Canada Thursday called for removal of an 11 per cent federal tax on margarine.

The tax was termed "discriminatory since there is no federal tax on any other food," the resolution says. The tax was a burden on low-income families.

And "margarine is a nutritious, popular spread, used extensively by consumers."

In other resolutions during a busy, second day of the three-day annual meeting, delegates asked:

The federal government to continue investigation of increased sugar prices;

Association branches to work towards introduction of regular foot check-ups as part of public school medical examinations in localities where no such program exists;

Support of programs against water pollution;

The justice and trade and commerce departments to look into a practice in price labelling on certain items;

That the CAC inform its membership regularly on work being done by the federal government involving nuclear fallout;

That the association stress to the manufacturer "the importance of functional design in upholstery and drapery fabrics."

20,000 MEMBERS

The 200 delegates and observers attending the meeting represent a national membership of about 20,000.

They worked through a variety of reports, discussions and resolutions before breaking up for an afternoon reception at government house and an annual dinner later.

At the dinner, R. D. Wolfe of Toronto called on delegates to "insist upon participation and representation at all levels of the food industry."

Mr. Wolfe is president of Oshawa Wholesale Limited which supplies IGA stores in Toronto and central Ontario and is a past president of the Canadian Fruit Wholesalers Association.

He suggested "we are now in the initial stages of a trend which will divide the retail food industry down the middle and bring about the rebirth of the specialty food store."

He also predicted an end to stamp plans, premium plans, cents-off plans and buy-one-get-one-free deals.

No Roads Made Moving Difficult

By PAT DUFOUR

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nunn had to place boards before the wagon that held their household belongings when they moved into the redbrick house that Mr. Nunn built on Constance Ave. in Esquimalt.

Of course, that was well over 60 years ago, but to Mrs. M. Leeman it seems "as if it were yesterday."

She recalls, "I remember it well because we moved on my birthday. And, for six months after we moved in we had to carry pails of water from the waterworks on the corner of Admirals Road because there was no water piped to our street."

The "old days" are especially vivid to Mrs. Leeman this week. Her sister, Mrs. Ellen Bullows-Smith arrived from Sydney, Australia, a few days ago after an absence of 58 years.

Since her arrival, the two sisters and a brother, Mr. W. Nunn, have been indulging in a veritable orgy of reminiscing and "catching up with things."

They came from England with their parents when Mr. Nunn was sent out to serve at Work Point Barracks as a soldier with the Imperial Army.

SPECIAL PARTY

Wednesday, Mrs. Bullows-Smith was guest of honor when her sister gave a tea party and invited Mrs. E. Ridout and Mrs. J. Hamilton who were bridesmaid and flower girl at the visitor's wedding at St. Saviour's Church in 1904. Another old friend, Mrs. Victor Rolfe was also there to join in the chorus of "Do you remember when?"

Although the daughter of an army man, Mrs. Bullows-Smith gave her heart to a British sailor, who was then master-at-arms at the Esquimalt naval base.

A year after their marriage, they were off to England where they spent six years in Plymouth before Mr. Bullows-Smith and his wife set sail for Sydney where he volunteered to serve at Garden Island, a naval detention establishment.

All her years away from Canada have endowed Mrs. Bullows-Smith with an enchanting accent that's a combination of "Aussie" and English. Also on the credit side are four children, and eight grandchildren.

The 79-year-old grandmother has come armed with a pictorial history of the Australian side of the family that makes a fair exchange with the scrapbook of "memories" that is being well-thumbed by the happy trio.

Australian lamb has become house full of orchids and a fence of radiant poinsettias. "But," she admits, "I've never seen anything so wonderful as the hanging flower baskets. They're an inspiration."

How long will she stay? "About three months or as long as my money holds out."

By the determined looks in the eyes of her brother and sister, it would appear that her visit could last much longer.

a very personal thing for her sister and brother. Mrs. Bullows-Smith regales them with details of an 8,000-acre sheep and wheat ranch which one son-in-law and daughter own.

Proudly she reports details of this year's crop which includes 6,000 bales of Merino wool and 7,000 three-bushel bags of wheat.

Swears Mrs. Leeman: "I'll never eat Australian lamb again without wondering if it came from their farm!"

With true local pride, Mrs. Leeman and her brother have taken their sister to see some of Victoria's gardens.

Impressed, but not overawed, Mrs. Bullows-Smith returns the compliment by showing pictures of her home where her "prizes" are a garden what not to wear. Please ask the dress manufacturers why they make flare skirts in large prints in dress sizes 20 1/2 and up, and in junior sizes make slim skirts and use plain colors.

We large women cannot find a flattering dress style let alone plain colors.

A. It does seem that so many dresses in large sizes are made of material with large prints. The extremely slim skirt may not be the most flattering to the overweight woman, but certainly a full one isn't either. Perhaps the gored skirt is the most becoming.

Q. "What sort of lights should I use when applying my make-up?"

A. Of course, the ideal thing would be to make up in the same sort of light you are going to be in when you appear in your make-up. However, this is virtually impossible for most women. It is usually best to use plain white bulbs, plenty bright. The lights at the sides of your dressing table should be about on a level with your nose. It is also best to have a light above your head too. Go to a window and test your make-up if you are going out during the day-time.

Q. "I read your column every day and have gotten lots of help from it; but I have a problem you have never mentioned. My eyebrows and lashes stay the same length. Why don't they grow? My hair grows very fast and people are always telling me that my hair is so thick and beautiful."

A. Your hair only grows to a certain length and then stops. The same is true of your lashes except that they do not grow so long, thank heavens. Gentle massage of the lids at the roots of the hair, using one of the creams designed for this, may promote the growth of the lashes.

Q. "If a man or a 20-month-old baby uses one part in his hair, should it be on the right or the left side?"

A. Be it man or baby, it depends on the individual. A side part is good for the wide or large face. Usually one side of a man's head has thicker hair than the other. Let this influence you. Which is most flattering?

Love That Luscious Lamb However It Is Prepared!

By PENNY SAVER

Here Penny sits with her mouth watering, trying to decide which looks the most delicious—the roast leg of lamb surrounded by succulent sweet potatoes, a lamb chop served with fresh green peas and mint-sprinkled potato, the pot of stew bulging with tasty hunks of lamb, or juicy chunks of lamb dripping between cherry tomatoes and mushrooms on shish kebabs sticks. Unfortunately, I don't have the actual dishes in front of me, but the pictures are good enough to eat. They are all in a 22-page booklet that gives innumerable details about how to handle lamb.

There are recipes, tips on storing and the lamb, roasting times and temperatures, how to carve the different cuts, and the correct seasonings and garnishes.

There is no charge for the booklet but you must phone Penny for the address to write to in order to obtain it.

It is certainly timely, as fresh Salt Spring Island lamb is just beginning to appear in local meat markets. Proprietor of one shop Penny was in today told me that during the past week, two people have come into his store to buy lamb to take home with them to Vancouver.

One was a housewife just finishing her vacation who has found that his is the only store where she can buy fresh "decent-priced lamb." Another was a gentleman only in Victoria for the day who had bought some lamb in the shop last year around this time. He zipped up to the store in a taxi just before leaving to catch his plane home.

Prices in the shop are 89 cents a pound for steaks; 98 cents for legs of lamb; 75 cents for shoulders, and $1.49 for the best loin lamb chops.

We can't let those Vancouverites run off with all the good lamb! And you certainly won't want them to after you've read the booklet with all those different ways of preparing it.

Call Penny at 382-3131 for the address of booklet and place to buy lamb.

Exquisite Gown Chosen by Bride

Diamonds and pearls shimmered on the front panel of lace that enhanced the exquisite gown of white nylon sheer over taffeta worn by Ann Marie Burnett for her marriage to Dallas Judge McClung. Sleeves ended in lily points and the full skirt had a bow as back highlight. Appliques of matching lace were on the chapel length veil of nylon tulle that misted from a coronet of pearl orange blossoms. Crescent bouquet of lavender-toned gladioli was centred with a white rose. Jewelry was a culture pearl necklace and earrings, gift of the groom.

Campbell and Joan Hoffman, the bride's cousin. They wore white carnation bandeaus and carried matching crescent bouquets.

Art Kingsley played for dancing at the reception, held in the Flamingo Room of the Crystal Garden. Robert Agnew proposed the toast to the bride. Lavender stocks and fern, together with white candles in silver candelabra, flanked the three-tier wedding cake on the bride's table. Leaving for a honeymoon trip up Island, the bride donned a flamingo-toned print silk dress, beige top coat with toning accessories and flame-shade carnation corsage. Newlyweds are now living at 1002 Caledonia Avenue.

CONCLAVE WEDNESDAY

Three Roads Face Cardinals at Rome

By JAMES M. LONG

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The next Pope almost certainly will be an Italian, probably will not be a member of the Vatican Curia, and likely will be between 63 and 73 years old.

But whether he will be one of the so-called progressives following the road opened by Pope John, or one of the conservatives who oppose such a course will be the big question before the conclave of cardinals opening here next Wednesday. He might be a moderate belonging to neither group.

The main guesses from high church sources are these:

Giovanni Cardinal Urbani, who succeeded Pope John as patriarch of Venice, and Giacomo Cardinal Lercaro, archbishop of Bologna. Urbani is 63, youngest of the favorites. Lercaro is 71. Both are progressives but neither is regarded as among the more militant of the liberals.

Next as possible choices are Carlo Cardinal Confalonieri, and Giovanni Battista Cardinal Montini, archbishop of Milan.

Confalonieri, 69, a moderate between the progressive and conservative groups, might be chosen for just that reason, in compromise. But he is a member of the Vatican Curia, and Curia cardinals seldom have become Popes in recent years. Montini, 65, is a progressive, a former Vatican pro-secretary of state, and a man who even at the last conclave, when he was not yet a cardinal, was regarded as a strong possibility for the papacy.

The election of a non-Italian is regarded as highly unlikely. The last non-Italian Pope was the Dutch Adrian VI, elected in 1522.

But if a non-Italian is elected, the most likely prospects are said to be:

1. Eugene Cardinal Tisserant, long time French member of the Curia. He is 79 and dean of the Sacred College. He has been suggested as a prospect if a deadlock develops between progressives and conservatives.

2. Gregory Peter Cardinal Agagian, 61-year-old Armenian prelate of the congregation for propagation of the faith, who hopes, as Pope John did, for reunion with the separated eastern churches.

3. Leo Jozef Cardinal Suenens, 58, archbishop of Malines-Brussels, an outstanding progressive.

4. Franziskus Cardinal Koenig, 57-year-old archbishop of Vienna, a language expert, progressive, and Pope John's envoy for preliminary negotiations with Poland, Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

SOLUTION MONDAY

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Peter Ustinov gravely wagged his beard a recent afternoon in his apartment "way uptown on Park Avenue and delivered the profundity that we've come to a new era in history: the Age of Corruption.

"Nobody is quite telling the truth these days," observed the star, author and director of "Photo-Finish," a man so versatile he even has time to think. "Society is pretty corrupt without knowing it."

The battery on his car was low and he complained to the head man at his garage that the radio was always on at a different wave length than where he left it. Ustinov said, with a deep chuckle,

"That very honest and very honorable man said, 'Well that's the kind of labor you're getting nowadays! How often do I tell them, 'If you're gonna play the man's radio, leave it on the same station, so the man can find it!'"

Ustinov's small daughter was practising on the piano—but quietly—in a nearby room, as we played the 20 Question Celebrity Quiz.

Q: Is there really a decline in morals?
A: Not in morals... but in morality. An Italian lawyer was telling me it's stupid to put down the real value of your property there for taxing purposes. The tax inspectors will assume everybody is under-cutting and will boost it anyway. That new kind of business morality is in effect in every country, I'm afraid.

Q: What do you think of the movie actress practice of many, many marriages?
A: I'm not sure whether the French practice... if you're very attracted to somebody and you decide to take advantage of the situation in an unofficial way... is not as moral, as swearing to love, honor and obey till death do you part—several times in your life.

Q: You've said you can't get upset about nude scenes in movies?
A: I don't think there's anything so extraordinary about the human body. We've all seen ourselves in the bathroom. I don't see why we shouldn't see somebody else.

Q: And that prudery and vice are allied?
A: The Victorian period was one of the dirtiest in history and they were all terribly overdressed. That's when men got titillated looking at a fine pair of ankles.

Q: Do you believe in life after death?
A: I don't know. I don't think it is easy for human beings to survive without a sense of impending adventure when you get old.

Q: Do you have any faith in astrology?
A: I have no faith in mediums or table-turnings or when you suddenly get Thomas a Becket giving you some urgent instruction. But I was pleased when I heard that Charles Chaplin and I had the same birthday.

Q: What was the most satisfactory moment of your life?
A: I took myself in hand when I was a boy. I was very timid. And without enjoying, I went to the swimming pool and I dropped off the top diving board, to prove something to myself. It hurt abominably because I have never been very slim.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: There's one local executive who's so busy, we're told, that he has his secretary do his singing along with Mitch.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Progress, says Paul Light, is wonderful. Thirty years ago only hoboes cooked their meals outdoors.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Some people never forget a kindness, particularly one done by themselves."—Moliere.

Mother's Day 7 1/2 Miles Long

VANCOUVER (CP)—How far does an average housewife travel while doing her chores—cleaning, dusting, washing and chasing after the children?

Mrs. Jean Morris participated in an experiment to provide an answer. Wearing a pedometer, a little gadget that measures the miles, she followed her normal routine.

Her day started at 7:30 a.m. when she made breakfast for husband Rae and the children, all under school age. She did the dishes, made the beds and drove the children to nursery school.

During the morning she cleaned her father's upstairs suite, did the bedrooms, bathroom and three loads of laundry in the basement. She also ducked next door to water the neighbors' plants.

After picking up the kids at noon, Mrs. Morris made lunch, vacuumed the floors and cleaned the windows. Then came the evening meal for the family, more dishes and a final trip to the cellar.

Her total walking distance—7 1/2 miles.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions or select to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Jay Branegan, 12, Medis, Penna., for his question:

What is a vicuña?

The Spanish found this well-dressed animal in Peru, and since they knew no other animal like him, they adapted the name the Incas had given him. In Spanish, the word vicuña has a wavy line over the letter n, which means it should be pronounced as if it were ny. The best-dressed animal of the Andes is called the vi-coon-ya.

The vicuña—pronounced vi-coon-ya—is actually a camel, though you would never guess this from looking at him. He has no camel's hump, and he is only three feet at shoulder level. But he is more like the remote ancestors of the Camelidae family than are the bulky camels which live in the deserts of Asia and Africa.

The Camelidae family got its start in North America. Their cud-chewing ancestors, very much like the vicuña, lived here some 40 million years ago along with the ancestors of the horses—which were then no bigger than Lassie. Some of the ancient camels reached Asia and Africa where living conditions were hard. They became bigger and developed humps to store food and special stomachs to store water.

The camels that reached South America remained more like their ancestors. They are the llamas, the guanacos and the shy, silken-coated vicuñas. A few vicuñas have been tamed, but most of them live free in the wild state where they graze on the lofty slopes of the Andes. Small herds range through Ecuador, Chile and Peru.

The boss of the herd is a male vicuña who takes responsibility for six to 12 wives and their children. He is a devoted guardian and keeps constant watch over his well-dressed family. While they graze, he observes the distant surroundings from a high pinnacle. When danger threatens, he utters a shrill whistle of warning, and the mothers and children then lope off to safety. Being camels, they jog along first on both left feet, then both right feet.

Softer Than Cashmere

Cumpli or vicuña cloth is woven from the vicuña's fine fibres, but not nearly as fine as the real, silken-soft vicuña cloth.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Kim Frisinger, age 10, of Rochester, N.Y., for his question:

Where do you find an elephant's graveyard?

Elephants have mighty tusks made of precious ivory, and ivory hunters search in India and Africa where elephants live in the wild. The hunters dream of a lost graveyard where old elephants are said to go when time comes for them to die. Here the hunters hope to find tons of precious ivory, just waiting to be picked up off the ground. But experts say that these ivory dreams are useless.

As far as we know, there are no elephant graveyards, and old elephants do not wander off to die in some special place. Most of them die in the hot, steamy jungles. Their great bodies are devoured by vultures or soon decay. In the rainy seasons their huge bones are soon covered with mud—along with their precious ivory tusks.

Student Workers Get Raise In Pay For Book-Packing

Greater Victoria School Trustees' consciences were bothering them because of the pittance they have been paying pupils who help pack up school books at the end of the year.

Wednesday night the finance committee recommended the young helpers be paid 75 cents an hour instead of 60 cents, the price set when the students were first hired for this kind of work eight years ago.

Trustees' guilt arose from the fact that pupils doing the same work for summer schools, and college students hired in the summer by the department of education, receive up to $1.09.

Late Sailings Okayed

Two late sailings per week between Departure Bay and Horseshoe Bay will be operated from June 28 to Sept. 2, the B.C. Toll Authority Ferry System announced Thursday.

The added sailings on Friday and Sundays will leave Departure Bay at 10:40 p.m. and 1:20 a.m., and Horseshoe Bay at 11:20 p.m.

Community groups have been urging this ever since the Black Ball Ferry System was purchased by the province.

HYDROFOIL BOATS like the one shown have been mentioned often as ideal for a fast Vancouver Island-mainland service. The U.S. navy is making test runs on Puget Sound with this boat. Its underwater wings lift it out of the water and it skims the surface at 50 miles per hour and better. It is 115 feet long and made of aluminum by Boeing Company. The boat is powered by two gas turbines of 3,100 horsepower each. It also has a 600 h.p. diesel for hull-borne operations. It is a patrol subchaser.

ISLAND ROUNDUP

Announcement on Jingle Pot Soon

NANAIMO (CP) — Comox MLA Don Campbell has called a public meeting for next Wednesday to make an announcement about the proposed overpass at Jingle Pot Road and Island Highway in nearby Wellington.

CAMPBELL RIVER — The tri-weekly, one-day scenic tour of historic Nootka Sound is to be resumed this summer. Commencing June 29, the special tourist cruise will operate every Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday throughout the summer months.

Passengers leave the Coach Lines depot at Campbell River at 10 a.m. and travel over the Campbell River-Gold River Rd.

The bus route skirts the lower shores of Buttle Lake, then through Strathcona Park and along the scenic Gold River gorge to Muchalat (Gold River).

From there the passenger Mr. Uchuk III takes the sightseers down Muchalat Inlet, then across Nootka Sound to Friendly Cove.

The cruise lasts five hours.

CAMPBELL RIVER — Dr. Bob Lee has been named head of the Raiders Quarterback Club. Vice-president is Ira Green. Other officers are: Secretary, Bill Chambers; treasurer, Earl Parker; directors, Jack Ross, Jack Caldwell and Bob Hainsworth.

Annual banquet will be held in July with members of the B.C. Lions as guests.

NANAIMO — Nanaimo hospital board is violating its mandate by selling the old hospital here, Joe Sutton, president of the Nanaimo Old Age Pensioners' Association, said Thursday.

He claimed that the people approved construction of the Nanaimo Regional Hospital on the basis the old hospital would be turned into a chronic care institution.

"Business interests want to tear down the old building to clear the way for a new private hospital," he said. "The hospital board has no right to sell without consulting the entire association," he said.

The hospital board recently announced the sale of the old hospital and construction of a new private hospital would best serve taxpayers' interests.

NANAIMO — Still in poor condition at St. Joseph's Hospital, Victoria, is Gordon Rasmussen, seven.

He has been unconscious for 33 days.

The boy suffered severe head injuries in a Mother's Day accident when the bicycle he was riding at a neighbor's hit a car stop in a carport, and he was pitched onto a wooden patio deck.

He is the son of James Rasmussen, a worker at Harmac Pulp Mill in Nanaimo.

CAMPBELL RIVER — A proposal to dredge the Campbell River is being viewed with concern by the Fish and Game Club.

The Chamber of Commerce is supporting a bid to dredge a mile and a half section of the river to permit installation of needed barge facilities.

Fish and Game Club members feel salmon spawning grounds might be ruined by dredging and will ask the federal fisheries department to look into the matter.

DUNCAN — Michael G. Crosby of Princeton, was fined $75 in police court here for impaired driving.

CAMPBELL RIVER — Five local athletes chalked up wins in the Upper Island Legion track meet and won themselves a trip to the B.C. finals in Vernon.

John Carpenter, 220 and shotput; Ron Erickson, 440; Ken Ridgeway, 880; Jimmy Howard, high jump, and Alan Renass, discus, were the winners.

Local branch of the Legion is considering outfitting the boys in new jackets and slacks for the Vernon meet.

CAMPBELL RIVER — Construction of a new B.C. Airlines' terminal is underway at the Spit Airbase.

The new terminal will be fully modern, with the latest appointments, and a large parking area. Removal of passenger operations from the present hangar building will also result in expanded and improved workshop facilities.

Islanders Consider Sign Attack

VANCOUVER (CP) — Irrate citizens on Mayne Island, 25 miles south of here, are planning a moonlight raid on the first commercial billboard to be erected along Active Pass.

"None of us has any intention of living with this blatant piece of commercialism all summer," said an islander. "But we might not bring out our axes until Premier Bennett has a look at the sign too."

"If the sign is not taken down or cut down shortly, we may line all Active Pass with signs—enough of them to make even the premier take a second look."

The sign, 12 feet high and 32 feet long, was installed recently by D. Ray Mitchell, operator of the Capilano suspension bridge in North Vancouver. It beckons to tourists to visit the bridge.

Mariners going through the pass report the first blow has been struck—the sign has a square hole in it.

Stabbing Done In Self-Defence Accused States

NANAIMO (CP) — A slightly-built Japanese told an Assize Court jury Thursday that six-foot, 195-pound Robert Lee McDermott threw him around a Ucluelet Lodge hotel room before he grabbed a knife and stabbed McDermott to death.

Hiroshi Hama, 23, charged with non-capital murder, was testifying in his own defence. "I was in real fear," said Hama. "I don't know how many times he threw me over his head. I hit a radiator several times."

"I was scared for my life. He had his hands on my throat choking me. I don't remember how many times I stabbed McDermott," he told Mr. Justice J. K. Collins.

Dr. J. B. Lynch testified McDermott had a blood alcohol content of .24 and Hama .14 March 19.

"McDermott would be little better than an orang-outang—and near berserk," the doctor said. "He would even be lacking the ability to know he had been wounded."

"The wounds would only irritate him further."

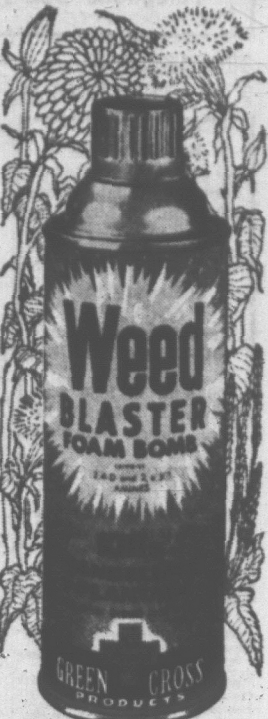

Hama said he was too scared to call for help when McDermott, 30, started to hit him.

J. R. Charney of Pitt Meadows told the court he had been drinking at a party in the hotel room when Hama asked McDermott for "a piece of a cigarette" (a Japanese expression meaning a whole cigarette).

McDermott broke a cigarette in half and gave it to him. "I saw Hama menace McDermott with a beer bottle and a lamp that Jack Reid took away from him."

Defence lawyer David Sturdy brought out in cross-examination that Reid, another party-goer, had seen McDermott pick up Hama and throw him across the room.

The trial goes into its fifth day today.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

The difference between two dramatic efforts Wednesday was the difference between black and white. Wayne and Shuster made their TV dramatic debut in their own adaptation of James Thurber's fantasy 'Many Moons'.

It was so tragic it was funny. Besides, fantasies are not meant to be taken seriously.

Why do all comedians want to do something serious? They spend their lives perfecting the art of making people laugh then sink into the abyss of failure with an attempt at drama. The one exception who comes to mind immediately is multi-talented Jackie Gleason. His talents are so vast he is regarded highly in all departments.

While watching 'Many Moons' a suspicion crept over me that W and S were pulling our collective legs and turning the table on viewers who expected true thespianism.

If this is not what was intended then they failed miserably and should stick to the comedy art form they've made universally popular.

On the other hand, the final curtain was rung down on the U.S. Steel Hour which had been produced by the Theatre Guild for eight years on radio and 10 on TV.

The presentation of James M. Barrie's 'The Old Lady Shows Her Medals,' with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne was one of the finest TV hours of drama seen in recent years.

The husband and wife team made one of their rare television appearances a memorable one. Lunt, as the personable narrator, showed all his usual confidence and poise, qualities which characterize his long and brilliant career. But the night belonged to Lynn Fontanne as she delivered a superb performance as the Old Lady. Her subtle underplaying and tremendous sense of timing were an absolute joy to watch.

Blain Fairman who won the Best Actor Award at the B.C. Regional finals of the Dominion Drama Festival recently was also vastly impressed.

Fairman said: 'It is too often we see stage actors on TV unable to adapt to the more intimate style, both vocally and physically, demanded by the medium. Wednesday, two of the greatest actors the legitimate stage has ever seen had no such problem. It was the best TV I've seen in a long time.'

This hour of drama will be sorely missed.

What more can be said about Julie and Carol at Carnegie Hall?

Raves were written when Julie Andrews and Carol Burnett first presented the hour-long smash hit of comedy and song. The show is more enjoyable each time out.

Archer Probe Urges Metro Police Force

By JOHN MIKA

Merging of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Central Saanich police into a metro force, covering almost the entire area from Saanichton to Colwood, was recommended by the Archer Report released today.

Retired police trouble-shooter George Archer, who made a survey of the various departments, recommended to Attorney-General Robert Bonner a step-by-step program for establishing the metro force:

1. Immediately prepare legislation;
2. Set up an advisory committee of provincial and municipal officials to function in the initial stages;
3. Create the metro force on enactment of legislation;
4. Establish a single police commission;
5. Relieve RCMP of duties in Colwood area.

Esquimalt Not In Merger Plan

Esquimalt was excluded from the metro proposal for now only because its peculiar police-fire department could not fit into an out-and-out modern police force.

Mr. Archer also examined the Sidney and North Saanich areas but concluded they should be left out because the prospect is they will remain rural for a long time.

Combining the present forces would give a department of 143 policemen and 18 civilian employees but this would be boosted to 180 policemen if the report's recommendations for immediate manpower increases were adopted by the various municipalities.

Metro Force Headquarters In City

Headquarters of the proposed metro force would be the city police station after extensive renovations were made.

The present Saanich police building would become the magistrate's court for the whole area, removing it from the city police building.

Oak Bay police quarters would be retained as a station and possibly the Central Saanich and Sidney police quarters would be too.

Efficiency More Vital Than Cost

"The establishing of an efficient police operation on a long-term basis is the objective and in my opinion this transcends all objections," he said.

"Local pride, while a desirable thing and a potent force otherwise, should not be permitted to block the development of a metro force for the Saanich peninsula."

At another point, he observed: "That there should be six police authorities in this smallish area is at first incredible — not incredible that they were started in the pioneer days... but that they should have prevailed until now."

The 15 benefits:

1. Single command ensuring immediate deployment of personnel to meet day to day requirements.
2. Immediate availability to all of information as to criminals, their movements, vehicles, projects, associates, etc.
3. One headquarters overhead cost in place of five.
4. Availability to all of modern technical and scientific equipment.

City Shakeup Is First Step

Mr. Archer stressed the need for re-organizing the city department as a first step towards a metro force because of dislike by the outside departments for the present Victoria setup.

"I am convinced that one of the most powerful factors militating against the other municipal police departments joining together in a voluntary way to form a metro force is their reluctance to join Victoria under the present conditions there."

"It will therefore be necessary that my separate recommendations in that respect be implemented, or at least commenced, before any improvement can be hoped for in the rigid atmosphere which at present exists."

"May I add in this and any other comments, I wish, of course, to exclude the RCMP entirely."

"They traditionally are anxious and willing to relinquish such portions of their present responsibilities in the two detachments concerned (Sidney and Colwood) as may be decided as increasing efficiency in the picture as a whole."

"A notable feature and a largely contributing factor which must inevitably disappear is the 'family' atmosphere of these small groups."

"This has been wisely fostered and the most made of it. Unfortunately, and even now, these departments are developing beyond the size when such techniques can be applied."

Mr. Archer pointed out pay, fringe benefits and working conditions in the various forces vary because of the artificial boundaries but these inevitably will disappear.

Lack of Training Noted

Among bad points he cited lack of training, inspections and promotional opportunities as well as the parochialism caused by separate police commissions.

"A factor common to all these municipalities is the desperate lack of training on all levels."

"Excepting for Victoria, where a half-hearted attempt has been made in a spasmodic way, there is no training whatever provided at the recruit level and little otherwise."

Commissions Shouldn't Interfere

He repeatedly contended that the chiefs should actually run the departments. The police commissions should only see that responsibilities are carried out properly, set general policy and budget requests from municipal authorities.

Other recurring themes were: police should not be saddled with operation of ambulances; collection of fines should be divorced from police quarters and performed only by court staff; uniforms and personal appearances of officers should be regularly checked.

PROBER WELL QUALIFIED AFTER 40-YEAR CAREER

Who is George Archer and why has he got so much to say about police services in this area?

He has a 40-year career in police work behind him, mostly in the RCMP, who retired last year after having organized and run the Vancouver police department for six years.

(He has declined to take on the job of reorganizing the Victoria force.)

He was appointed to conduct the police survey here Jan. 9 and spent February and March carrying out an intensive inspection before completing his 25,000-word report.

But the background behind the survey goes back more than a year when Mayor R. B. Wilson, as a freshman police commission chairman, was appalled at the lack of sensible answers to questions on police administration.

Obvious signs of a rock-bottom morale situation in the force also was noted by him.

He started the ball rolling towards eventual decision by city council and the attorney-general's department to have an investigation.

Subsequently, the attorney-general's department was able to enlarge the study to include the whole Greater Victoria area and the city dropped out as a co-sponsor at that point.

Mr. Archer's terms of reference finally were drafted as: (1) examine the city police building and make recommendations; (2) examine the city police organization and make recommendations; (3) examine "the present policing of the entire Saanich Peninsula from Swartz Bay to Victoria" and make recommendations.

ization within the city police department.

"Here I found almost a complete absence of such organization."

"The necessity for the usual chain of command does not seem to have been recognized."

"No book of instructions as such for guidance and direction of the force has been used."

"No written code of discipline exists."

"No officer has complete authority to make disposition of his men."

"No record is maintained of exhibits on hand, nor are they all properly safeguarded."

"No inspections of any kind upon the internal and external operation of the force have been carried out."

"It distresses me very much that I am required to make such comments."

Chief Blackstock, who has served in the force 36 years — the last 13 as chief — submitted his resignation effective at the end of the year or as soon as a replacement is found.

"I feel that the anticipated reorganization of the department and the proposal of a new building would be better handled by a younger man," he wrote.

Police commissioners William Hamilton and Gordon Carter wrote a testimonial.

"We have worked with him for the last 12 years and hold him in the highest respect," their statement said.

"We have found him, at all times, to be faithful, honest and co-operative and he has always given of his best to the department. We are sorry to see him go."

Mayor Wilson said the report cast no reflections on Chief Blackstock's integrity as a person.

Chief Blackstock, who was within three years of retirement age, will get a full pension of $394 a month under a police commission decision.

Several recommendations in the Archer report, which the commission has had for weeks, have already been carried out.

Three sergeants who couldn't pass medical fitness examinations have been let go, Mayor Wilson pointed out.

Decisions have been made to operate a special ambulance, authorization for acquisition of three more constables to the force, establishment of a promotions system and an architect has been engaged to draft renovation of the police building.

The remaining recommendations are under active study but further action probably will await appointment of a new police chief which Mayor Wilson said "could come quickly or might take some time. We have several prospects under consideration."

Here are some excerpts from the report which portrayed a hair-raising situation:

"Of all the deficiencies which

"I found that in the main the men are just not properly supervised, and since there is no system of call boxes for walking beats, prearranged meeting with the patrol sergeant are relied upon for them."

"Any situation could occur during the dark hours and indeed likely does."

"More than one citizen said that he had seen uniformed men sleeping on duty. At night I was of course unable to test this nor disprove it, but consider under the present system it is possible."

"The prowler cars at night are not supervised at all."

"Many (officers interviewed) complained of interference by the desk sergeants in releasing prisoners after their arrest."

"This in the main applied to those cases involving impaired driving and the decision of the desk sergeants usually occurred in the face of the contrary opinion of the two arresting constables, the two patrol wagon constables and the patrol sergeant."

"One was concerned that tickets as to traffic violations had been removed on an occasion from the locked box in the traffic office (not by the traffic inspector) and in consequence the offender went unpunished."

"I found no (exhibits) record. All manner of exhibits were lying all over the place — literally — and, to repeat, not recorded. The lack of storage facilities accounts for some of this condition but the failure to record and dispose of these goods is beyond my understanding."

"I found hand guns and rifles in locked cupboards and obviously forgotten, and only with great difficulty was a record found of their origin. Articles were found and no ap-

ment for all firms in Canada — a 50 per cent rate — provided such firms are at least 25 per cent Canadian-owned.

● An increase from 15 per cent to 20 per cent in the withholding tax on dividends paid non-residents by companies not 25 per cent Canadian-owned, with a reduction to 10 per cent in the same tax for companies which have 25 per cent or higher ownership.

● A 30 per cent tax on the sales price in transactions where the shares or assets of Canadian companies are taken over by foreign firms.

● But to encourage the minimum of foreign investment deemed to be needed in Canada, the withholding tax on interest paid foreign holders of Canadian bonds and debentures is removed, provided those foreign bondholders are non-taxable in their own countries (this covers groups like pension trusts).

$30 Million

Balanced against the increases in taxation is the estimated $30 million cost of the industrial incentives, Mr. Gordon said.

This leaves the government in a heavy deficit position, he disclosed.

The deficit will amount to $565 million, he said.

But he claimed this was nearly $200 million lower than it would have been, had the new government left the tax structure unchanged.

"I am sure that honorable members," Mr. Gordon said, "will agree that this is a substantial move in the right direction."

"To do more this year would not be wise, having regard to the present state of the economy. To do less would not be responsible."

There will be total cash requirements — cash needed above and beyond the amount brought in from taxation and other revenue — of $850 million.

This includes, as well as the deficit, advances to the railways to prevent rate boosts, to Trans-Canada Air Lines, to the Export Credits Insurance Corporation, to the Unemployment Insurance Fund and to the yet unborn municipal loan board. This money will have to be borrowed.

He estimated a $260 million increase in budgetary spending to $6.8 billion in the current fiscal year, and an even steeper $384 million rise in budgetary revenues to $6.5 billion.

Counting tax revenues and expenditures of the pension fund, total government spending is forecast to rise by $281 million to a record $7.6 billion with total revenues up by $468 million to just over $7 billion.

While predicting a substantial deficit for the current fiscal year — after an unbroken string of six years of Tory deficits totalling nearly $3 billion — Mr. Gordon appears to be leaving himself in fairly good financial shape for the coming fiscal year.

His budget this year estimated increased revenue from the new taxation in a whole fiscal year at $455 million, after allowing for $100 million in the cost of new incentives.

The $455 million figure includes $290 million in new taxation and $165 million the government will get by changing the period of corporation tax payments — a non-recurring windfall.

Gap Narrows

Provided expenditures do not increase next year beyond their level this year, and provided Mr. Gordon's deficit estimate is not too low this year, then the Liberals next year will be within almost $100 million of their four-year objective of a balanced budget.

The first Gordon budget placed heavy emphasis on a philosophy of "Canada first" — in the economic and fiscal fields.

He referred to a rate of $1.2 billion annually over the past six years in Canada's deficit in international payments.

"This meant we should have produced at home," he said, "and that we have failed to find export markets for goods which we should have sold abroad."

"If this situation had been corrected, the increased production in Canada might well have meant at least 150,000 more jobs and our unemployment problem would have been reduced accordingly."

'Must Be Righted'

In enunciating Liberal principles and Liberal philosophy, Mr. Gordon said:

"The prevalence of unemployment is a wrong that must be righted. Any Canadian, young or old, who wants a job must be able to find one."

"Any Canadian must be able by his work and his saving to make his own direct contribution to the well-being of his family, his community and his country. This is a basic tenet of Liberal philosophy. It is an aim which we are dedicated to achieve."

Archer Report Highlights

A total of 56 recommendations for re-organizing the city police department were made by George Archer's report. The following are some of the more important ones:

ADMINISTRATION

1. Appoint somebody now to undertake the re-organization of the department.
2. Abolish the rank of "Deputy Chief" and replace by "Superintendent." Appoint the present Deputy (as Superintendent) and at no loss of pay in command of the Patrol Division.
3. Reduce motorcycles — replace by automobiles for prowler duties. Balance to Traffic Division for traffic control as detailed by the Traffic Inspector.
4. Examine possibility of accelerated retirement of those now eligible by age. Consider buying up their unexpired time if necessary.
5. Board instruct by resolution that all future promotions be Acting and subject to cancellation at discretion of the Board on the recommendation of the Chief Constable for a period of 12 months.
6. Set up ledger system for all exhibits. Have regular system of inspections instituted.
7. Train and appoint 4 radio despatchers to double as report clerks and possibly telephone operators. There is no reason why these should not be female civilian employees.
8. Institute a regular monthly inspection of the entire building and the Force by the Superintendent, Patrol Division.
9. Institute similar all-embracing inspection by the Chief Constable at a longer interval.
10. Set up a proper discipline code based on the Vancouver Department current regulation.
11. Discipline to be the responsibility of the Chief Constable (not the Board in the first instance) and through him to his Officers.
12. Set up a proper Manual of Instruction for the Force as a whole and a Constable Manual for individual issue.
13. Ensure that an Officer is on duty at all times to assume control and direct as may be. The present control by the Desk Sergeant must pass to the Uniformed Officers where it belongs.
14. Place a lock on the gas pump.
15. Ensure that cash bail is arranged and received by a J.P. — not the police.
16. Set up a proper system of screening of applicants for the Force. A discussion with the City Personnel Officer would be of value, to assist in setting up a proper method of selection by screening and interview for the guidance of the Chief Constable and/or such other Officer as may be instructed to carry out this requirement.
17. Finally, in the matter of administrative problems, ensure that the Chief Constable and his Officers look to their responsibilities and assume them. They should run the Force to the exclusion of everybody. And have it ensured that the Board of Police Commissioners refrain from direct interference with the Chief Constable in the management and operation of his Department.

PATROL DIVISION

1. Transfer Uniform Inspector to Detective Division.
2. Have one car adapted for use as dog car for prowler duty.
3. Make it known that the Force will accept 3 Alsatian dogs from the public — send them and their handlers to Vancouver City Police for training.
4. Appoint one additional Uniform Inspector. Inspectors to rotate on 4 p.m. — midnight and 12 midnight to 8 a.m. shifts. Deputy Chief as Superintendent Officer in Charge Patrol Division to function on the day shift 8 a.m. — 4 p.m.
5. Reduce or abolish walking beats and put these men in prowlers.
6. Examine shifts to ensure that the greatest number of men are on duty during the night hours. The day shift should always be the lightest and the midnight shift the heaviest.
7. Tighten up the inspection of the uniform men at their muster parades, and closely check for hair cuts, clean shoes, pressed uniforms and clean metal.
8. Refrain from the use of police and patrol wagon as ambulance. Pass the responsibility for transportation of the sick and/or injured to hospital to the municipality where it belongs and through Council to a commercial ambulance concern.
9. One Patrol Wagon to patrol the downtown area while awaiting orders.

DETECTIVE DIVISION

1. Transfer Detective Inspector Webb from Detective Division to Uniform Inspector, Patrol Division.
2. Reclassify Juvenile Officers as Detectives, transfer to Detective Division as part of it.
3. Ensure that bootlegging and gambling be accepted by the Detective Division as an integral part of its responsibilities. Consider transferring two suitable constables from Patrol Division to Detective Division to be employed in plainclothes with the exclusive duty of suppressing gaming and bootlegging. Ensure that proper support and encouragement be extended to these men in their continuing operations. I consider this to be of paramount importance in this re-organization.

TRAFFIC DIVISION

1. Re-organize Traffic Division under the command of Inspector Douglass and ensure all traffic duties come within its scope and not with Patrol Division.
2. Appoint a Traffic Sergeant to assist the Inspector.
3. Authorize use by Traffic Inspector of Civil Defence Auxiliary Police for traffic control during evenings as required Friday and Saturday. Pay them honorarium at 3rd Class Constable rate in lump sum to their Officer in Charge.

TRAINING

1. Engage 8 additional men. Five to maintain strength of Force and permit continuous training program, and 3 to replace dog masters appointed from present serving members.
2. Arrange with Vancouver City Police Board of Police Commissioners for continual training of all personnel. Short course for serving members, recruits' course for those now untrained and all future recruits. All future training to be carried out at the Vancouver Police Training Academy.
3. All N.C.O. replacements to take Supervisors' Class at Vancouver Academy before assuming their duties or as soon thereafter as possible.

components at home would be a move in that direction — would end the need for current large imports and help overcome the balance of payments deficit which, it continued, mean "sacrificing our birthright." Mr. Gordon said.

Trading Nation

But, said the finance minister, in seeking solutions to her problems, Canada would not find her salvation in "narrow insolationism."

"It does not lie in withdrawing into ourselves and ignoring the currents of progress and change around us," he said. "Let us remember that we are a great trading nation dependent on our relationships with our friends throughout the world."

"We must not at the first storm signals of economic danger simply throw up a ramshackle tariff against imported goods and imported ideas and seek to bury our heads in the sand. That way lies stagnation."

Mr. Gordon's budget also announced changes in the tariff on textiles, to the advantage of the Canadian textile industry.

'Very High'

Mr. Gordon could have produced more revenue by raising the rates of person or corporation income tax, estate tax, or liquor or cigarette or tobacco taxes. But he didn't. These taxes already are "very high," he said.

Instead, he relied mainly on the 11-per-cent sales tax — applied at the manufacturers' level — for an extra $290,000,000 in tax revenues.

Missing from the budget were two big measures in the Liberal election platform: Continuation of family allowances past age 16 for children staying in school and provision of $10,000,000 worth of $1,000 university scholarships.

Nor was there any indication of a repetition of the Conservative government tax and tariff measure — never passed — against Canadian advertising in foreign magazines entering Canada.

BIG CITY TOUGHNESS SPURNED IN SURVEY

George Archer made a scathing report on the city police force but insists he did not use tough "big city" standards to arrive at his conclusions.

"Throughout this survey I have continually reminded myself that this is a small, and from its location, insular, police department and that in consequence it would be less than fair to apply the rigid standards of other, larger police organizations. Any conclusions, therefore, are indeed as to minimum requirements in the light of all factors."

For his own part, Chief Blackstock said he would take a short vacation as soon as a replacement was found for him, but said he would find another job when he returned.

"I'm sure not going to sit around the house for the rest of my life," he said.

It observed during this survey,

City Students Score Fourth Quiz Victory

A composite team of students, representing the five high schools in School District 61, gained its fourth win in a row Thursday evening on the Reach For The Top television show.

The local scholars defeated a team of Ladysmith and Chemainus students in the first game of a round robin tournament to determine finalists for the grand championship show, worth $2,000 in scholarships to the winners. A team from the Okanagan is also in the running for the championship round.

Don Clarke, a teacher at Victoria High School and coach of the team, said the scholarship fund will be divided among the five local high schools if the Victoria team wins.

By advancing to the round robin tournament, the team has already been assured of taking home $400 in scholarships.

Team members are Robin Jeffrey of Victoria High, Ken

ROGER'S PASS
B.C. Highways Department
Victoria Film Festival

This is a history of the Roger's Pass from the time of its discovery in 1881 to the opening of the great new highway through the Selkirk last summer.

It is a bright and imaginative documentary produced by Peter Elkington of the B.C. Highways Department with the assistance of Wilf Grey, Peter Parson and Werner Franz, and will be shown at the Victoria Film Festival in Beacon Hill Park July 24 at 8:30 p.m.

Meantime, the 30-minute color film is available to schools, libraries and interested groups. It was previewed in the National Film Board theatre here on Tuesday afternoon.

"It took us a year to make," Mr. Elkington said, "but during that time we had only 33 days that were suitable for shooting. I tried to make it a history of the Roger's Pass rather than a record of the construction of the highway."

In his dramatic narration, Mr. Elkington tells how the mighty Selkirk once formed a barrier which repelled all invaders.

Major A. E. Rogers, an American surveyor employed by Canadian Pacific, discovered the pass between the Hermit and Sir Donald ranges but it took him 14 days to reach the entrance. This distance over the new highway can now be travelled in just under two hours.

Canadian Pacific adopted the pass for its main line through the Selkirk, but snowslides and the difficulty of maintaining the road in winter led to the building of the five-mile Connaught Tunnel.

In 1956 it was decided to adopt the Rogers Pass route for the Trans-Canada Highway, using modern methods of combatting heavy snowslides.

In the film, military engineers are seen firing at the snowy slopes to bring down avalanches when they can do the least harm. Snow plows then clear the highway for traffic.

Mr. Elkington has made liberal use of old still photographs to show the building of the original CPR line through the Selkirk and the opening of a station at Glacier which was later wiped out by an avalanche.

The wild grandeur of the Selkirk forms an impressive backdrop, with glimpses of wild Alpine flowers and close-ups of mountain bears.

Major Rogers and members of his survey party are impersonated by local residents, and there is a brief sequence showing Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi approving plans for construction of the highway by banging them with his fist.

An appropriate musical background, taken from library recordings, lends additional atmosphere to the film.

'FACING THE FACTS'

Business
Booster
Budget

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—A "face-the-facts" budget, incorporating tax increases totalling $290 million and adopting policies designed to set Canada on the road towards greater prosperity and industrialization, was presented to the Commons Thursday night by Finance Minister Walter Gordon.

The tax increases, he declared repeatedly and with some bitterness in his two-hour speech, were necessary to begin the process of correcting six years of Progressive Conservative mismanagement of the nation's financial affairs.

And the other policies—industrial incentives and measures to encourage greater Canadian control of Canadian industry—he described as the most effective long-term method of dealing with unemployment.

No changes were announced in personal or corporation income tax rates.

In presenting the new Liberal administration's first budget, Mr. Gordon, a chartered accountant from Toronto, declared it was his duty to "present the facts as we have found them on taking office."

"It is also my duty to ask honorable members and the Canadian public to face up to these facts," he said. "Having done this, it is my duty to indicate the kind of measures that are needed to put our national affairs in order once again."

Highlights

The highlights of Mr. Gordon's new taxation, and fiscal measures:

- Application of the 11 per cent sales tax to previously exempt building materials, raising an estimated $120 million in extra taxes for the balance of this fiscal year.

- Similar application of the sales tax to machinery used in manufacturing or production, including diesel fuel in logging and lumber-making machinery, to raise an extra $60 million.

(These new taxes would bring in a total of $290,000,000 in a full year.)

- Elimination of a whole sales tax discount on sales of gasoline—boosting revenue by another $5 million—because gasoline wholesaling has become nearly extinct.

- Off-setting the impact of the new taxation on building materials is a reduced down payment on National Housing Act—financed houses, plus a cut from 6½ per cent

U.K. Scandal Blown Open
By New Charge of Spying

LONDON (AP)—A London lawyer has charged that a Soviet naval attaché tried to get party girl Christine Keeler to obtain nuclear secrets from former war minister John Profumo, her secret lover.

This report blew the espionage aspects of the sex scandal wide open today and dealt a serious new blow to Prime Minister Macmillan, already fighting for his political life.

The disclosure came from lawyer Michael H. B. Ed-dow, who delivered a letter to Macmillan personally Thursday. This morning, Macmillan summoned his two top security aides, Home Secretary Henry Brooke, who is head of all police units in Britain, and Lord Dilhorne, head of the judiciary. There was speculation Macmillan would order a new inquiry into the scandal.

LONDON (Reuters)—Former model Christine Keeler today denied a charge that she was ever asked by a Russian naval attaché to get military information from former war minister John Profumo, who was her lover.

Lord Dilhorne already had conducted a secret inquiry and reported that Profumo never disclosed secrets when he shared the favors of Miss Keeler with the Soviet naval attaché, Capt. Yevgeny Ivanov.

Macmillan's aides said both the security services and the prime minister had known about Ed-dow's information for some time and it had been investigated by Dilhorne.

"The prime minister will deal with it during the debate in the Commons on Monday," one official said.

Eddow's released the text of his letter to the press.

He said he did so because, so far as he knew, Scotland Yard's special branch, which deals with security offences, has ignored the same information when he gave it to the Yard in March.

The letter said the 21-year-old

Metro Force
A Necessity

Only surprise in the Archer Report's recommendation that B.C.'s first metropolitan police force should be formed here is the initial exclusion of the Esquimalt police-fire department.

"There should, however, be no misunderstanding," the report said. "By all standards Esquimalt belongs in the Saanich peninsula for police purposes and should be included immediately the present artificial barrier of dual employment is removed as... it inevitably will be."

OTTAWA—Finance Minister Walter Gordon today came under a barrage of opposition questioning which suggested he had permitted a "leak" of budget secrets.

Throughout the 20-minute period of cross-examination which erupted at the opening of today's sitting of the Commons, Mr. Gordon refused to give a direct reply to questions about whether he had obtained "outside" help in preparation of the budget.

Traditionally, contents of the budget are kept in tight secrecy. In British parliamentary practice, finance ministers have been forced to resign over any advance leak of budget information or even over any serious suggestion that such a leak had taken place.

In questioning whether Mr. Gordon had received help in preparation of his budget, even down to the wording, the opposition was raising the grave charge that budget secrets were known outside the government service before their presentation to Parliament.

Today's sensation was touched off by New Democrat Douglas Fisher, MP for Port Arthur.

He said he had information to the effect that Mr. Gordon had outside help—"ghost writers," he called it—in the preparation of the budget, laid before Parliament Thursday night.

He said he wanted assurances from Mr. Gordon that the minister had not called in any "outside consultants."

Speaker Macnaughton remarked that when Mr. Fisher became minister of finance he could bring about any necessary reforms himself—a remark that Mr. Speaker later withdrew at the insistence of Conservative L. E. Kindt (MacLeod). The speaker admitted the remark had not been as "fagacious" as he thought at the time.

Mr. Gordon declared that "as minister of finance I take full responsibility for the budget" Opposition Leader Diefen-baker then leaped to his feet

K Sympathetic

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Premier Khrushchev received "sympathetically" a proposal by Harold Wilson, British opposition Labor party leader, that there should be an annual big four summit meeting at the United Nations in New York, Wilson said tonight.

B.C. Traffic Death

PENTICTON (CP)—Ian Andrew Mair, 18, of Penticton, was killed and four other persons hurt Thursday night when a small foreign car went out of control and rolled into a ditch from the highway about eight miles south of here.

Archer Report Bares
Inefficiency in Police

John Blackstock
... "good points, bad points"

Major Shake-Up
Recommended

By JOHN MIKA
Times City Hall Reporter

A bone-rattling shake-up of the city police department began today with release of the Archer report which gave an appalling picture of a Keystone Cops disorganization.

Chief John Blackstock, who saw the report, tendered his resignation on the eve of its release.

The 88-page report recommended creation of a Saanich Peninsula Metropolitan Police Department and a single police commission—after complete reorganization of the city force under a new chief and a major renovation and expansion of the city police building.

The metro force would include, Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Central Saanich and part of the Colwood area but not Esquimalt.

The three-part report was written in March by George Archer, a top RCMP official who re-organized the Vancouver Police Department after the Mulligan inquiry.

Swiftly-moving events set in motion by the report include:

- Acceptance by city council of Police Chief John Blackstock's resignation;

- Launching of a search by police commission for a top-notch police officer on the mainland to come in as a trouble-shooter to reorganize the force;

- Study of further recommendations which would reshuffle the top echelon of officers—including cutting Deputy Chief Harry Mercer down to superintendent—and possibly bring reprimands or discharges for some sergeants.

Retires Early

Victoria Police Chief John Blackstock, whose resignation was announced Thursday, expressed regret for the Archer Report today.

APOLOGY
BY NOWLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition financial critic George Nowlan apologized in the Commons today for using the word "crooked" during criticism of the budget speech Thursday night. (See page 18.)

The former Conservative finance minister, noting it was the first time in 14 years in the Commons that he had to do such a thing, said use of the word was entirely inadvertent and had no application to any person, group or party.

He was given a thunderous round of applause from all sides of the House.

Budget Satisfies
Lesage on Taxes

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Jean Lesage told the legislature today he did not expect an affirmative answer to his tax-sharing ultimatum in the federal government's budget speech delivered Thursday night by Finance Minister Gordon.

In his speech, Mr. Gordon said the federal government would not subscribe to all the Quebec government's demands, which included one-quarter of personal and corporation taxes and all succession duties.

NEW SOVIET SPACE FLIGHT TO BE LONG ONE

'Feeling Perfectly Well' Messages Pilot

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union launched its fifth man into orbit around the earth today and Premier Khrushchev hinted at least one more cosmonaut may join the one already up in what may be another space venture lasting several days.

The United States announced

the end of its Project Mercury one-man space flights two days ago.

The new cosmonaut was identified as Lt.-Col. Valeri Fedorovich Bykovsky, 38, from a small town near Moscow. His craft is named Vostok (east).

The Soviet news agency Tass

said "the pilot himself reports, and the telemetric system confirms, that he satisfactorily withstood the putting into orbit and the transition to a state of weightlessness and that he feels well."

The news agency reported the space craft was orbiting the earth once every 88 minutes from 112 miles to 146 miles from earth.

The capsule was reported circling at a 65-degree angle from the equator and broadcasting to the earth on 20,000 and 143.625-megacycle frequencies.

In contrast to the austere radio announcements of previous manned space flights, Khrushchev broke the news of this one to Harold Wilson, visiting leader of the British Labor party, at a Kremlin meeting.

Wilson—remembering that the last Soviet manned flight in August, 1962, had two men aloft at once—immediately asked how many were up this time.

"Only one so far," said Khrushchev, spreading his arms wide apart to emphasize his point.

Tass said the purpose of the new launching is to continue studies of the influence of various factors of space flight on the human body and to continue study of conditions of a long flight. This indicated that the flight of Bykovsky will be a long one.

First of Its Kind in City

Co-Ordinated But Individual Designs Feature of Jasper Place Subdivision

Victoria's first parade of homes opens Saturday at 10 a.m. in the new subdivision of Jasper Place, which lies about midway between Hillside and Cedar Hill Cross Road, and is bordered by Doncaster elementary school and the Shelbourne shopping plaza.

In this compact, crescent-shaped location, nine model homes built by members of Victoria Home Builders' Association will be on view to the public. All are in the $18,000 class but they vary considerably in concept and design.

This first display of Victoria home-building is sponsored by the builders' association in conjunction with and designed by Fred H. Rowe. It has a cathedral-type entrance, decorative garden wall across the front and a matching sun screen over the window. The textured cork facing on the fireplace wall accents the texture and color of any furniture style; and the basement may be expanded to include a den and family room.

3. A four-bedroom house built by Bruce A. Cooke Building Construction Ltd. and designed by Bruce A. Cooke. In the 1,170 square foot main floor are three bedrooms and a spacious family dining area. The lower floor allows plenty of room for the growing famand designed by Fred H. Rowe. The kitchen has an illuminated plastic ceiling and, in the working areas, are built-in range top elements and oven, automatic washer and garborator. The master bedroom has a personal washroom. There is ample storage room off the hallway and the carport and in the furnace area. The oriental effect on the exterior is accented by the black oak which spreads its shadow across the white-panelled wall.

7. A roomy contemporary home built by Hugh Hucker and designed by Fred H. Rowe. The sloping ceilings and open design of living room, dining room and kit-try and dining areas impart dignity and homeliness.

The reason Mr. Rowe has designed most of these homes is that he is official designer to Victoria Home Builders' Association.

"We picked one designer with the idea of co-ordinating roof lines and exterior styling," said Ken Price, president of the association and proprietor of Stock Construction Ltd.

"We wanted to avoid any risk of disjointed, unrelated houses in a planned subdivision. We picked Mr. Rowe because of his understanding of the importance of combining the practical and aesthetic aspects of small house design."

"The rugged and varied nature of the site presented a real challenge and we believe Mr. Rowe has met this challenge."

Five Furnished

"We wanted to avoid stereotyped exteriors while at the same time offering a controlled individuality from one house to the next."

Mr. Rowe is also responsible for the choice of interior and exterior colors and materials and for setting up the basic landscaping for the overall grand finale.

Five of the homes on display are fully furnished.

Founded in 1939, Victoria Home Builders' Association is an organization of approved building contractors, sub-contractors and suppliers which meets at regular intervals to discuss matters relative to the industry.

"Our dedicated purpose is to create and maintain the highest standard of service and quality for the home-building people of our city," Mr. Price said.

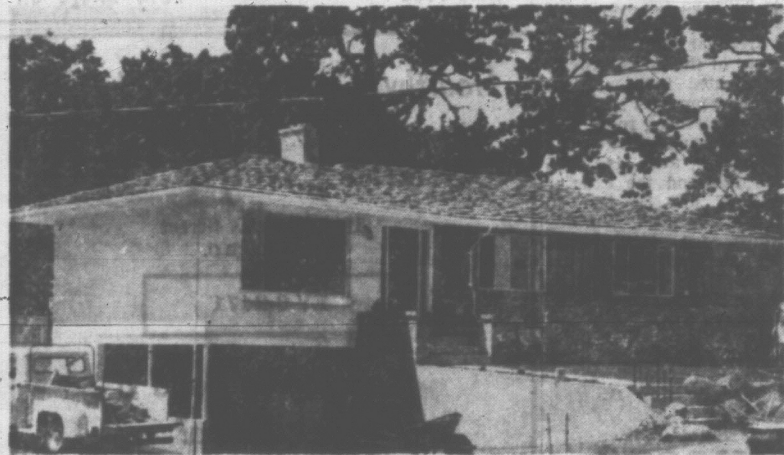

Cost, mortgage financing and availability of new materials are special problems in home-owner planning today. And there is need for reliable and authentic guidance as well as ethical standards.

Other officers of the association are Robert Ford, vice-president; Kenneth Brown, secretary-treasurer; David Stubbs, Michael Litwin and Frank Thorne, directors.

"This home show is the first of its kind in Victoria," Mr. Price said, "but similar shows have been held across Canada and in many parts of the United States."

"They give builders, decorators and designers a chance to show the public what they can do in actual form rather than on paper."

"This should be an advantage to all concerned."

The parade of homes will be officially opened Saturday at 2 p.m. by Reeve Stanley Murphy of Saanich. It will run for nine days—from 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays and from 2 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. on weekdays.

Many Styles

On display are no-basement homes, basement homes, split-level homes and two-storey homes, ranging in style from the so-called cottage type to the long rambling modern dwelling.

They may be summarized as follows:

1. A split-level home built by Kasapi Construction Co. Ltd., designed by Fred H. Rowe. The contemporary interior styling of its 1,213 square feet has an element of surprise at every corner, with high-ceilinged kitchen, tall windows and planter over the cabinets. From the upper level you look over the kitchen work centre to the trees in the rear yard. The rear living room has a modern fireplace of brick and tile.

2. A 1,200 square foot home built by Robert Ford fly to expand its living quarters. A fifth bedroom is roughed in for the "do-it-yourself" resident to complete. The ranch style interior is complemented by the treed lot on which it is located.

4. A 1,204 square foot home built by Robert Quigg and designed by Fred H. Rowe. The split entrance eliminates exterior concrete steps. The exterior is rendered in a modern post and beam design, complemented by the oriental garden across the front. Entertainment can be extended outdoors to the sun-deck off the dining room. The kitchen has a built-in range top and oven.

Southerly Aspect

5. A home built on a solid rock bed by Litwin Construction Co. Ltd. and designed by Fred H. Rowe. The main floor covers an area of 1,183 square feet and the finished entry and utility and bath bring the living room area to 1,280 square feet. The sun-deck off the front of the living room is intended to capture the southerly sunshine, yet its elevation above the road creates a sense of privacy. Plenty of storage and work room is offered by the ample garage.

6. A 1,350 square foot home built by Alf. Newton

chen wall partitions contribute to a sense of spaciousness. The garden entrance is enhanced with a large sunport in the roof to capture the sun reflected from the concrete block column supporting the roof beams.

8. A cottage-type home built by Earle Cross and designed by Fred H. Rowe. Warm antique brick combined with rough cedar siding and shake roofing lend the house an air of rustic charm. There is a U-shaped kitchen with breakfast area; and, just prior to construction, the builder enlarged the floor area sufficiently to include a two-piece powder room off the master bedroom.

Official Designer

9. A new-type Victoria home, with bridge entry, built by Stockton Construction Ltd. and designed by Fred H. Rowe. Elimination of excess backfill allows for windows across the front basement wall which would otherwise be under grade level. Open design creates a sense of space and the wood-panelled walls in the en-

Metal Casement Care

The metal windows and screens used in many new homes are designed for beauty, long life, and minimum maintenance.

Because windows are part of the outside wall area of the house, their surfaces are cool, especially during cold weather, and they provide the first visual evidence of excessive moisture in the air.

Even though windows are weatherstripped, the cold glass will set up a current of cool air which will move through the room.

Very often this cold air may feel as though it's coming from the outside, and cause occupants to believe there is leakage around the windows.

Actually, it is coming from the chilling of inside air against the surface of the window. Draperies help reduce heat loss.

Offset hinges in most casement window designs permit easy cleaning of the glass both inside and out, and the window may adjust the flow of outside air.

Proper care is important. Check to make sure the windows are unlocked before attempting to rotate the handle.

Gambling, Bootlegging Protected by Police?

Victoria is a happy hunting ground for criminals the Archer Report shows and it implies the reason is lax and inefficient law enforcement—particularly in the gambling and bootlegging fields. The city is way out in front of six other Canadian cities of comparable size in the amount of crime it "enjoys."

George Archer cites numerous allegations by reputable private citizens that gambling and bootlegging are rife in the city.

"The suggestion was put forward very strongly that neither illegal activity could continue unless tolerated, nay protected, by the police," he reported.

Mr. Archer makes no judgment on allegations, pointing out he was not commissioned to investigate corruption.

"I do assure you, however, that I am profoundly convinced that neither gambling or bootlegging—but particularly gambling—can continue in any city without the approval of the police."

"I wish to record that I accept no personal responsibility whatever in respect to these possibilities here. It would have been ridiculous to have attempted to embark on a so-called 'investigation' across an office desk."

He pointed out that any attempt to launch a half-baked investigation of the past could only result in another fiasco like the Mulligan inquiry in Vancouver.

"It was subsequent reorganization of the police force which killed organized vice in Vancouver and it may be well to consider that necessity here."

The startling statistics showed Victoria had far more serious crime than Brantford, Sherbrooke, Trois-Rivières, Saint John, Oshawa and St. John's—all of roughly comparable size and police strengths.

Mr. Archer said such statistics were the only clinical method of attempting to measure the efficiency of a police force.

Overall, Sherbrooke was the second worst city for crime and here are the Victoria figures, with Sherbrooke figures in brackets, for the latest available year, 1960:

Murder nil (1), attempted murder 1 (0), robbery 11 (1), burglary 516 (172), thefts 1,033 (809), assaults 78 (38). Saint John, N.B., the best overall city, had one murder, five robberies, 41 burglaries, 152 thefts and 30 assaults.

Last year's figures, available only for Victoria, show the city's crime boom is still continuing with one murder, nine robberies, 604 burglaries, 961 thefts and 149 assaults recorded.

He reported the "frightening" situation that the uniformed branch, directly under the police chief and deputy, were apparently responsible for gambling and bootlegging investigations and not the plainclothes branch.

"I was shocked in interviewing Detective Inspector Webb to learn that the detective division does not accept either bootlegging at all, or gambling in full, as their direct responsibility..."

"I believe that if this extraordinary arrangement only is changed, my time has not been wasted."

"I must record that since my enquiry got under way at least one alleged hot spot of bootlegging was raided, a considerable quantity of liquors seized and a fine of $400 awarded against a Chinese employee."

"This may or may not have some significance."

Mr. Archer said he devoted an entire week to interviewing private citizens "and the same places and people were named consistently and almost monotonously as the hot spots of gambling and bootlegging."

"My position in the matter was usually misunderstood in as much as it was expected that I would investigate... all of the allegations brought before me and in which it was alleged the police were involved, if not by acts of commission then certainly by omission."

"It will, I trust, be appreciated that if vice has indeed flourished within the jurisdiction of the Victoria city police, then the present survey could not possibly be hoped to produce the proof either of the offences nor of police collusion."

Province Preparing Hard Sell

By FRANK BUTTER

Fast action by the provincial government is expected to implement recommendations of the Archer Report on a metropolitan police force.

If necessary, legislation setting up a metro force will be ready for the next session of the House, in January, 1964.

But the first task facing the government and officials of the attorney-general's department is a hard selling job to convince the local municipalities that Mr. Archer is right.

It may mean a more gradual approach to amalgamation, and it could delay the legislation.

The first step will be formation of a special advisory committee by the attorney-general's department in co-operation with municipalities to chart the course.

This move is expected almost immediately, probably next week when Attorney-General Robert Bonner returns from a cabinet tour of the Kootenays.

The official word from Mr. Bonner's department today was only this:

"We are studying the recommendations in detail and have been doing so intensively since delivery of the report."

A spokesman for the department said he could make no other comment on the government's policy.

However, it was learned the department for some time has been concerned about local policing, particularly the high incidence of juvenile crime, and unofficially appears to endorse the Archer recommendations.

PREPARING LEGISLATION
It was also learned that unofficial work has already begun on the legislation necessary to create a full metro force.

The major obstacle is securing full municipal agreement without pushing too hard.

The government is not anxious to be put in the position of forcing amalgamation with an iron fist, although the Municipal Act does give it the power.

Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black has made no secret in the past of his approval of amalgamation of municipal services in general, but has preferred to try and let it come naturally.

A much more acceptable method of implementing Mr. Archer's ideas would be voluntary action on the part of at least the two largest municipalities—Victoria and Saanich—to start the ball rolling.

The first stage would be a mutual agreement to merge their police forces.

This would not necessitate legislation, although it would be available "on request," and might be introduced anyway to lay the ground rules for the future.

GRADUAL INTEGRATION
Other municipalities would then be drawn into the force gradually as they saw its advantages.

While Saanich initially let it be known it wanted no part of the Archer inquiry, the report makes it obvious that there was co-operation, because it goes into some detail and gives Saanich a key role in the proposed metro system.

The type of opposition expected is a "what will Saanich gain" attitude.

Government officials privately think it will gain a lot, pointing to the threat of increasing crime due to easy accessibility to the mainland through ferries, and Mr. Archer's conclusion that the Saanich force will have to be drastically increased in numbers.

If the Archer recommendations are accepted as government policy, a single police commission would be set up, with appointments by cabinet order upon the attorney-general's recommendations, as is now done in Vancouver.

At present, however, local commissioners are appointed upon the recommendation of the municipal affairs minister, and often the attorney-general's department is never consulted.

This has resulted in many appointments of "people" without adequate qualifications, a situation, roundly condemned by Mr. Archer.

Sooner or later and for better or worse, British Columbia will follow the example of her neighbors south in banning the general sale of fireworks. When that happens, a handful of lively lads who ply between this province and the Pacific states will be deprived of a fast-buck gimmick.

In the pre-Halloween period when fireworks may be bought legally here and in Vancouver, these operators stock up. Later, they transfer their combustibles over the border and unload them on the Fourth of July grey market.

Profits are high. By way of example, I'm told that a four-inch bomb which sells for a dime retail in Victoria fetches six bits in Portland.

This is small potatoes, though... a far cry from the years when sacked hooch and a fast hull powered with a brace of geared-down Liberties was more than one coast rat's passport to fortune.

It was one of those Brethren of the Coast who, on a sun-hot wharf long ago, told me the wonderful legend of Drake's treasure.

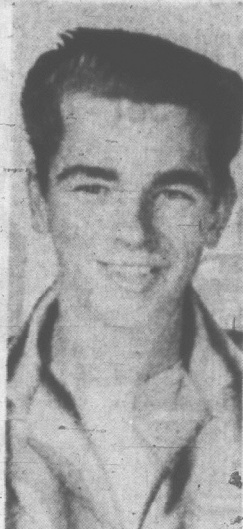

Gale-buffed off Cape Flattery, the tale ran, Captain Frank sailed his Golden Hind in through Juan de Fuca mouth and around the south corner of Vancouver Island to the narrow waters.

On Gabriola Island—reputedly near the sea-carved Malaspina galleries—he lightened ship for the long haul to England by burying a trove of bar silver looted from a Spanish treasure galleon.

Later, a sportsport historian insisted to me that Drake never got this far north.

But the legend has set a boy or two from each new Nanaimo generation digging harder than he ever did in his father's potato patch; and who, after all, can say for sure?

Recorded history is fallible. Perhaps the Master Thief of the Ocean Sea did

NEIL KIRBY

Crash Kills Youth

A 20-year-old youth has been charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident in which a passenger in his car was killed and three other persons were injured early today.

Killed in the crash at Tolmie and Maple, two blocks east of Douglas Street, was Neil Kirby, 19, of 110 Medina, James Bay, an Empress Hotel gardener.

Larry E. Neil, 20, of 242 Glenair Drive, driver of the car in which Kirby was travelling, was remanded to Thursday when he appeared in Saanich court this morning.

Saanich Prosecutor Ken Murphy said another charge in all probability will be laid against Neil.

INJURED

Injured in the accident were Mrs. Ruth Kirkpatrick, 21, of 615 Kent, the driver of the other car involved, and two other passengers in Neil's car, Alan Robinson, 19, of 2843 Blackwood, and Allyn De Wolfe, 19, of 1018 Balmoral.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick and Robinson are reported to be in good condition, and De Wolfe is in fairly good condition today. All three are at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Saanich police said Neil was driving north on Maple Street and Mrs. Kirkpatrick was travelling west on Tolmie when the accident happened.

The woman's car ended up in the northwest corner of the intersection facing back diagonally across the intersection.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick was lying on the boulevard beside her car when police arrived. She suffered pelvic injuries.

UP THE STREET

Police found the dead youth and the two injured ones lying about 100 feet farther up the street. There was no sign of the other car involved in the accident.

A man later came to the scene and identified himself as the driver.

The dead youth graduated from Esquimalt High School and had been employed at the Empress Hotel as a gardener. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. May Sauter, 110 Medina, his father, David Kirby, 808 Colville, a sister, Mrs. Patricia Doran, and a brother, Roy, both of Victoria.

Sands Mortuary Ltd. is in charge of funeral arrangements.

It is not yet known if an inquest will be held.

Road Closure in Esquimalt

Esquimalt Road between Admirals and Canteen Road will be closed to traffic for repaving, commencing at 9 a.m. Monday.

The work will take several days. Naval authorities have requested service and civilian personnel of HMC Dockyard to leave cars at home and use public transportation during this period, or to form car pools to ease traffic congestion.

Access to Dockyard will be via Lyall Street.

Protests Won't Bring Supps Back

Supplemental Grade 12 examinations in B.C. schools are out and the hue and cry raised by teachers, trustees and parent organizations isn't likely to bring them back, says deputy education minister Dr. J. F. K. English.

He told an interviewer today that as chairman of the provincial board of examiners, responsible for setting departmental examinations:

"I can say the protests will be considered but I don't hold out much hope that the board will change its mind."

The supplementals were designed to give students who fail Grade 12 university entrance exams in June a second try at passing them in August. They were eliminated after the University of B.C. announced it would not accept students who had to write supplementals.

PROTESTS HEARD

Various groups, including the B.C. Teachers' Federation and the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation have protested the elimination, saying students who do not intend going to university but need university entrance standing are being discriminated against.

Dr. English said the supps were dropped mainly because the university did not recognize them.

WITH DUE POMP AND DIGNITY

Impressive Ceremony Planned for University Day

Victoria becomes a university town July 1.

The following day, citizens of Greater Victoria and government officials will take part in an historic ceremony founding the University of Victoria which they built.

With due pomp and dignity the dedication of the university and laying of the cornerstone of the library will take place on the new campus at Gordon Head.

And college officials have urged all citizens to take part in the occasion.

The ceremony itself will start at 3 p.m., July 2, with an academic procession from the Student Union Building to the library, the hub of the new university.

Here Rev. William Hills will perform the dedication, and Lt. Gov. George Pearkes will lay the library cornerstone.

Congratulatory messages from universities and other interested organizations all over the world will be passed on to the newest independent academic institution at this time.

Chairman of the occasion will be the first chancellor of the university until July 1 chairman of the Victoria College Council, Judge J. B. Clearhue.

After the ceremony, a reception and tea will be held back at the Student Union building.

Faculty and council members suddenly are realizing

the significance of the university's foundation.

It will mean that the completely independent institution hereafter will grant its own degrees. Graduates of Victoria University will be recognized as such and accepted in academic institutions all over the world.

The local university will have its own president, yet to be selected.

The Victoria College Council will become overnight

the Board of Governors of the University of Victoria.

The university will have its own senate. At the moment the registrar's office is at work compiling the role of convocation comprising the electors of the remaining members of the senate.

Hugh Farquhar, executive assistant to the college principal, said today the ceremony marks the realization of what citizens, council and faculty members have been working for since college classes first were held near the present site of Central Junior High School.

University Development manager Floyd Fairclough said the provincial government which established the institution and the public who provided the funds for acquisition of the new site and the buildings, were responsible for the founding.

"But this is just the beginning. The door has been opened for a very great future," he said.

"We are at the starting gate, not the finish flag."

SAANICH COUNCIL SPLIT

Metro Police Bitter Pill

By IAIN HUNTER

If a metro police force were to be established, it would be over the dead bodies of a good many Saanich councillors.

Reeve Stanley Murphy, himself a supporter of municipal amalgamation, today called on Attorney-General Robert Bonner to declare his intentions at once.

Otherwise, he predicted, the Archer report would fall on barren ground.

"A metropolitan police force has obvious advantages," the reeve said, "but provincial government action would be required" to make it a reality.

NUDE MAN CHASED FROM TOT'S CRIB

A mother who heard her three-year-old baby stirring in his cot early today found when she went to the baby's room that a naked man had undressed the child and was trying to take him away.

Mrs. David Sands, 3101 Yew Street, screamed to her husband, who was asleep, and at first thought she was dreaming. When he came running into the room the nude man handed the baby to the mother and ran out.

Mr. Sands ran after the intruder, who fled naked down Yew Street. He then returned to his house, got his car and started to look for the naked man again.

Mr. Sands saw him running towards Topaz Park and drove around to cut him off. In the park playground he saw a car and, when he went up to it, found clothes piled inside.

Mr. Sands took the clothes and threw them in all directions. While he was doing this the naked man approached from behind and lunged at him.

Mr. Sands punched the nude man in the stomach and knocked him to the ground. He held him for a while but had to leave to draw the attention of police who were arriving on the scene in response to a telephone call from the mother.

Later today Errol Tucker appeared in city police court charged with being unlawfully in a dwelling house on Yew Street with intent to commit an indictable offence.

Crown Prosecutor Terry O'Grady opposed the granting of bail to the accused.

Magistrate William Ostler postponed the question of bail until Monday when the accused will again appear in court.

Inspector Archer had said in the report that "there is an inherent danger of the Board of Police Commissioners... infringing on or even usurping the prerogatives of the chief constable."

He said this "tended to lessen the chief in the eyes of the men," and recommended he be given full authority in matters of discipline and recruitment.

Reeve Murphy said, however, the chief "has far more authority in Saanich than the report makes out."

Although the report recommended that 10 men be added to the force "immediately," Mr. Murphy said more than four could not possibly be assimilated at this time. But he said more would be added next year.

CROSS-CANADA MUSICIANS

Youth Orchestra Plays In Butchart's Gardens

Canada's famed National Youth Orchestra will give its first Victoria concert in Butchart's Gardens Wednesday, Aug. 14, at 8 p.m., it was announced today.

Comprising young musicians from across the country, the orchestra will be making its first Western Canada tour from headquarters in Toronto.

The Victoria concert has been arranged by Jack Barraclough, president of Victoria Symphony Society, with the co-operation of Ian Ross, proprietor of Butchart's Gardens.

If the weather should be bad, the concert will be given in an auditorium (not yet chosen), and in this event, Mr. Ross has offered to pay half the cost.

Five young Victoria musicians, selected by audition, will be part of the 50-piece orchestra. They are violinist Veronica Milton, 16; tympanist Ferugus Heywood, 17; piccolo player Joan Meredith, 17; violist Elizabeth Gahn, 19; and French horn player Bruce Dunn, 16.

forces are all split up like this?" he asked, adding that Saanich had a "force to be proud of."

However, other councillors traditionally oppose metropolitan developments.

Dealing with specific recommendations for Saanich contained in the report, Reeve Murphy said that most of the points already were being dealt with.

"Certain policy changes already were put into effect" before the report was completed, he said.

These included provision for in-service training for police officers in Vancouver, establishment of an examination for recruits, and the addition of four men to the force.

Although the report recommended that 10 men be added to the force "immediately," Mr. Murphy said more than four could not possibly be assimilated at this time. But he said more would be added next year.

Archer Probe Urges Metro Police Force

By JOHN MIKA

Merging of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Central Saanich police into a metro force, covering almost the entire area from Saanichton to Colwood, was recommended by the Archer Report released today.

Retired police trouble-shooter George Archer, who made a survey of the various departments, recommended to Attorney-General Robert Bonner a step-by-step program for establishing the metro force:

1. Immediately prepare legislation;
2. Set up an advisory committee of provincial and municipal officials to function in the initial stages;
3. Create the metro force on enactment of legislation;
4. Establish a single police commission;
5. Relieve RCMP of duties in Colwood area.

Esquimalt Not In Merger Plan

Esquimalt was excluded from the metro proposal for now only because its peculiar police-fire department could not fit into an out-and-out modern police force.

Mr. Archer also examined the Sidney and North Saanich areas but concluded they should be left out because the prospect is they will remain rural for a long time.

Combining the present forces would give a department of 143 policemen and 18 civilian employees but this would be boosted to 180 policemen if the report's recommendations for immediate manpower increases were adopted by the various municipalities.

Metro Force Headquarters In City

Headquarters of the proposed metro force would be the city police station after extensive renovations were made.

The present Saanich police building would become the magistrate's court for the whole area, removing it from the city police building.

Oak Bay police quarters would be retained as a station and possibly the Central Saanich and Sidney police quarters would be too.

Efficiency More Vital Than Cost

"The establishing of an efficient police operation on a long-term basis is the objective and in my opinion this transcends all objections," he said.

"Local pride, while a desirable thing and a police force otherwise, should not be permitted to block the development of a metro force for the Saanich peninsula."

At another point, he observed:

"That there should be six police authorities in this smallish area is at first incredible—not incredible that they were started in the pioneer days... but that they should have prevailed until now."

- The 15 benefits:
1. Single command ensuring immediate deployment of personnel to meet day to day requirements.
 2. Immediate availability to all of information as to criminals, their movements, vehicles, projects, associates, etc.
 3. One headquarters over-head cost in place of five.
 4. Availability to all of modern technical and scientific equipment.
 5. Availability of experienced detectives as and when required.
 6. Greater promotional opportunities.
 7. A common promotion plan.
 8. Economy of transport requirements or more efficient use of present vehicles.
 9. One radio transmitter instead of seven.
 10. One radio dispatcher, ensuring proper and efficient control at all times.
 11. A larger and therefore more diversified Board of Police Commissioners.
 12. Identical uniforms and accoutrements.
 13. Uniformity of recruiting standards and recruiting selection methods—completed at one point only.
 14. Uniformity of all training. Availability of additional personnel providing opportunity of releasing men for training periods.
 15. Development of high morale and esprit de corps in a well-organized first-class outfit, each group identified with its own district but part of, in fact as well as in name, the Metro Force.

City Shakeup Is First Step

Mr. Archer stressed the need for re-organizing the city department as a first step towards a metro force because of dislike by the outside departments for the present Victoria setup.

"I am convinced that one of the most powerful factors militating against the other municipal police departments joining together in a voluntary way to form a metro force is their reluctance to join Victoria under the present conditions there."

"It will therefore be necessary that my separate recommendations in that respect be implemented, or at least commenced, before any improvement can be hoped for in the frigid atmosphere which at present exists."

"May I add in this and any other comments, I wish, of course, to exclude the RCMP entirely."

"They traditionally are anxious and willing to relinquish such portions of their present responsibilities in the two detachments concerned (Sidney and Colwood) as may be decided as increasing efficiency in the picture as a whole."

District Forces Commendable

Mr. Archer made individual comments on the Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Central Saanich forces but he also made general observations on their overall good and bad points.

"In my opinion, and generally speaking, I consider that all of the police departments outside of Victoria have turned in a satisfactory performance, each within the restrictions as set out."

"There is a varying degree of administrative planning and organizational foresight, but in the main the citizens have been well served."

Lack of Training Noted

Among bad points he cited, lack of training, inspections and promotional opportunities as well as the parochialism caused by separate police commissions.

"A factor common to all these municipalities is the desperate lack of training on all levels."

"Excepting for Victoria, where a half-hearted attempt has been made in a spasmodic way, there is no training whatever provided at the recruit level and little otherwise."

Commissions Shouldn't Interfere

He repeatedly contended that the chiefs should actually run the departments. The police commissions should only see that responsibilities are carried out properly, set general policy and budget requests from municipal authorities.

The merged area would cover about 80 square miles with a network of 533 miles of paved roads and a population around 134,000 which is expected to continue rapid growth.

Adding Esquimalt to the metro police force—which the report said was essential once that municipality faced the inevitable need to end the police-fire combination—would increase the figures by 2½ square miles, 28.3 miles of road and 12,900 population.

It also would add 16 more men to the police force.

Policemen would remain in their present locations under "district chiefs" for Victoria, Saanich and Oak Bay districts.

An outside man would be brought in to serve as chief constable for the whole operation.

Mr. Archer listed 15 benefits of the proposed merger but warned that a metro force would necessarily cost more money for the initial stages.

"The necessity for the usual chain of command does not seem to have been recognized. 'No book of instructions as such for guidance and direction of the force has been used. 'No written code of discipline exists."

"No officer has complete authority to make disposition of his men."

"No record is maintained of exhibits on hand, nor are they all properly safeguarded."

"No inspections of any kind upon the internal and external operation of the force have been carried out."

"It distresses me very much that I am required to make such comments."

Chief Blackstock, who has served in the force 36 years—the last 13 as chief—submitted his resignation effective at the end of the year or as soon as a replacement is found.

"I feel that the anticipated reorganization of the department and the proposal of a new building would be better handled by a younger man," he wrote.

Police commissioners William Hamilton and Gordon Carter wrote a testimonial.

"We have worked with him for the last 12 years and hold him in the highest respect," their statement said.

"We have found him, at all times, to be faithful, honest and co-operative and he has always given of his best to the department. We are sorry to see him go."

Mayor Wilson said the report cast no reflections on Chief Blackstock's integrity as a person.

Chief Blackstock, who was within three years of retirement age, will get a full pension of $304 a month under a police commission decision.

Several recommendations in the Archer report, which the commission have had for weeks, have already been carried out.

Three sergeants who couldn't pass medical fitness examinations have been let go, Mayor Wilson pointed out.

"Decisions have been made to operate a special ambulance, authorization for acquisition of three more constables to the force, establishment of a promotions system and an architect has been engaged to draft renovation of the police building."

The remaining recommendations are under active study but further action probably will await appointment of a new police chief which Mayor Wilson said "could come quickly or might take some time. We have several prospects under consideration."

Here are some excerpts from the report which portrayed a hair-raising situation:

"Of all the deficiencies which while they take training there," he added.

The chief also welcomed the proposal that the city police building be kept as headquarters for a metropolitan force, but said he did not approve of having a central court in the present Saanich police building.

"I don't think it's a good thing to have people drive all the way out there," he said.

"They might not have transportation and it would be too difficult."

For his own part, Chief Blackstock said he would take a short vacation as soon as a replacement was found, for him, but said he would find another job when he returned.

"I'm sure not going to sit around the house for the rest of my life," he said.

PROBER WELL QUALIFIED AFTER 40-YEAR CAREER

Who is George Archer and why has he got so much to say about police services in this area?

He has a 40-year career in police work behind him, mostly in the RCMP, who retired last year after having reorganized and run the Vancouver police department for six years.

(He has declined to take on the job of reorganizing the Victoria force.)

He was appointed to conduct the police survey here Jan. 9 and spent February and March carrying out an intensive inspection before completing his 25,000-word report.

But the background behind the survey goes back more than a year when Mayor R. B. Wilson, as a freshman police commission chairman, was appalled at the lack of sensible answers to questions on police administration.

Obvious signs of a rock-bottom morale situation in the force also was noted by him.

He started the ball rolling towards eventual decision by city council and the attorney-general's department to have an investigation.

Subsequently, the attorney-general's department was able to enlarge the study to include the whole Greater Victoria area and the city dropped out as a co-sponsor at that point.

Mr. Archer's terms of reference finally were drafted as: (1) examine the city police building and make recommendations; (2) examine the city police organization and make recommendations; (3) examine "the present policing of the entire Saanich Peninsula from Swartz Bay to Victoria" and make recommendations.

"Here I found almost a complete absence of such organization."

"The necessity for the usual chain of command does not seem to have been recognized. 'No book of instructions as such for guidance and direction of the force has been used."

"No written code of discipline exists."

"No officer has complete authority to make disposition of his men."

"I'm sure not going to sit around the house for the rest of my life," he said.

I observed during this survey, the most obvious and possibly most dangerous of all is the absence of proper and consistent control on appropriate levels."

"It may not be too far from the truth to surmise that the force has been run from the office of the desk sergeants and the secretaries."

"One must of course take into account all the factors in attempting to pinpoint where and when this group entered the era of slovenliness which characterizes it at present."

"Of a certainty the cramped, dilapidated quarters, makeshift offices, lack of ordinary toilet facilities, absence of adequate and secure storage places, etc. have taken its toll, and if the morale of those who are employed in and from this building is low, then certainly the surrounding conditions must take some share of the blame."

"There are at times no less than three constables and a sergeant behind the counter and moving in different directions."

"There is a competent officer in charge of the traffic office who has been adequately trained but who is denied the opportunity to exploit his training."

"I am utterly convinced of the futility of the present approach to traffic enforcement. I believe that the number of motorcycles should be drastically reduced, and that automobiles should be bought with the money saved."

"At this moment the only group actually and in fact working under the direction of the traffic inspector are the accident investigation crews and school safety patrol supervisor."

Traffic control is regarded as a patrol division function. This is properly considered on all sides as ridiculous, as indeed it is."

"I am not satisfied that proper supervision and direction is being given to the detectives; and the detective inspector has created for himself a daily job which takes him into the magistrate's court where he sits beside the prosecutor and 'assistants,' excepting in traffic cases."

"I have made proper inquiry and am satisfied that efficiency would be better served now if Detective Inspector Webb were transferred to duty as uniform inspector in the patrol division and replaced by Inspector Matland."

RUNS SHOW

"I am very concerned as to the operation of the 'charge of office.' Beginning with the sergeants, there are, when a full staff is on duty, two sergeants. One remains in the office and functions as desk sergeant... The other sergeant is the patrol sergeant, who works outside."

"I am pretty well convinced that this double sergeant-duty might safely be reduced."

"In any event, it should be closely examined. I assure you that there is feeling between the present two groups of sergeants."

GOOD MATERIAL

"I was not impressed by the younger group who function outside, some appear outstanding material."

"A close look should be taken at the others. I am not too sure that they could face a medical test for general duty."

"There is a large battered arm chair, well padded, in this office, which to my mind is mute evidence of a significant kind."

"In any event the desk sergeants should be forbidden forthwith from releasing any prisoner brought in by a constable unless instructions are secured by him from an officer."

"I found no (exhibits) recorded. All manner of exhibits were lying all over the place—literally—and, to repeat, recorded. The lack of storage facilities accounts for some of this condition but the failure to record and dispose of these goods is beyond my understanding."

"I found hand guns and rifles in locked cupboards and obviously forgotten, and only with great difficulty was a record found of their origin. Articles were found and no ap-ficer."

BIG CITY TOUGHNESS SPURRED IN SURVEY

George Archer made a scathing report on the city police force but insists he did not use tough "big city" standards to arrive at his conclusions.

"Throughout this survey I have continually reminded myself that this is a small, and from its location, insular police department and that in consequence it would be less than fair to apply the rigid standards of other, larger police organizations. Any conclusions, therefore, are indeed as to minimum requirements in the light of all factors."

BUSINESS

ment for all firms in Canada—a 50 per cent rate—provided such firms are at least 25 per cent Canadian-owned.

● An increase from 15 per cent to 20 per cent in the withholding tax on dividends paid non-residents by companies not 25 per cent Canadian-owned, with a reduction to 10 per cent in the same tax for companies which have 25 per cent or higher ownership.

● A 30 per cent tax on the sales price in transactions where the shares or assets of Canadian companies are taken over by foreign firms.

● But to encourage the minimum of foreign investment deemed to be needed in Canada, the withholding tax on interest paid foreign holders of Canadian bonds and debentures is removed, provided those foreign bondholders are non-taxable in their own countries (this covers groups like pension trusts).

$30 Million

Balanced against the increases in taxation is the estimated $30 million cost of the industrial incentives, Mr. Gordon said.

This leaves the government in a heavy deficit position, he disclosed.

The deficit will amount to $565 million, he said.

But he claimed this was nearly $200 million lower than it would have been, had the new government left the tax structure unchanged.

"I am sure that honorable members," Mr. Gordon said, "will agree that this is a substantial move in the right direction."

"To do more this year would not be wise, having regard to the present state of the economy. To do less would not be responsible."

There will be total cash requirements—cash needed above and beyond the amount brought in from taxation and other revenue—of $850 million.

This includes, as well as the deficit, advances to the railways to prevent rate boosts, to Trans-Canada Air Lines, to the Export Credits Insurance Corporation, to the Unemployment Insurance Fund and to the yet unborn municipal loan board. This money will have to be borrowed.

He estimated a $260 million increase in budgetary spending to $6.8 billion in the current fiscal year, and an even steeper $384 million rise in budgetary revenues to $6.2 billion.

$7.6 Billion

Counting tax revenues and expenditures of the pension fund, total government spending is forecast to rise by $281 million to a record $7.6 billion with total revenues up by $468 million to just over $7 billion.

While predicting a substantial deficit for the current fiscal year—after an unbroken string of six years of Tory deficits totalling nearly $3 billion—Mr. Gordon appears to be leaving himself in fairly good financial shape for the coming fiscal year.

His budget this year estimated increased revenue from the new taxation in a whole fiscal year at $455 million, after allowing for $100 million in the cost of new incentives.

The $455 million figure includes $290 million in new taxation and $165 million the government will get by changing the period of corporation tax payments—a non-recurring windfall.

Gap Narrows

Provided expenditures do not increase next year beyond their level this year, and provided Mr. Gordon's deficit estimate is not too low this year, then the Liberals next year will be within almost $100 million of their four-year objective of a balanced budget.

The first Gordon budget placed heavy emphasis on a philosophy of "Canada first"—in the economic and fiscal fields.

He referred to a rate of $1.2 billion annually over the past six years in Canada's deficit in international payments.

"This meant we should have produced at home," he said, "and that we have failed to find export markets for goods which we should have sold abroad."

"If this situation had been corrected, the increased production in Canada might well have meant at least 150,000 more jobs and our unemployment problem would have been reduced accordingly."

'Must Be Righted'

In enunciating Liberal principles and Liberal philosophy, Mr. Gordon said:

"The prevalence of unemployment is a wrong that must be righted. Any Canadian, young or old, who wants a job must be able to find one."

"Any Canadian must be able by his work and his saving to make his own direct contribution to the well-being of his family, his community and his country. This is a basic tenet of Liberal philosophy. It is an aim which we are dedicated to achieve."

A more industrial Canada—more manufacturing of such products as automobiles, machinery, and so on—would be a move in that direction—would end the need for current large imports and help overcome the balance of payments deficit which, it continued, meant "sacrificing our birthright," Mr. Gordon said.

Trading Nation

But, said the finance minister, in seeking solutions to her problems, Canada would not find her salvation in "narrow insularism."

"It does not lie in withdrawing into ourselves and ignoring the currents of progress and change around us," he said. "Let us remember that we are a great trading nation dependent on our relationships with our friends throughout the world."

"We must not at the first storm signals of economic danger simply throw up a ramshackle tariff against imported goods and imported ideas and to bury our heads in the sand. That way lies stagnation."

Mr. Gordon's budget also announced changes in the tariff

Archer Report Highlights

A total of 56 recommendations for re-organizing the city police department were made by George Archer's report. The following are some of the more important ones:

ADMINISTRATION

1. Appoint somebody now to undertake the re-organization of the department.

2. Abolish the rank of "Deputy Chief" and replace by "Superintendent." Appoint the present Deputy (as Superintendent) and at no loss of pay in command of the Patrol Division.

3. Reduce motorcycles—replace by automobiles for prowler duties. Balance to Traffic Division for traffic control as detailed by the Traffic Inspector.

4. Examine possibility of accelerated retirement of those now eligible by age. Consider buying up their unexpired time if necessary.

5. Board instruct by resolution that all future promotions be Acting and subject to cancellation at discretion of the Board on the recommendation of the Chief Constable for a period of 12 months.

6. Set up ledger system for all exhibits. Have regular system of inspections instituted.

7. Train and appoint 4 radio dispatchers to double as report clerks and possibly telephone operators. There is no reason why these should not be female civilian employees.

8. Institute a regular monthly inspection of the entire building and the Force by the Superintendent, Patrol Division.

9. Institute similar all-embracing inspection by the Chief Constable at a longer interval.

10. Set up a proper discipline code based on the Vancouver Department current regulation.

11. Discipline to be the responsibility of the Chief Constable (not the Board in the first instance) and through him to his Officers.

12. Set up a proper Manual of Instruction for the Force as a whole and a Constable Manual for individual issue.

13. Ensure that an Officer is on duty at all times to assume control and direct as may be. The present control by the Desk Sergeant must pass to the Uniformed Officers where it belongs.

14. Place a lock on the gas pump.

15. Ensure that cash bill is arranged and received by a J.P.—not the police.

16. Set up a proper system of screening of applicants for the Force. A discussion with the City Personnel Officer would be of value, to assist in setting up a proper method of selection by screening and interview for the guidance of the Chief Constable and/or such other Officer as may be instructed to carry out this requirement.

17. Finally, in the matter of administrative problems, ensure that the Chief Constable and his Officers look to their responsibilities and assume them. They should run the Force to the exclusion of everybody. And have it ensured that the Board of Police Commissioners refrain from direct interference with the Chief Constable in the management and operation of his Department.

PATROL DIVISION

1. Transfer Uniform Inspector to Detective Division.

2. Have one car adapted for use as dog car for prowler duty.

3. Make it known that the Force will accept 3 Alsatian dogs from the public—send them and their handlers to Vancouver City Police for

MOST POLICE GET APPROVAL FROM PROBER

The Archer Report condemned many aspects of the city police department but generally speaking said the majority of officers were worthwhile men trying to do a good job in a command vacuum.

"I found in the main, and particularly in the junior group, some very worthwhile men, pathetically anxious to make a success of their career, conscious of their lack of proper training guidance and leadership."

'FACING THE FACTS'

Business Booster Budget

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—A "face-the-facts" budget, incorporating tax increases totalling $290 million and adopting policies designed to set Canada on the road towards greater prosperity and industrialization, was presented to the Commons Thursday night by Finance Minister Walter Gordon.

The tax increases, he declared repeatedly and with some bitterness in his two-hour speech, were necessary to begin the process of correcting six years of Progressive Conservative mismanagement of the nation's financial affairs.

And the other policies—industrial incentives and measures to encourage greater Canadian control of Canadian industry—he described as the most effective long-term method of dealing with unemployment.

No changes were announced in personal or corporation income tax rates.

In presenting the new Liberal administration's first budget, Mr. Gordon, a chartered accountant from Toronto, declared it was his duty to "present the facts as we have found them on taking office."

"It is also my duty to ask honorable members and the Canadian public to face up to these facts," he said. "Having done this, it is my duty to indicate the kind of measures that are needed to put our national affairs in order once again."

The highlights of Mr. Gordon's new taxation and fiscal measures:

- Application of the 11 per cent sales tax to previously exempt building materials, raising an estimated $120 million in extra taxes for the balance of this fiscal year.

- Similar application of the sales tax to machinery used in manufacturing or production, including diesel fuel in logging and lumber-making machinery, to raise an extra $60 million.

"These new taxes would bring in a total of $290,000,000 in a full year."

- Elimination of a whole-saler's sales tax discount on sales of gasoline—boosting revenue by another $5 million—because gasoline wholesaling has become nearly extinct.

- Off-setting the impact of the new taxation on building materials by a reduced down payment on National Housing Act—financed houses, plus a cut from 6½ per cent to 6 per cent in the NHA lending rate.

- A crackdown on "expense account living" through vigorous enforcement and tighter administration of laws covering allowable business expenses.

- A novel subsidy to firms who hire new workers over 45 years of age and train them, during the period November-January, at a rate of $75 per month per employee.

- A three-year tax holiday for new manufacturing and processing enterprises located in designated areas of slower growth.

- Accelerated depreciation rates for such new firms when tax holiday ends, at rate of 50 per cent a year for machinery and equipment and 20 per cent per year on buildings.

- Higher write-off allowances on machinery and equipment.

U.K. Scandal Blown Open By New Charge of Spying

LONDON (AP)—A London lawyer has charged that a Soviet naval attaché tried to get party girl Christine Keeler to obtain nuclear secrets from former war minister John Profumo, her secret lover.

This report blew the espionage aspects of the sex scandal wide open today and dealt a serious new blow to Prime Minister Macmillan, already fighting for his political life.

The disclosure came from lawyer Michael H. B. Ed-dower, who delivered a letter to Macmillan personally Thursday.

This morning, Macmillan summoned his two top security aides, Home Secretary Henry Brooke, who is head of all police units in Britain, and Lord Dilhorne, head of the judiciary. There was speculation Macmillan would order a new inquiry into the scandal.

Lord Dilhorne already had conducted a secret inquiry and reported that Profumo never disclosed secrets when he shared the favors of Miss Keeler with the Soviet naval attaché, Capt. Yevgeny Ivanov.

Macmillan's aides said both the security services and the prime minister had known about Eddower's information for some time and it had been investigated by Dilhorne.

"The prime minister will deal with it during the debate in the Commons on Monday," one official said.

Eddower released the text of his letter to the press.

He said he did so because, so far as he knew, Scotland Yard's special branch, which deals with security offences, has ignored the same information when he gave it to the Yard in March.

The letter said the 21-year-old

BULLETINS

Hoover 'Serious'

NEW YORK (AP)—Former president Herbert Hoover, 88, has been seriously ill for the last week, it was announced Friday.

Hoover is suffering from anemia "secondary to bleeding from the gastro-intestinal tract," it was reported.

Fireman Dies

EDMONTON (CP)—One fireman died and 74 patients were quickly evacuated as a precautionary measure today when fire struck the north wing of Misericordia Hospital in downtown Edmonton.

The fireman apparently was overcome by smoke while crawling between the hospital roof and a false ceiling where the blaze had broken out.

Student Jailed

SURREY, B.C. (CP)—Van Huguet, 17, who stabbed his teacher in the back with a compass, was jailed today for a year.

The secondary school teacher was not severely injured.

Plate Favorite

TORONTO (UPI)—E. P. Taylor's Canebora, a horse no one would buy for $7,500, today was installed as a 3-1 favorite to win Saturday's 104th annual running of the Queen's Plate and capture the $54,850 winner's share of a record $79,850 purse.

The colt, carrying Taylor's hopes for his eighth Plate victory, couldn't find a buyer when offered for sale two years ago at Windfields Farm's yearling sale.

Terrorists Charged

MONTREAL (UPI)—The crown today presented a total of 165 charges against 17 accused members of the terrorist FLQ, ranging from non-capital murder to public mischief.

At the same time, prosecutor Guy Desjardins announced that four of the accused now in custody—Claude Savoie, Alain Bournelle, Jean Cloutier and Rejean Lachapelle—would be released tonight.

Police Chief Retires Early

Victoria Police Chief John Blackstock, whose resignation was announced Thursday, expressed little enthusiasm for the Archer Report today.

"It has its good points and its bad points," he said. He would not say which recommendations he felt were bad.

He said he was "in the dark" about that part of the report dealing with establishment of a metropolitan police force.

MUST COME

But he did say "metro's got to come."

He said that he felt an overall police commission for amalgamated police forces "could be beneficial."

"But I can't see it otherwise," he added, referring to the report's recommendation for a central commission whether or not forces are amalgamated.

"It could too easily cause petty jealousies to creep in," he explained.

The chief said he definitely welcomed the recommendations calling for the addition of eight men to the city force.

10 MORE

"I'd like to see 10 additional men right now," he said.

"I'd like to keep 10 men on the go all the time" in a definite training program, he offered.

"I don't think anyone who has been through our own training program here would criticize it," he said, "but it means we have to take men off duty to act as instructors all the time."

"And it's too expensive to board men over in Vancouver

'Ghost Writer' Claim Starts House Furore

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Gordon Friday admitted three Toronto businessmen helped prepare his budget and identified them in the Commons. He said all took the oath of secrecy.

The minister said they were David Stanley and Martin O'Connell, Toronto investment dealers, and Geoffrey Conway, a chartered accountant.

The three "special consultants" joined the finance department May 22 on a temporary basis under authorization of the Treasury Board.

All took the oath of allegiance and oaths of office and secrecy.

By ALEX YOUNG

OTTAWA—Finance Minister Walter Gordon today came under a barrage of opposition questioning which suggested he had permitted a "leak" of budget secrets.

Throughout the 20-minute period of cross-examination which erupted at the opening of today's sitting of the Commons, Mr. Gordon refused to give a direct reply to questions about whether he had obtained "outside" help in preparation of the budget.

Traditionally, contents of the budget are kept in tight secrecy. In British parliamentary practice, finance ministers have been forced to resign over any advance leak of budget information or even over any serious suggestion that such a leak had taken place.

FISHER QUERY

In questioning whether Mr. Gordon had received help in preparation of his budget, even down to the wording, the opposition was raising the grave charge that budget secrets were known outside the government service before their presentation to Parliament.

Today's sensation was touched off by New Democrat

Douglas Fisher, MP for Port Arthur.

He said he had information to the effect that Mr. Gordon had outside help — "ghost writers," he called it — in the preparation of the budget, laid before Parliament Thursday night.

He said he wanted assurances from Mr. Gordon that the minister had not called in any "outside consultants."

Speaker Macnaughton remarked that when Mr. Fisher became minister of finance he could bring about any necessary reforms himself — a remark that Mr. Speaker later withdrew at the insistence of Conservative L. E. Kindt (MacLeod). The speaker admitted the remark had not been as facetious as he thought at the time.

Mr. Gordon declared that "as minister of finance I take full responsibility for the budget" Opposition Leader Diefenbaker then leaped to his feet

Fifth Man In Space For Reds

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union launched its fifth man into orbit around the earth today and Premier Khrushchev hinted at least one more cosmonaut may join the one already up in what may be another space venture lasting several days.

The United States announced the end of its Project Mercury one-man space flights two days ago.

The new cosmonaut was identified as Lt.-Col. Valeri Fedorovich Bykovsky, 28, from a small town near Moscow. His craft is named Vostok (east) V.

The Soviet news agency Tass said "the pilot himself reports, and the telemetric system confirms, that he satisfactorily withstood the putting into orbit and the transition to a state of weightlessness and that he feels well."

The news agency reported the space craft was orbiting the earth once every 88 minutes from 112 miles to 146 miles from earth.

SPEAKS TO EARTH

The capsule was reported circling at a 65-degree angle from the equator and broadcasting to the earth on 20,000- and 143.625-megacycle frequencies.

In contrast to the austere radio announcements of previous manned space flights, Khrushchev broke the news of this one to Harold Wilson, visiting leader of the British Labor party, at a Kremlin meeting.

Wilson — remembering that the last Soviet manned flights in August, 1962, had two men aloft at once — immediately asked how many were up this time.

"Only one so far," said Khrushchev, spreading his arms wide apart to emphasize his point.

Tass said the purpose of the new launching is to continue studies of the influence of various factors of space flight on the human body and to continue study of conditions of a long flight. This indicated that the flight of Bykovsky will be a long one.

New Chief From Outside

Times City Hall Reporter

A bone-rattling shake-up of the city police department began today with release of the Archer report which gave an appalling picture of a Keystone Cops disorganization.

Chief John Blackstock, who saw the report, tendered his resignation on the eve of its release.

The 88-page report recommended creation of a Saanich Peninsula Metropolitan Police Department and a single police commission—after complete reorganization of the city force under a new chief and a major renovation and expansion of the city police building.

The metro force would include, Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Central Saanich and part of the Colwood area but not Esquimalt.

The three-part report was written in March by George Archer, a top RCMP official who re-organized the Vancouver Police Department after the Mulligan inquiry.

Swiftly-moving events set in motion by the report included:

- Acceptance by city council of Police Chief John Blackstock's resignation;
- Launching of a search by police commission for a top-notch police officer on the mainland to come in as a trouble-shooter to reorganize the force;
- Study of further recommendations which would reshuffle the top echelon of officers—including cutting Deputy Chief Harry Mercer down to superintendent—and possibly bringing reprimands or discharges for some sergeants.

Administrative Chaos

Parts one and two dealing exclusively with the city force were released this morning by Mayor R. B. Wilson with Attorney-General Robert Bonner's sanction. Mr. Bonner's department released the third part dealing with outside forces and the metro proposal.

The 22 pages describing the present administrative chaos in the city police department read like an analysis of a nightmare and was followed by no less than 56 recommendations just as a bare framework for a re-organization.

Repeatedly Mr. Archer used terms like "shocking," "ridiculous" and "absurd" in describing the present situation.

"Certainly a very difficult and complex re-organization is needed here."

"With great regret I must advise you that it would be most unfair and unrealistic to require the present chief commissionable to carry out this re-organization."

"Further, in my opinion, there is nobody available among the present personnel of the department who could attempt to undertake it."

"This is also the case in so far as the immediately adjacent municipal departments are concerned."

Mr. Archer declared deputy chief Mercer "redundant" in his present post and recommended he should be made a superintendent of the patrol division with specific duties.

He also criticized Detective

Inspector Charles Webb and said he should be transferred back to the uniform branch and Inspector Ray Maitland put in charge of the detective branch.

Mr. Archer praised Traffic Inspector Brooke Douglass and said he should be given a proper staff to command. The uniform branch inspector should be given something to do.

The report on several occasions was severely critical of unnamed desk sergeants and suggested the police commission should consider "buying up their time" and retiring them ahead of schedule.

He also suggested various other staff shifts and a host of technical changes—in simple fact establishing rather than changing a police organization.

In one short section Mr. Archer recited the gist of the report which in effect said there is absolutely no organization.

Vancouver Stocks Closing Prices

VANCOUVER—Closing sales: Triga 1,000 at $2.00, Kootenay Base Metals 1,500 at $7, Peace River Pete 4,000 at $6, Huestis 1,000 at $4, Ace Mines 2,000 at $5, Ottawa Silver 2,000 at $4.50, Dolly Varden 500 at $1, Prosper Oil 1,000 at $2.35, Western Mines 200 at $4.05.

Metro Force A Necessity

Only surprise in the Archer Report's recommendation that B.C.'s first metropolitan police force should be formed here is the initial exclusion of the Esquimalt police-fire department.

"There should, however, be no misunderstanding," the report said. "By all standards Esquimalt belongs in the Saanich peninsula for police purposes and should be included immediately—the present artificial barrier of dual employment is removed as... it inevitably will be."

For the blueprint of the metro force and other stories see pages 21 and 36.

MacDonald Heads C of C Retail Group

Rod MacDonald was elected chairman of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce retail merchants' group Thursday, succeeding Lloyd Davies.

Hugh Francis was named vice-chairman, succeeding Al Neuart.

The group decided to call a conference of merchants, store detectives and police officers to discuss methods of curbing shoplifting.

The conference will be held Monday, at 3 p.m., in the chamber board room and a list of suggestions will be drawn up for distribution to city stores.

It was also recommended that the standard exchange on United States dollars in Victoria stores, restaurants and motels should be at the rate of $1.07 Canadian. At the present time some establishments are giving $1.07 and others $1.08.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (Reuters)—Two Canadian treasury officials and a detective sergeant arrived here today from Vancouver and were believed to be investigating the theft of a large sum of money from the Canadian government. They spent several hours interviewing an unidentified man.

Budget Satisfies Lesage on Taxes

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage told the legislature today he did not expect an affirmative answer to his tax-sharing ultimatum in the federal government's budget speech delivered Thursday night by Finance Minister Gordon.

In his speech, Mr. Gordon said the federal government would not subscribe to all the Quebec government's demands, which included one-quarter of personal and corporation taxes and all succession duties.

Land Control By Province 'Hopeless'

Government attempts to control erratic development in unorganized territory are "a case of a man trying to do an army's job," a professional planner said Thursday night.

William Kerr, town planner for the township of Richmond, near Vancouver, was addressing the annual meeting of the Capital Region branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada.

He said that government has a small staff, a limited budget, and the idea that a man can spend three weeks in a town and come up with a regional plan.

It is making only a token attempt to control helter-skelter development in unorganized territory, he said.

Twelve members of the executive of the branch were named at the Thursday night meeting.

New officers of the branch are to be chosen from among the twelve.

APOLOGY BY NOWLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition financial critic George Nowlan apologized in the Commons today for using the word "crooked" during criticism of the budget speech Thursday night. (See page 18.)

The former Conservative finance minister, noting it was the first time in 14 years in the Commons that he had to do such a thing, said use of the word was entirely inadvertent and had no application to any person, group or party.

He was given a thunderous round of applause from all sides of the House.

K Sympathetic

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Premier Khrushchev received "sympathetically" a proposal by Harold Wilson, British opposition Labor party leader, that there should be an annual big four summit meeting at the United Nations in New York, Wilson said tonight.

B.C. Traffic Death

PENTICTON (CP)—Ian Andrew Mair, 18, of Penticton, was killed and four other persons hurt Thursday night when a small foreign car went out of control and rolled into a ditch from the highway about eight miles south of here.

LIBERAL LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM BEFORE HOUSE

Commons Work to Be Done Before Recess

OTTAWA (CP) — The commons will have to deal with the Liberal government's initial legislative program, before taking a summer recess.

Prime Minister Pearson told members Thursday he hopes the summer break will come by the end of July, provided the House moves expeditiously.

He said the initial program consists of nine measures now on the Commons order paper and several more to be introduced early next week.

Thursday's normal House business—curtailed by the evening sitting's budget presentation—was confined to a long question period, a private members' hour and continuing debate on a measure to set up a new industry department.

Today the House again will take up the industry department measure, still in the resolution stage prior to introduction of the actual bill.

MOVE CRITICIZED

The new department will embrace the existing defence production department and its first minister will be Defence Production Minister Drury. A new area development agency is to come under its wing.

On Thursday, three Progressive Conservative members and one Social Credit MP criticized establishment of the department, saying it would only add further to an already overblown bureaucracy and accomplish little except spend more public funds.

"Nothing but a puny and undernourished scarecrow of an economic measure," said Gerald W. Baldwin (PC—Peace River).

Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) said the government is showing signs of too much haste and not enough thought in preparing its legislative program.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Bow River) and Gilbert Rondeau (SC—Shefford) suggested that industrialists and other taxpayers need tax cuts much more than they require interference of civil servants in their operations.

In the private members' hour, Trade Minister Sharp made a rare intervention for a cabinet minister—the first since 1960. Mr. Sharp spoke on a bill introduced by Reynold Rapp (PC—Humbolt—Melfort—Tisdale) calling for construction of a federal grain terminal at Tisdale, Sask.

The minister said he doubts whether the government is going to be able to overcome the downward trend of grain sales by the end of the current crop year, July 31.

However, he said the Canadian wheat board was going to be just as aggressive in selling as it had been under the Conservatives and he hoped the downward trend would be reversed.

In an unusual procedure, Mr. Rapp's bill was withdrawn at the end of the hour's debate. It had initially been declared out of order by Speaker Alan Macnaughton but by unanimous agreement was debated anyway.
